RAILROAD NEWS ITEMS.

E. A. VanCamp has gone to Grand Island.

Engine 1964 is being fitted with a set of new flues.

Conductor C. J. Snell was at headquarters, Wednesday, from the west end.

Bruno Behrend and family have returned to Denver. Also Arnold Behrend.

Henry Gates has quit the service here, and has gone to Republican City to the family.

Mrs. R. V. Walls and baby went up to Colorado, last Saturday on 13, on a visit to relatives and friends.

Conductor Mark Parkes was in the city Monday. He came down on a special with soldiers.—Red Cloud Advertiser.

McCook lodge, B. of L. F., has sent $25.00 to the San Francisco sufferers. The grand lodge of the order has given $25,000. A noble record.

Conductor and Mrs. George Willets, Jr., returned home, last Saturday morning, from their trip to California, and report having had a great trip.

John Stevens, an oldtime Burlington machinist, now of Denver, was here, Saturday and Sunday, on business and to renew ties of friendship and acquaintance.

Dispatcher T. B. Campbell was in Lincoln, fore part of the week, looking after the preparation and printing of the new time card, which will go into effect, Sunday, June 3rd.

The company has had three work trains between Red Cloud and Bloomington, this week, repairing track washed away by heavy rains. Some two miles were badly washed.

D. C. Woodring will be known as the master carpenter of the Lincoln division after June 1st. It is said that each division will then have a master carpenter. This does away with the old position of bridge foreman and superintendent of bridges.

Monday morning while Geo. Hollister, foreman of the B. & M. round house, was working with a crowbar, he had the misfortune to have it slip from him, letting him fall to the ground striking his face on a piece of iron, cutting a large gash over his eye, necessitating the taking of six stitches to close up the wound. He came near losing his eye.—Red Cloud Advertiser.

No. 13 was about five hours late, Tuesday, as a result of the terrible hail and rain storm of Monday afternoon, between Red Cloud and Bloomington, which caused washouts between these points and suspended all train service during Monday night. Five inches of rain fell and the hail the size of baseballs shot the country "full of holes"—or words to that effect.

Was Near Death's Door.

Emory Riggs was near death, Thursday afternoon. He was working under a freight car on the repair track when a switch engine moved some freight cars against the car. He was struck and rolled along some distance under the car, finally catching hold of a rod and with the assistance of a fellow workman succeeded in holding on until the cars could be stopped. William Duker was also under the car, but held onto a rod and escaped. Riggs sustained painful injuries to face and eyes and back, but none are regarded as serious. Very shortly after the accident both eyes were swollen shut.

One Killed—Other Badly Hurt.

Fast freight No. 76 was in a wreck at Schramm, Monday morning, in which one young man was killed and another severely injured; both were "bumming" their way. They both hail from Springfield, Neb. Eight cars were derailed. Accident is said to have been caused by a broken rail at the switch. Schramm is just east of Akron, Colo. Wrecker and crews went up from here at once. Supt. Eaton went out to the wreck and directed affairs.

HOW THE TIGER KILLS.

Never Faces His Prey, but Attacks It on the Flank.

I have taken considerable trouble to find out how tigers kill large game. Some time ago I was asked to come and see a full grown bullock that had been killed by a tiger. On examining it I found the animal had its neck broken, and there were claw marks on the nose and shoulder, but nowhere else. There was no doubt that the tiger had jumped at the bull and landed on the shoulder, and when the bull turned his head to gore the tiger he must have put his claw out and with a sudden jerk broken the neck.

On another occasion I went to see a young buffalo which had been killed by a tiger and found the same thing had happened. There were similar marks on the nose and also on the near shoulder, which clearly indicated that this animal had been killed in the same way. Malays who have actually seen a tiger killing a buffalo told me they saw the same thing happen; also that in dragging off a heavy carcass, such as buffalo or bull, he gets most of the weight across his shoulder.

This must be fairly correct, as I have often followed a kill, and the marks left indicate that only a portion of the animal was trailing along the ground. I have known a full grown bull, which ten men could not move, dragged for two miles by a tiger in a heavy jungle, where roots of trees and swamp had to be gone through. In no case have I seen the pug marks facing the wrong way except when stopping to feed, which proves he must carry a portion of the animal over his shoulder.

