

Nature's Way Is Best.

The function strengthening and tissue building plan of treating chronic, lingering and obstinate cases of disease as pursued by Dr. Pierce, is following after Nature's plan of restoring health.

He uses natural remedies, that is extracts from native medicinal roots, prepared by processes wrought out by the expenditure of much time and money, without the use of alcohol, and by skillful combination in just the right proportion.

Used as ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Black Cherry-bark, Queen's root, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot and Stone root, specially exert their influence in cases of lung, bronchial and throat troubles, and this "Discovery" is, therefore, a sovereign remedy for bronchitis, laryngitis, chronic coughs, catarrh and kindred ailments.

The above native roots also have the strongest possible endorsement from the leading medical writers, of all the several schools of practice, for the cure not only of the diseases named above but also for indigestion, torpor of liver, or biliousness, obstinate constipation, kidney and bladder troubles and catarrh, no matter where located.

You don't have to take Dr. Pierce's say-so alone as to this; what he claims for his "Discovery" is backed up by the writings of the most eminent men in the medical profession. A request by postal card or letter, addressed to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a little book of extracts from eminent medical authorities endorsing the ingredients of his medicines, will bring a little book free that is worthy of your attention if needing a good, safe, reliable remedy of known composition for the cure of almost any old chronic, or lingering malady.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic.

The most valuable book for both men and women is Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. A splendid 1008-page volume, with engravings and colored plates. A copy, paper-covered, will be sent to anyone sending 21 cents in one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. Cloth-bound, 31 stamps.

TURNED UPSIDE DOWN.

A Topsy Turvy Effect of the Earthquake at Stanford University.
The earthquake which produced such widespread ruin in California created some scenes which were curious and some which even bordered on the ludicrous. One of the latter sights was in the grounds of Leland Stanford, Jr.,

STATUE OF AGASSIZ ON ITS HEAD.

university, where a statue of the great scientist Agassiz was thrown from its dignified perch above the entrance to a building and stood upon its head on the ground beneath. Strangely enough, the figure of Agassiz not only remained intact, but continued after the earthquake to retain an upright though inverted position. The head of the scientist, however, was fixed in the earth, as the figure stuck down in the ground as far as the shoulders. With feet in air, the statue furnished a grotesque appearance and suggested the idea that the earthquake was caused by some demon trying to turn things upside down.

ROBERT M. M'WADE.
Former Consul General at Canton and His Unusual Case.

Robert M. McWade, who was removed last autumn from the office of consul general of the United States at Canton, China, figures in a curious controversy. Mr. McWade was removed on charges accusing him of issuing fraudulent immigration certificates to Chinese bound for the United States. Other irregularities were charged, and the accusations were embodied in a report made to the president by Herbert H. D. Peirce, then third assistant secretary of state, but since appointed minister to Norway. Mr. Peirce was commissioned to go to the orient to investigate this and other alleged scandals in the consular service. Mr. McWade contends that the charges against him are false and were made by persons who conspired to have him removed because he had interfered with criminal practices of which they were guilty. Mr. McWade also made a countercharge against Mr. Peirce, saying that the latter had violated the federal statutes by virtually compelling him to make the assistant secretary a present of a valuable tiger skin rug. Mr. Peirce says he did not ask for the rug or know at the time that it had been presented, and he has returned it.

Mr. McWade was appointed consul general at Canton by President McKinley in 1900. He was born in Ireland in 1850, came to this country in 1871, is the author of several books relating to the Irish struggle for home rule and was for twenty-two years city editor of the Philadelphia Ledger.

HOW LAVA FLOWS.
Curious Scenes Presented at the Town of Torre Annunziata.

When lava flows down a burning mountain like Vesuvius and invades the streets of populous towns like that of Torre Annunziata some curious scenes are presented. Venturesome photographers secured snapshots of the lava while it was still pursuing its onward course and carrying devastation in its train. After it had cooled and the course of the molten material and thereby been arrested photographs were also secured of places where it had broken through bridges and archways and stopped seemingly halfway in its work of destruction. The lava flow was practically confined to the southern slopes of Mount Vesuvius. At Bosco Trecase there were two streams of lava which joined and then flowed through the valley.

NAVAL DISCIPLINE.

Punishments That Are Meted Out to British Sailors.

For infraction of regulations some curious punishments are meted out in the English navy. It is an everyday occurrence, says London Tit-Bits, to see half a dozen sailors lined up on deck facing the paint work, holding their hammocks on their shoulders. At first the hammock isn't heavy, but after an hour or so it drags on one's shoulders like lead. Besides, it is not at all entertaining to stare fixedly at a square foot of painted woodwork for an hour or more at a time.

