Every Niece and Nephew of Uncle Sam

should be deeply interested in what he has said about soda crackers, because they are the one food with which all of them are familiar.

Uncle Sam has given out figures showing that soda crackers are richer in nutriment and body-building elements, properly proportioned, than any food made from flour.

This is saying much for common soda crackers, and much more for Uneeda Biscuit, because they are soda crackers of the best quality. They are baked better—more scientifically. They are packed better—more cleanly. The damp, dust and odor proof package retains all the goodness and nutriment of the wheat, all the freshness of the best baking, all the purity of the cleanest bakeries.

Your Uncle Sam has shown what food he thinks best for his people. His people have shown that they think Uneeda Biscuit the best of that food, nearly 400,000,000 packages having already been consumed.

Men and Women WHO ARE IN The Dispatches

IN view of the crusade against alleged grafters in public office, especial interest attaches to the case of United States Senator John Ralph Burton of Kansas. He is charged with using his influence as a senator in behalf of the Rialto Grain and Securities company of St. Louis. It is alleged that he intervened in an improper manner to prevent proceedings being brought against the company by the postoffice department. He was tried and convicted on the charge, then procured a new trial and was again convicted.

There is an unwritten rule of the senate that a member indicted for malfeasance in office must not vote with his colleagues until his innocence is established. When the question of admitting New Mexico to statehood was up for consideration last winter Burton was in the Republican cloakroom, willing and anxious to vote against the admission of the present territory. He stood there waiting for the word. Sturdy Republican leaders like the late Senator Platt of Connecticut and Senator Allison of Iowa knew that with Burton's vote to be had for the asking they could win. No power on earth could prevent Burton from walking into the senate chamber and voting if he had the nerve to brave the displeasure of the senate.

SENATOR J. R. BURTON.

They wanted the vote, but here was a senator under indictment who had been told to stay away from the senate chamber until his case was decided. It was agreed that the dignity of the senate must be upheld, that a senator under indictment could not vote until he was cleared, and the leaders who were against New Mexico saw the bill to admit that territory passed, although the vote that would have beaten the project was within call. However, disagreement between senate and house resulted after all in defeating the plan to make a new state.

Senator Thomas C. Platt, who testified regarding campaign contributions from insurance companies before the Armstrong committee and is engaged in an effort to reorganize his party in New York, appeared very infirm when he took the stand in the insurance investigation. When he had concluded his testimony he was assisted from the room by four men, and on leaving it sank wearily into a small chair. This was then lifted by the men, who in this way conveyed him to his carriage.

SENATOR T. C. PLATT.

Senator Platt has a sense of humor that has often helped him out of perplexing situations. In the course of his career he has been appealed to by all kinds of persons for all kinds of favors. On one occasion he received a letter regarding a young army officer who had been denied promotion because of some defect in his eyesight. His mother wrote to Senator Platt, asking for his assistance, closing her letter with the words, "I leave it all to you and the Lord." The senator forwarded this appeal to the secretary of war, saying in his own note: "I have noticed that when a matter is left to me and the Lord I am held responsible in case of failure. Therefore I beg that you will assist me."

Representative William Peters Hepburn of Iowa is a veteran of the civil war and a veteran in politics. He will shortly begin his tenth term in congress, was born in Wellsville, O., in 1833 and was first elected to public office in 1856. He participated in the convention which nominated Abraham Lincoln in 1860, and he made a gallant record on the Union side in the war which began soon after Lincoln's inauguration. In the last congress Mr. Hepburn, who was chairman of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce, introduced a bill in regard to regulation of railroad rates which was much criticised on the ground that it was inadequate to effect the objects desired. He was a member of the congressional party that recently visited the Philippines. At a banquet in Tokyo, Japan, he responded to the toast "Views of the American Congress on the Philippine Question," in the course of which he remarked that the congress was made up of "386 human beings and 90 senators;" consequently no one could foretell what their views would be.

WILLIAM PETERS HEPBURN.

Colonel Pete, as the congressman is sometimes called, was once criticising the logic of a colleague, which reminded him, he declared, of a certain surgeon. "This surgeon," said he, "one Saturday afternoon performed before a large class in a fine amphitheater some thirty swift operations. At the end, as he was washing his hands, a young assistant tiptoed over to him and whispered in his ear:

"'In the Higgins case, sir, there appears to have been some mistake.'

"'A mistake in the Higgins case? I think not,' said the surgeon.