The old idea of a tiger killing large game by a blow from his paw is nonsense; besides, in India a tiger never faces his prey, but attacks him on the flank unless charged. Another curious fact that may seem very like a fairy tale is that a tiger does not seem to mind a small lamp being tied over a kill about ten feet high, but will come and feed. I have known three occasions when this has been tried, and each time a tiger has come to feed upon the carcass.—London Field.

BRITISH BRIEFS.

England's first representative parliament assembled in 1265.

Caesar conquered Britain in the year 55 B. C. The Roman occupation continued nearly 500 years, or until 410 A. D.

In 1679 was passed the habeas corpus act, which, along with the right of trial by jury, is the great bulwark of Anglo-Saxon liberty.

The great plague was introduced into London in 1664 by bales of cotton imported from Holland; 100,000 persons succumbed to the disease in one year.

Cromwell's long parliament assembled in 1640; Charles I. was beheaded Jan. 30, 1646, and Cromwell became lord protector in 1653. In 1660 the Stuarts were restored to the throne.

Westminster abbey, where the kings and queens of Great Britain are crowned, was originally a Benedictine monastery. It was founded by Sebert, king of the East Saxons, about 616.

HEAVY BRAINS.

They Are Not Necessarily the Most Intellectual Ones.

Other factors besides brain weight are known to influence intelligence. It has long been known that the distinguishing character of the human brain is the large number of connecting fibers, by which its cells are co-ordinated. In no other species are they so numerous or complicated. The cells constitute but a very small part of the weight. There is now considerable evidence that the same rule applies among individual men, and that those of great intelligence have more connections, so that their cells can do more and better "team work."

Some investigations have shown the corpus callosum to have a large cross section in men who had shown great ability. It is also known that the brains of able men are likely to present more convolutions and deeper ones than the average, as though there were more brain cells as well as more connections. A few observations in the lower races point to the fact that their brains are essentially different in microscopic organization, partly accounting for less intelligence. All these facts will fully explain why men of intelligence in the higher races may have brains not notably heavy, but they do not disprove the general statement that as a class such men do possess brains heavier than the average.

The mistake arises from the failure to recognize that noted men who have shown intellectual power not infrequently were sharply limited to one or two directions, being very defective in other directions. Blind Tom is an idiot, in fact—an extreme case of what is quite common. At the other extreme was Gumbetta, who was not much more than an orator, whose cerebral speech centers were found to be highly developed. The rest of his brain was small, and his general intellectual power and judgments were decidedly defective. Ability in one or two lines may make a man famous, while he is really very defective and his brain proves to be small.

Heavy brains are not necessarily intellectual ones, or elephants would be in the class of geniuses. The material might also be pathologic and the possessor an imbecile. It often happens that men of big brain and great ability suffer from early neglect and are found in lowly employments or may remain ignorant through life. These few facts do not prove that large brains are worthless and not indicative of mental power as a rule. We cannot get away from the fact that man as an animal is supreme because of his large brain; that among races the brainiest are the highest and that in any one race the most intelligent, as a rule, are those who have the most brains.

Men of small brains are not the leaders, and no statistics of the brain weights of a few exceptional men noted for limited abilities can reverse the rule. Universities do not create brains, but merely train what exist, so that the owners are better fitted for the battle of life. Many a man is sent to college who should be handling a pick and shovel, and he never amounts to much, even though he subsequently makes his living at some very limited specialty.—American Medicine.

A Crusher.

There is a prominent official in Washington, a frequent diner at the hotels, who is most fastidious in his ideas with respect to the service rendered by waiters. One afternoon this official, feeling somewhat under the weather, decided to omit his usual substantial luncheon and to substitute therefor some light refreshment. As he entered the cafe of a fashionable hotel, a new waiter, with the grandest of manners, hastened forward to take the hat and coat of the official. He then assumed the blandest of expressions and awaited the order. Scarcely glancing at the bill of fare, the official said: "Bring me a milk toast." The waiter heard, but remained motionless, all attention to hear the rest of the anticipated order. "That's all I want," said the official, "hurry up!"

The waiter went away with disappointment and contempt stamped upon every feature of his haughty countenance. The official had not failed to observe the disposition of the waiter; so he decided not to give his usual generous fee. The waiter, after considerable delay, slowly returned with the toast. As he laid it down, he also placed the bill upon the table—a check for 25 cents, the price of the modest dish.

"That's a small check," he remarked superciliously.

"Yes," said the official, dryly. "It would have been 50 cents at a first class house."—American Spectator.