Another punishment that Jack despises is bailing with a spoon. He is placed upon the deck, with two large wooden buckets, one filled with water and the other empty. With a spoon he must dip all the water from one bucket and transfer it to the other, being, meanwhile, the butt of his comrades' jests and jeers.

Sometimes a delinquent is made to walk slowly backward and forward along the deck, nursing in his arms a six inch projectile, weighing a little over 150 pounds. Once a sailor, who laughed at the stammering speech of his commander, was made to stand upon the forebridge, in full view of the ship's crew, and laugh for an hour and a half.

Spitting upon the deck of a man-of-war is strictly prohibited. Cuspidors are placed at intervals along the deck, and these must be used. Upon some ships, when a sailor is caught spitting upon the deck, a small tub is strapped to his chest, and he is made to wear it. Any one who chooses may use this walking receptacle. The offender thus punished rarely repeats his offense.

A POTTERY TOWN.

Chingtechen Is Unlike Any Other Place in China.

For at least 900 years the town Chingtechen, in China, has been devoted to the making of pottery. Everything in Chingtechen belongs to the porcelain and earthenware industry. The houses are for the most part built of fragments either of old kilns or of the fire clay covers in which the porcelain is stacked during firing. The river bank is for miles covered with a deep stratum of broken chinaware and chips of fire clay, and the greater part of the town and several square miles of the surrounding country are built over or composed of a similar deposit.

Chingtechen is unlike anything else in China. The forms, the color, the materials used in the buildings, the atmosphere, are reminiscent of the poorer parts of a civilized industrial center. There are 104 large pottery kilns in the town. The greater part are in use only for a short season in the summer. During this busy season the population of Chingtechen rises to about 400,000 souls, but of this total nearly half are laborers drawn from a wide area of country, who come for the season, live in rows of barracklike sheds and do not bring their families with them.

Visitors to Chingtechen pass along street after street where every shop is occupied by men, women and children, all engaged in the designing, molding, painting or distributing of pottery. The river bank is crowded for three miles by junks either landing material and fuel or shipping the finished product.

Maud and Maunder.

Neither maund, a basket, nor maunder, to whine or grumble, is obsolete. Both are still in common use in South Notts and Leicestershire, at any rate. The former is used only, however, of a particular kind of basket, used for carrying butter to market. The basket is nearly square in shape and has two lids opening from the middle part, where the handle is, and it is called the "butter mawn" (maund). Maunder is usually heard in such sentences as "What are you maundering at?" A Northumbrian will say, "He's a maundering old fool," when the man of whom he is speaking strings words together in a senseless sort of way somewhat akin to mandling.—London Notes and Queries.

The Color of the Ermine.

It is a popular idea that the ermine sheds its brown summer coat and that on the approach of winter a covering of snowy white fur takes its place. This was a natural conclusion, as a possibility of a change in the color of the fur had not occurred to scientists. Experiments, however, have been made, and the brown coated ermine has been placed in a very low temperature. Almost immediately a change was visible in the color of the fur, and without shedding the creature became snowy white.

Smiles.

There are many kinds of smiles, each having a distinct character. Some announce goodness and sweetness; others betray sarcasm, bitterness and pride; some soften the countenance by their languishing tenderness; others brighten by their spiritual vivacity.—Lavater.

Threats.

I consider it a mark of great prudence in a man to abstain from threats or any contemptuous expressions, for neither of these weaken the enemy, but threats make him more cautious, and the other excites his hatred and a desire to revenge himself.—Machiavelli.

Too Sweet.

Mrs. Beach—Here is a letter from Charles. Mr. Beach—Read it. Mrs. Beach (reading)—My dearest, darlingest mother. Mr. Beach—Great heavens! The scoundrel needs more money.

He Was the Limit.

Gladys—Yes, she is going to take him for better or worse. Don't you think she is foolish? Dolly—No; he couldn't be worse!—New York Press.

WE beg to inform the public that we now have on our second floor one of the largest and most carefully selected stock of HATS in the city, at prices ranging from the little ones at 25c to the latest styles and colors in JOHN B. It was only a year ago that we ventured to put in the hat line, but it was only a few weeks until this department became so popular that we found it would be impossible to carry the line to satisfy our increasing trade in the very small room we could allot to the line, and not until now have we dared to call any attention to the hat part of our business. But from this date we feel that on account of the very convenient and well lighted room we have allotted this line we shall be able at all times to carry the stock that will satisfy the trade, both in style, quality and price. We kindly ask that you give us the opportunity of showing you this new and up-to-date line. Hoping that you will at least give this department a call, we are the usual