"'Yes,' the other insisted. 'You cut off Higgins' wrong leg, sir.'

"'Oh, well, that is of no consequence,' said the surgeon. 'We can cure the other one, so it comes to the same thing in the end!'"

Rear Admiral Francis M. Ramsay, retired, the presiding officer in the court martial of Midshipman Meriwether of the Annapolis Naval academy, served on the famous Sampson-Schley court of inquiry. He knows something about such affairs as that in which Midshipman Branch lost his life, as he was once superintendent of the Annapolis academy. The admiral was born near Washington in 1835 and entered the navy in 1850. He won distinction in the civil war and commanded the Choctaw at Haines' bluff in the engagement in which that ironclad was struck over fifty times. Rear Admiral Ramsay succeeded Rear Admiral Sampson as superintendent of the Naval academy, and it was during his administration that an investigation was ordered by congress in respect to a report that a cadet named Strang had been killed by hazing. It was said that his tormentors rolled him downhill in a barrel which had spikes driven through its sides. It was proved that the cadet did not die from such a cause and that he had never been hazed. It was also during his administration that a rebellion among the cadets occurred. The insubordinate students were members of the first, or highest, class, and their action rendered them liable to dismissal. They were confined on the prison ship Santee and deprived of all privileges until the rebellion was quelled. A curious feature of it was their allegation that they had rebelled because Rear Admiral Ramsay had ordered all their heads shorn in order to get hair for the mortar used in building a new residence for the superintendent, but this was not the real reason for their action.

REAR ADMIRAL F. M. RAMSAY.

Poultney Bigelow, who has recently published the fourth volume of his history of "The German Struggle For Liberty," has recently been in Munich investigating the famous Munich weekly Simplicissimus. This paper, edited by Thoma, the popular author, dramatist, poet and satirist, makes it its special business to point out to the emperor how he is regarded by his people. It hates war, ridicules the army's code of honor and the dueling fads of the students and advocates popular liberty—all this with much brilliancy and freshness. Naturally it is forbidden by the police at Prussian railway station bookstalls, but the moment the train crosses the border into the next state all the passengers clamor for copies. Every page is submitted to expert legal talent in order to see how far it is safe to go and avoid arrest, but occasionally Thoma goes to jail for the crime of leze majesty. Mr. Bigelow is especially interested in Simplicissimus, as he believes the kaiser to be one of the most maligned men in Europe. His intimate knowledge of the kaiser's real self dates back to the days of the Franco-Prussian war, when he was living with his tutor at Potsdam, and by reason of his father's personal relations with the late Emperor Frederick was often invited to spend his holidays with the present emperor.

POULTNEY BIGELOW.

He has ever since been on terms of intimacy with the kaiser. At one time thoughtless people chaffed him concerning this comradeship until he became tired and irritable at remarks of the kind. It culminated at a dinner in a New York club, where one of the guests told a story of personality. In the pause which followed Mr. Bigelow remarked:

"You remind me of"—

"Not the Emperor William," interrupted the facetious story teller.

"Oh, no!" replied Mr. Bigelow quietly. "The kaiser is a gentleman."

Octave Thanet was once described as "the only female writer in America who is a humorist." In private life she is Miss Alice French, and she lives at Davenport, Ia. President Roosevelt is quite an admirer of her work. A Davenport citizen, Colonel Nutting, recently journeyed to Washington to attend a convention of business men. Just before he went with other delegates to the White House to meet the president he told several of his fellows that he was going to test the much vaunted ability of Mr. Roosevelt to remember every one whom he had ever met. He had had two meetings with the president, the last being two years ago.

OCTAVE THANET.

At the reception he reached the president, who, as he grasped the colonel's hand, exclaimed:

"Hello, colonel! Glad to see you. How are all my old friends out in Davenport, and especially how is Miss French? You tell her I read all she writes. Do you know, that woman knows as much about factories and the machine business as a man."

Delmont, S. D., Dec., 11 1902.
I used L. K. for hog cholera and it was all right. It cured my hogs. I had three sick ones and they all got well and done fine. I also used it for chicken lice and mites and it is all you claim for it. It is the only Medicine for hog cholera, I think. GOTLIEB JERKE.

Harrington, Neb., Dec. 11, 1902.
I am using Liquid Koal and am well pleased with it. I am sure I saved my hogs with it last year, and am going to keep it in stock all the time as it is the best thing I ever had on the place for everything it is intended for. It is good for chicken cholera, lice on stock, insects of all kinds; it will destroy all kinds.
