RAILROAD NEWS ITEMS.

Engine 339 went into the back-shop, Sunday.
Hurley Dye has returned home from his vacation.
Conductor G. W. Jones has returned to Creston, Iowa.
Mail weighing was discontinued at midnight, June 5th.
Machinist Riordan of Alliance went to work here, this week.

Engine 1963 is having some new flues and other repairs, this week.

Four new machinists were added to the force here, first of the week.

A new roof has been placed on the master mechanic's office, this week.

The brick flooring in the addition to the roundhouse is being finished this week.

Engineer Charles Starr returned, early in the week, from his visit in Denver.

C. D. Kenady and family, late from Grand Junction, Colo., have located in Red Cloud.

Clyde Lyle has gone over to Oberlin, Kansas, to assist in the depot at that place for a while.

Frank Green went to work, Wednesday night, under Foreman Howell of the blacksmith-shop force.

Engines 3031 and 1274 will go out of the back-shop, first of next week. The 2985 is also nearing completion.

W. H. Anderson returned to work in the shops, this week. He has been employed at Havelock for the company.

An unabridged copy of the new railroad rate bill will be found on pages two and three of this week's TRIBUNE.

A bunk car in the yard caught fire, Saturday night, but the flames were subdued before much damage was occasioned. The switch engine gave the alarm.

Frank Green, formerly employed in the blacksmith-shop here, but lately in the government service on the Isthmus of Panama, is visiting relatives here, this week.

The tool-room in the roundhouse has been moved, this week, to the main tool-room in the east end of the back-shop. It seems a good deal like going down to Red Willow siding for tools to the boys in the roundhouse. But it is economy—going away with a tool-room boy or two.

Changes From a Fish to a Bird.

The story of the early life, transformation and final death of the Chinese quail is the most remarkable that is found in the ornithological literature of the world. The narrative in all its unreasonableness is found in the story of om chung, which is the name the Chinese quail is known by when at home in the Flowery Kingdom. Celestial authorities on bird lore declare that no specimen of om chung was ever known to live a year; that they do not lay eggs, as all other known species of birds do, and, finally, that their progenitor is a slimy, four jointed worm, which has a red head and a sting on the end of its tail. This queer sea-coast worm, according to the curious legend of om chung, lays 100 eggs annually. Fifty of these become fish and the other fifty are worms of the same species as the parent. The fish that has come into existence in this curious manner also lays 100 eggs a year. Fifty of these become water denizens after the image of their parent, and the others become birds of the famed om chung family. These om chungs, or Chinese quails, never breed, and are only brought into existence as above related. We give the above not as a literal fact, but as a specimen of the Chinese idea of evolution.

Biographies as a Stimulus.

We cannot help living in some degree the lives of heroes who are constantly in our minds. Our characters are constantly being modified, shaped and molded by the suggestions which are thus held. The most helpful life stories for the average youth are not the meteoric ones, the unaccountable ones, the astonishing ones, like those of Napoleon, Oliver Cromwell and Julius Caesar. The great stars of the race dazzle most boys. They admire, but they do not feel that they can imitate them. They like to read their lives, and the encouragement from them that they do from reading the lives of those who have not startled the world so much. It is the triumph of the ordinary ability which is most helpful as an inspiration and encouragement. The life of Lincoln has been an infinitely greater inspiration to the world than the life of Napoleon or that of Julius Caesar.—O. S. Marden in Success Magazine.

Bulldogs a Menace to Health.

The bulldog is a menace to health. We have this on the authority of a noted French physician, who says that because of his large mouth the bulldog is a great purveyor of disease, especially of consumption, diphtheria and the like, as the dribbling from the heavy, loose jaws is incessant. Those who fondle bulldogs do so at a great risk. He traces many cases of infectious disease, especially among young children, to households in which bulldogs are kept as pets. When we add to this the invariable ferocity of the beast, the danger to which children and other innocent and defenseless people are exposed whenever he roams the streets or highways, we have an argument in favor of his disposal that cannot be gainsaid. Away with bulldogs!

A Versatile Parish Clerk.

The ancient parish clerk in England had many functions. Letters were not so common in those days as today, and the clerk was the learned man of the community. One of his functions was writing epitaphs, but this was not the sum of his accomplishments, as may be seen from the advertisement of John Hopkins, clerk of Salisbury in the eighteenth century:
John Hopkins, parish clerk and undertaker, sells epitaphs of all sorts and prices. Shaves neat and plays the bassoon. Teeth drawn, and the Salisbury Journal read gratis every Sunday morning at 8. A school for psalmody every Thursday evening, when my son, born blind, will play on the fiddle. Specimen epitaph on my wife:
My wife ten years not much to my ease, But now she is dead in caelo quies. Great variety to be seen within. Your humble servant, JOHN HOPKINS.
