He Laughed Last.
 A certain lady who wished to have some fun at the expense of an agent who had oftentimes solicited her to insure herself and family, asked him on one occasion if he would insure the cat. The agent, to the astonishment and no small amusement of some friends, promptly offered to do so, provided she paid the first premium down. The lady, still thinking to hoax him, expressed her willingness to do so, and placed a shilling on the table. The agent quickly produced a proposal, filled it in and obtained her signature while those present were on the tiptoe of expectancy as to what was to follow.
 "Now, madam, with your permission, may I see the cat?"
 "Certainly," she replied, at the same time pointing to a glass case which contained the stuffed remains of the poor defunct cat.
 A chorus of derisive laughter burst from all present, but to their dismay the agent turned, bowed politely, at the same time picking up the shilling, and exclaimed:
 "When that cat dies, madam, kindly call at our office and claim the insurance money. Good morning."—London Telegraph.

The First Stove.
 The most important uses of fire were taught by fire itself. As the primitive man stood near the flames of the burning tree and felt their pleasant glow he learned that fire may add to bodily comfort, and when the flames swept through a forest and overtook a deer and baked it he learned that fire might be used to improve the quality of his food. The hunt was not lost. He took a burning torch to his cave or hut and kindled him a fire on his floor of earth. His dwelling filled with smoke, but he could endure the discomfort for the sake of the fire's warmth and for the sake of the toothsome of the cooked meats. After a time a hole was made in the roof of the hut, and through this hole the smoke passed out. Here was the first stove. The primitive stove was the entire house, the floor was the fireplace and the hole in the roof was the chimney. The word "stove" originally meant "a heated room." So that if we should say that at first people lived in their stoves we would say that which is literally true. —St. Nicholas.

Practical Diagnostic Sign of Death.
 Dr. Ott of Lillebonne (through Journal des sciences medicales de Lille) suggests the following practical and simple method of ascertaining whether or not life is present: The point selected is the forearm, which is quickly accessible, is free from hair and is easily exposed. The arm is extended horizontally from the body and the forearm pronated. If the test is made in the open air a cloak is held so as to shield the part from all motion of the atmosphere. The flame of a candle is now directly applied to a spot on the forearm, which is closely watched by the observer. At the end of a few seconds a swelling rapidly forms and bursts. If it contains air or gas the tissues are lifeless. If it contains liquid or exudation life is present.

Wouldn't Trust Him.
 "Of course," said the sarcastic man, "you always do your wife's bidding."
 "Gracious! No!" replied Mr. Henpeck. "She wouldn't let me. When she goes to an auction sale she never takes me with her."—Philadelphia Press.

Contradictory.
 "Has your son arrived at years of discretion?"
 "Oh, yes. He's about to be married."
 "How you contradict yourself!"—Cleveland Leader.

All pain must be to teach some good in the end.—Browning.

FACTS ABOUT KRYPTOKS.
 Kryptok lenses should appeal to the eyes of everyone on account of the elegance of their appearance. We agree with you, who have known only the old style bifocal, that it is not pleasing in appearance or satisfactory in service. The Kryptoks are a boon to every wearer of bifocals. They appeal to those particularly who, as a matter of pride, have put off the wearing of glasses. Kryptoks are worn with ease and comfort, and the change of focus is made without apparent effort, they readily adjusting itself from long to short focus without inconvenience. The advantage of always being able to see, if you have your glasses on, is of no small consideration.
 Kryptoks are the perfected results of years of expensive experiments, and will no doubt eventually supplant all other forms of bifocals now so commonly used. If interested, write to the Columbian Bifocal Co., Temple Court, Denver, Colo., for their booklet, which will give you full information about these wonderful lenses.

"Man in the Street."
 Emerson was not the first to use this phrase in his "Conduct of Life," which was published in 1860. In the first series of the "Greville Memoirs," under date March 22, 1830, occurs the following passage:
 "Then will come the question of a dissolution, which one side affirms will take place directly, and the other that the king will not consent to it, knowing as 'the man in the street' (as we call him at Newmarket) always does, the greatest secrets of kings and being the confidant of their most hidden thoughts."
 It would appear from this that the expression was in common use among racing men in 1830.—Notes and Queries.

The Drama of the Sunset.
 We never tire of the drama of sunset. I go forth each afternoon and look into the west a quarter of an hour before sunset with fresh curiosity to see what new picture will be painted there, what new phenomenon exhibited, what new dissolving views. Every day a new picture is painted and framed, held up for half an hour in such lights as the great artist chooses and then withdrawn and the curtain falls. The sun goes down, long the afterglow gives light, the damask curtains glow along the western window, the first star is lit, and I go home.—From Thoreau's "Winter."

Power of Words.
 Words have not their import from the natural power of particular combinations of characters or from the real efficacy of certain sounds, but from the consent of those who use them and arbitrarily annex certain ideas to them, which might have signified with equal propriety by any other.—Oliver Cromwell.

Persistence.
 The way to reach or to attain to anything is to bend oneself toward it with all one's might, and we approximate it just in proportion to the intensity and the persistency of our effort to attain it.—Success Magazine.

A Hard Cut.
 Mrs. Newcast—I am thinking of taking a short holiday and visiting some of the scenes associated with my ancestors. Mrs. De Bleu Blood-Cutting—Oh, but slumming is so horribly out of date nowadays!

Where to Have a Boll.
 Thomas Bailey Aldrich, commenting once upon the trials of Job, remarked that the only proper place to have a boll was between "John" and "O'Reilly."

A Food to Work On

Work! Work!! Work!!!

Lots of energy is needed to keep up the pace. In the struggle, the man with the strong body and clear brain wins out every time.

The man of to-day needs something more than mere food; he needs a food that makes energy—a food to work on.

Although some people may not realize it, yet it is a fact, proved and established beyond doubt, that soda crackers—and this means Uneeda Biscuit—are richer in muscle and fat-making elements and have a much higher per cent. of tissue-building properties than any other article of food made from flour.

That this is becoming known more and more every day is attested by the sale of nearly 400,000,000 packages of Uneeda Biscuit, the finest soda cracker ever baked. An energy-giving food of surpassing value—sold in a package which brings it to you with all the original flavor and nutrient perfectly preserved. Truly the food to work on.

Whoever you are—whatever you are—wherever you work—Uneeda Biscuit.
