Rev. Carman in Cambridge, Mass. During Rev. Carman's recent visit to his mother in Cambridge, Mass., he delivered a sermon, which was commented upon as follows by the Chronicle of that city. Sermon was given in Grace M. E. church:

Another large congregation attended the 5 o'clock vesper service at Pilgrim church. Rev. Merrill Carman, of McCook, Neb., who is east visiting his mother, was the preacher. His text was Mark 8:36, "For what shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul." The preacher spoke of the creation of man, how God breathed into him the breath of life and made of him a living soul; he spoke of the disobedience and fall, and then proceeded to estimate what it cost God to redeem mankind from the effects of Adam's disobedience and sin. What is a soul worth? What did it cost to save a soul? It was the old, old story of Christ's suffering and death, a story that is often told, yet one that never fails to touch the heart. As he spoke of the birth of Christ, how his parents were compelled to flee by night to escape the wrath of Herod, how all through his life he was misunderstood and maligned, as he depicted the agony in the garden, the indignities that were heaped upon him in his trial before Pilate, and as he graphically described the shameful death upon the cross, it was plainly evident that the sympathy of the audience was aroused by his vivid and pathetic description of the suffering through which the Saviour passed to redeem man. Mr. Carman is a man of fine physique, has a powerful voice, full of tenderness and pathos, has good command of language and a magnetism that compels attention. His power to gain and hold the interest of the congregation was clearly evident, and his discourse evoked much favorable comment. The music at both services was very good. John P. Kuhney, of Boston, was the organist. The morning's contribution was a voluntary, "Elevation" (Battiste); postlude, "Triumphant March" (Heintze). In the evening a "Religious Melody" (Guilmant) and Processional (Clark) were executed.

Mr. Sayles E. Smith and Miss Ina A. Remington of Danbury were married in the office of the county judge by Rev. A. B. Carson, pastor of the Baptist church, Wednesday, August 23rd. They were accompanied by Mr. Manford Steele and Miss Esta Remington.

Out-of-town products are not in competition when quality and excellence are considered as factors in flour. There's none so good as "Doan's 91."

Water Supply for Tampico.

English engineers are making surveys and plans of Tampico and the surrounding country with a view of supplying the town with drinking water and a complete system of sewerage. Should these works be carried out there will be an excellent opening for the sale of plumbing supplies. At present there is no plumbing establishment in the port.

Cupid Ambushed.

Mr. Slowgalt (about to propose; time 11 p. m.)—"I am about to say something, Miss Chillington, that I should have said some time ago. Look into my eyes and tell me if you cannot guess what it is." Miss Chillington (suppressing a yawn)—"You look as sleepy as I feel, so I guess you must be going to say 'good night.'"—Chicago News.

THE SAVING HABIT

Should be encouraged in all possible ways. Like good morals and manners, the instruction should begin in the home. As early habits mold the future character, so do those who early acquire the saving habit, lay the foundation for future success. Many a boy has saved enough from his small earnings to give him a liberal education or to make a start in business of his own. Persistent saving opens the way to countless possibilities in success, and many a young man owes his start in life to his having opened a savings account and adhered to a strong determination to add to regularly and systematically the first deposit made. We invite your savings accounts.
