TWENTIETH YEAR

McCOOK, RED WILLOW COUNTY, NEBRASKA, FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 2, 1902.

NUMBER 51

Walter Rowland Murdered.

A telegram from Herndon, Kansas, Monday morning, announced the murder of Dr. J. Walter Rowland at that place, that morning, by an unknown person. The doctor was shot twice, once each through the head and stomach, death being practically instantaneous. The tragedy occurred in a small room attached to the rear of the general merchandise store of G. W. Dull, a room used by Dull in which to store his stock of flour. The doctor and Dull, who were close friends, had been talking together in this small room, just before the tragedy took place.

At the coroner's inquest held on the following day it was considered that the evidence given warranted the arrest of Dull, Tuesday evening, who was taken to the county jail of Rawlins county, Kansas, at Atwood, pending a preliminary hearing. A young man by the name of Mathers, who is a clerk in Dull's store, testified that he was in the store proper when Dull and Rowland were in the rear room wherein the murder was perpetrated. Hearing loud voices Mathers went to the back part of the store to hear the conversation, but both Dull and Rowland ceased talking when he appeared. Returning to the front part of the store, Mathers shortly afterward heard two shots fired and ran back to the rear of the store and found Rowland lying in the floor room. Seeing no one else in the room, which was filled with smoke, he rushed back into the private office and saw Dull seated at his desk. He asked Dull if he had not heard shots fired and Dull said he had, but supposed they were from the outside. Although Dull and the dead man had been long regarded as close friends, Dull expressed no surprise and did not seem to be at all excited when told that Rowland had been murdered, which is regarded as a remarkable circumstance in view of their long and intimate friendship.

Dr. Rowland was a Mason and carried an insurance policy for $2,000 in the Workman order, being a member of the McCook lodge.

John Rowland and Harvey Rowland, father and brother of the deceased, live just across the state line in Grant precinct, Red Willow county, where the dead man spent a number of years of his life before entering the practice of medicine in Kansas. He is well known to many residents of this county. His widow, his second wife, was a Miss Canaga, who is also a doctor, and a daughter of Elias Canaga of the Redwillow neighborhood.

The funeral was held on Wednesday, burial being made at Indianola, under Masonic and Workman auspices.

It is a dark, bloody and mysterious tragedy, which may be unraveled at the trial.

A pathetic incident of the bloody tragedy is the fact that Mrs. Rowland became a mother three days before the murder, and naturally much solicitude for her well-being was felt by relatives and friends.

Recommend C. W. Barnes for Receiver.

Dietrich and Millard joined today, in nominating C. W. Barnes, editor of the McCook Republican, for receiver of the land office at McCook, vice J. A. Piper, term expiring, May 6. While this, of course, is in Senator Dietrich's territory, Senator Millard joined in the recommendation, according to an agreement when the senators entered upon their terms that they would join in federal appointments.—Washington cor. of Omaha Bee, April 26th.

RATHBUN RECOMMENDED FOR REGISTER.

Senator Dietrich, today, nominated Frank M. Rathbun for reappointment as register of the McCook land office, his term expiring May 6.—Washington cor. of Lincoln Journal, April 26th.

We Need a Few Like Jake.

The Tribune notes in the Lincoln Journal that Ex-Land Commissioner Jake Wolfe is planting 500 acres of sugarbeets, this season, which reminds us that the farmers of Redwillow county are not going into this matter with the enthusiasm and push they ought to, and that they might well follow the example of Uncle Jake in the matter of planting sugarbeets, anyhow. Lay aside everything of a personal nature and look at the proposition on its merits alone. It is a profitable crop and as sure as any crop that can be produced in this county. Isn't that enough to warrant your planting a few acres at least. The Republican valley ought by another year at the longest to be able to raise enough beets to warrant a factory to be built here. Be wide awake to your interests.

Republican City Has a Fire.

Fire destroyed five frame store buildings in Republican City, last Saturday night, causing a loss of about $7,000. Fire started at about 10:30 in the rear of G. W. Underwood's store, and in an hour the entire row was destroyed with but small salvage. The sufferers are: Estate of Phebe Grove, vacant building, $500, no insurance; G. W. Underwood, merchandise, $1,400, insurance $800; N. J. Ludi, Harlan County Democrat, loss on stock $2,500, insurance $500, building $700, insurance $400; A. A. Maloy, merchandise $1,000, two buildings $1,300, insurance not known; Charles Reiter, meat-market, loss on building and stock $700, insurance $400. Origin of fire not discovered.

Origin of Passion Play.

High up in the mountains of Bavaria lies the little village of Ober-Ammergau. A plague broke out in the mountains in 1634 and was introduced into the village by a laborer who came by a secret and unguarded path to visit his family; the inhabitants were threatened with extinction, and in their distress made a vow to represent at intervals, "for thankful remembrance and edifying contemplation, and by the help of the Almighty, the sufferings of Jesus, the Savior of the world." Tradition says that not a single person died from the plague thereafter. The first performance was given in 1634 continued at intervals of either one or ten years, up to 1674, was repeated in 1680, and has been maintained every ten years since, except when war caused an interruption.

It is a most sacred thank service with these peasants, and they are trained all their lives for the parts they represent. Sunday is the day for the regular performance—a choice made on account of the essentially religious character of the representation.

At the age of two or three years children go upon the stage in the arms of their mothers. Ten years later they may wave palm branches and cry "Hosanna" at the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem—in ten years more they may figure as Roman soldiers, servants of the temple, judges, or other minor characters, and happy indeed they are if their daily life among their thirty or forty years has been such that they are counted worthy to represent an apostle, for to few is it granted to go higher.

A clergyman who saw the Passion Play says: "I was prepared for a striking exhibition, but also half prepared for some rude shocks to one's natural sense of religious propriety, so impossible did it seem to represent on a public stage and in a worthy manner the sublime story of Christ's life and death." But I have never seen so affecting a spectacle or one more calculated to draw out the best and purest feelings of the heart. It is of course impossible to answer for the feelings of others, but I can say for myself and the many other spectators whom I have consulted that there was nothing from the beginning to the end that need shock the most sensitive religious instinct." At the Methodist church, Monday evening, May 12th.

The Dean Fordyce Lecture.

The lecture by Dean Fordyce in the M. E. church on last Saturday evening was a jewel in its line. The topic, "The Boy," came under the department of our "Mothers' Meetings." It was a rare treat to those who have not been able to give the time and study to the culture and training of children; study of temperament, dispositions etc. etc. As one woman said, on being presented to Dean Fordyce, "I want to thank you for what you have said; but I wish I could have heard it years ago."

It is a matter of regret that young married people, whose lives and possibilities are, in a great measure, before them, do not profit by these and many other educational privileges.
