Harvey Rowland and B.W. Benjamin worked on the road, Tuesday.
C. R. Lee had a dance at his place, last week, and there were 16 numbers out.
There seems to be a magnet that draws Roy Albrecht west of Banksville about once a week.
The weather for the past week has been very fine. Not enough wind has been blowing to turn the windmills.
The election at Banksville was very quiet. The vote on presidential electors was 20 for Roosevelt, 6 for Watson and 1 blank, making 27 votes for Grant precinct.

How to Keep Out of Trouble.
"The rivalry between the two arms of the national service, the army and navy," said an army man, "is most shown between the marines and the jacksies on a man-of-war. The marines are soldier policemen, and the jacksies have a keen contempt for them. I remember hearing of one old tar who was always getting into trouble. Finally he made peace with one of the marines.
"Tell me how to keep out of trouble?" the old tar asked. "If you'll show me the way I'll give you my plug of tobacco."
"The marine tried the plug and found it to his liking. He tightened his belt, straightened his cap and then delivered himself of this advice:
"Whenever you're feeling easy and happy and comfortable, quit it, for you be breaking a rule. It's the only way."

Courtship in Holland.
The etiquette of Holland is exceedingly strict in all classes. The young girl is most carefully chaperoned, and she never goes anywhere, even to church, unless accompanied by her parents, some male relative or other equally trustworthy attendant. At a dance the parents sit round the walls sipping their coffee or wine, and the young men must make the best of their chances in the opportunities afforded by the dance, for when it pleases the guardians to depart there is no help for it, but the girls must go too. An unmarried girl always takes the right arm of her escort, while the matron takes the left, perhaps because it is nearer the heart.
