A powerful engine cannot be run with a weak boiler, and we can't keep up the strain of an active life with a weak stomach; neither can we stop the human machine to make repairs. If the stomach cannot digest enough food to keep the body strong, such a preparation as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure should be used. It digests what you eat and it simply can't help but do you good. McConnell & Berry.

When the baby swallows a penny the doctor makes its father cough up a dollar or two.

Recent experiments show that all classes of foods may be completely digested by a preparation called Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, which absolutely digests what you eat. As it is the only combination of all the natural digestants ever devised the demand for it has become enormous. It has never failed to cure the very worst cases of indigestion and it always gives instant relief. McConnell & Berry.

An Atchison girl boasted a few years ago that two men were so anxious to marry her that she drew straws to see which she would take. She drew the wrong straw.

How to Cure the Grippe.
Remain quietly at home and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as directed and a quick recovery is sure to follow. That remedy counteracts any tendency of the grip to result in pneumonia, which is really the only serious danger. Among the tens of thousands who have used it for the grip not one case has ever been reported that did not recover. For sale by McConnell & Berry.

The Progressive Burlington.

Recently a person well versed in Burlington affairs gave it as his opinion that the company would build a line from a point near Brush by the way of Greeley, Fort Collins and Laramie to a connection with its Salt Lake line, and that at the same time it would extend the line from Lyons to Fort Collins, says the Laramie Republican. This, he said would give the Burlington a line from St. Louis to Salt Lake City shorter by thirty-five miles than any other trans-continental route and at the same time would permit the Burlington to market its fuel from its extensive coal mines already located north-west of Rawlins. This extension would at a single sweep reach three of the best towns in the west and would open up a country rich in resources. It would connect the great sheep-feeding industry of Laramie county, Colorado, with the corn of Nebraska, and the lambs of Wyoming. Within the past ninety days the Burlington has located more than 14,000 acres of coal land in Carbon county and its agents are now actively at work securing land for townsite and other purposes.—Sheridan (Wyo.) Wants a House-Keeper.

An aged gentleman over on the Beaver writes to the county commissioners the following letter, which fully explains itself:

Danbury, Neb., Jan. 20th, 1901.
TO OUR COUNTY COMMISSIONER:

Dear Sir: Have you on your hands a young or middle-aged woman capable of doing household duties for one person besides themselves. If so I would like to get one. I have a nice pleasant home with everything to do with. Will promise to provide well and treat kindly whoever may come. You may let me know if you please by postal card. I am 68 years old or nearly so, and not very good health. No outside chores to do. For reference will give you Dr. Brown of your place or Judge Keyes or the Bank of Indianola. Very Resp't Yours,
J. B.

Value of Brome Grass.

Occasionally there appears in the columns of the press (especially the agricultural) very favorable mention of brome grass (bromus inermis). It is worthy to the extent that this thrives under arid conditions and on very poor soil and that it is a valuable forage plant.

Since 1896 the experiment station has been testing this grass under varied conditions, such as sub-irrigation for growth and germination, irrigation by flooding seeding in the fall, pasturage, ability to withstand drouth, value to produce milk, etc., and to make the story short, sums it up as follows:

It starts to grow early in the spring and for a time gives great promise, but as soon as hot weather occurs fails to grow.

It becomes sod bound under irrigation and soon fails to procure growth of any value.

Its behavior tends to show it adapted to a region of lower mean temperature and greater precipitation, and that the soil should contain more clay than does the average of this valley.

It is coarse and very low in nutritive value.

The sod plowed up adds no fertility to the soil.

There seems to be but one place where it may profitably be employed, that is, as a soil retainer on the banks of sandy ditches that wash; its ability to make good growth where sub-irrigation is applied makes it of value for the above purpose.

We are in hopes the above line will be of service to the farmers in preventing them going to any expense for this grass Rock Ford (Colo.) Enterprise.
