Red Willow Creek Bridge Burned.

The Burlington's bridge over Red Willow creek, midway between McCook and Indianola, was entirely consumed by fire, Monday afternoon. The structure was 115 feet long, including the approaches, and nothing remained after the flames had finished.

The bridge took fire while William Byfield and some of his employes were burning off some driftage along the right-of-way, to allow the possible flood water greater freedom of movement. An unsuccessful effort was made to get prompt telephonic connection with McCook, and word was then phoned to Indianola, from which point the section hands came on their hand-car. But by the time they arrived the bridge was practically destroyed.

A repair train was sent from McCook, later in the afternoon, with materials, and a temporary bridge was cribbed up, and traffic was resumed about midnight. This bridge was partially destroyed by fire, last summer, and the possibilities are that the new structure will be more substantial in character.

THE SAVING HABIT

Should be encouraged in all possible ways. Like good morals and manners, the instruction should begin in the home. As early habits mold the future character, so do those who early acquire the saving habit, lay the foundation for future success. Many a boy has saved enough from his small earnings to give him a liberal education or to make a start in business of his own. Persistent saving opens the way to countless possibilities in success, and many a young man owes his start in life to his having opened a savings account and adhered to a strong determination to add to regularly and systematically the first deposit made. We invite your savings accounts.
