DANBURY.
 Emmett Erwin is at work in Lebanon. Sylvia Remington is no better at present writing.
 Alfred Palmer's little boy is very sick with lung trouble.
 Perry Cathcart is here visiting with his son for a few days.
 Mrs. Burr French and children visited in Herndon over Sunday.
 Guy Smith was under the doctor's care the last part of last week, but is better now.
 Geo. Lewis' nine year old boy died Tuesday, from the effects of the storm, Monday night.
 Quite a number around Danbury have the German measles. Some have been exposed to the genuine red measles.
 Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Woods went to Lincoln, Friday evening, to attend the wedding of their son George to Miss Grace Crum of that place.
 The Shiloh school closed, last Friday. Miss Deitch was teacher. She went to McCook with some of the other teachers and went from there to her home in Bartley.
 The commencement exercise will be given, Friday evening at the town hall May 18th. The baccalaureate sermon will be given Sunday before the 18th and the Alumni Banquet will be Saturday evening, May 19th.
 The ladies of the Christian Sunday School met at Mrs. Thomas's and organized a work circle, called the Ladies working band, Wednesday evening, with fourteen members. The ladies will begin work right away. They will meet at Mrs. J. E. Noe's, Tuesday afternoon of this week.
 A little runaway occurred between Mr. Robinson's house and Mr. Burbridge's house, Saturday evening. A livery team had taken three of the lady teachers over to McCook to attend the teachers' association, and they had returned home and all of the teachers but one, Miss Morris, had gotten out of the buggy and gone home, one of the bolts came out of a single tree and frightened the horses. They started to run but were stopped before very much damage was done or any one was injured.
 This locality was visited by a very disastrous cyclone, Monday evening about 4:30 o'clock. It began this side of Cedar Bluffs and destroyed a school-house and crossed the creek at Mr. Weyeneth's, tore down his barn and a part of his house. It destroyed George Lewis' house and seriously injured two of the children; all of the family were injured in some way. Bill Andrus's house, Wm. Kendall's barn were both blown away. Then north of the Beaver it changed its course and started northeast. It destroyed all of the buildings on Elvin Woods' place, all of the buildings on Mr. Saunders' place were made into kindling wood. The barn on Mr. E. M. Wood's place was destroyed, Rex Mile's windmill blown down. Every thing at Harry Butler's and John Leisure's but their houses. Ambrós Ruby's house was picked up and carried about 100 feet. The Drake place where Clarence Axtell lived, every thing was blown into kindling wood. A Garter's barn and windmill blown down. Every thing at Mr. Reed's is destroyed. Jess Smith's barn and orchard is all gone. Lafferty's windmill is destroyed. The inmates of most of the above houses escaped by going into their storm caves. The people that had their buildings destroyed have the sympathy of the remainder of the community; although very much property was destroyed it was very fortunate that more people were not hurt than were.
Low Rates to California.

 C. E. Perkins and party were here, Sunday morning. He was on his way east from his ranch near Ludell, Kas. General Manager Holdrege accompanied him to Chicago.
 Express Messenger W. S. Ackerman accidentally shot himself through one of his toes, first of the week. A son was born to him and wife, Wednesday, which about evens up the misfortune of the earlier part of the week.
 Engineer and Mrs. W. H. Dungan left on Tuesday evening for Nashville, Tenn., to attend the great meeting of American Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers to be held in that delightful southern city, and to see more of the south during their visit of a few weeks.
 No. 13 was about an hour late, Thursday, being delayed a mile west of Republican by the front wheels of the front trucks of the tank getting off the track. There was no considerable damage, save the cutting of ties for several telegraph-pole lengths. It was, however, a narrow and lucky escape for the train, which stood for going into the ditch.
 Conductor and Mrs. George Willetts, Jr., departed on Monday night for California, to be absent several weeks on a visit. They had intended attending the great shiners meeting in San Francisco, but the earthquake and fire changed the meeting to Chicago. But as their plans were completed for a western coast trip they decided to make the California visit anyhow.
