

A Food to Work On

Work! Work!! Work!!!

Lots of energy is needed to keep up the pace. In the struggle, the man with the strong body and clear brain wins out every time.

The man of to-day needs something more than mere food; he needs a food that makes energy—a food to work on.

Although some people may not realize it, yet it is a fact, proved and established beyond doubt, that soda crackers—and this means Uneda Biscuit—are richer in muscle and fat-making elements and have a much higher per cent. of tissue-building properties than any other article of food made from flour.

That this is becoming known more and more every day is attested by the sale of nearly 400,000,000 packages of Uneda Biscuit, the finest soda cracker ever baked. An energy-giving food of surpassing value—sold in a package which brings it to you with all the original flavor and nutriment perfectly preserved. Truly the food to work on.

Whoever you are—whatever you are—wherever you work—Uneda Biscuit.

operation of the new direct nomination law. The old caucus system is now abrogated in Michigan, and the renomination of Governor Warner was a direct expression of the wishes of the voters comprising the Republican party in the state.

Governor Warner is of British parentage, is about forty-two years old and was brought up on a farm near Birmingham, Mich. His home is now at Farmington. He has served in the Michigan legislature and as secretary of state, is interested in brickmaking and owns several large cheese factories. He is democratic in his ways and one day recently stopped at a quick lunch counter and ordered a piece of pumpkin pie with a cup of coffee. He ate the lunch with relish as he stood by the counter with pie in one hand and a cup in the other rubbing elbows with the throng. On the counter were chunks of cheese for the taking. Governor Warner recognized it as his own make, and he munched it with satisfaction.

"We make it at Farmington; grow the pumpkins there, too, for that matter," said the governor as he laid 10 cents on the counter and walked out. "I must catch that car and get to my office. The farmers drop in to see me Saturday nights, and I like to be there to talk over crops with them. Railroad assessments? No. I just came to town with my four children to buy shoes."

again and exclaimed with unmistakable sincerity of feeling:

"I am glad, indeed, to meet you, Mr. Rosewater. I am glad to associate with a man who is no bigger than I am."

Now that the duma is dissolved by order of the czar the only organization which remains to represent the Russian people and which can show a commission from them is the permanent executive committee chosen by the outlawed parliament at its last meeting in Finland. At the head of this committee is Prince Paul Dolgoroukoff, who was vice president of the duma during its short life. He is a close friend of the president of the duma, M. Mouroumstseff, has long been connected with the liberal movement in Russia and was high in the councils of the Moscow zemstvo. He is forty-eight years of age, comes of an ancient family and is a graduate of the University of Moscow.

PRINCE DOLGOROUKOFF.

Immediately after the creation of the permanent executive committee and his election as its chairman Prince Dolgoroukoff set about establishing communication with bodies in sympathy with the aims of the dispersed parliament and getting into circulation through them the latter's manifesto. He is well to do landowner, but is willing to sacrifice the interests of his class, if necessary, in order to obtain justice and freedom for the people.

Colonel Samuel Pomeroy Colt, who is seeking to wrest the junior senatorship of Rhode Island from the tight grip of George Peabody Wetmore, is the nephew of the Colonel Samuel Colt who invented the Colt pistol and founded the Colt Arms company of Hartford, Conn. The younger Colonel Colt is president of the rubber trust and very wealthy. He is related to almost all the leading families of New England and is a "heavy swell" in social circles. He and his wife, who was a granddaughter of Governor Nathaniel Bullock of Rhode Island, were leaders of Newport's "smart set" until ten years ago, when Mrs. Colt shocked society by bringing suit for divorce, alleging misconduct between her husband and a dashing young woman who was one of a party with which the colonel had visited the White mountains. The colonel retaliated by suing James J. Van Alen, son-in-law of Mrs. William Astor and former minister to Italy, for $200,000 damages for the alienation of Mrs. Colt's affections. Colonel Colt got his title by acting as aid-de-camp to Governor Henry Lippitt of Rhode Island. He has been a member of the Rhode Island general assembly, assistant attorney general and attorney general.

Uncle Joe Cannon and about half the members of the house went down the Potomac river recently to a planked sand party. They organized a ball game and put Uncle Joe in as umpire. He was spunky as a cat and made some marvelous decisions. His star performance was when General George Harries, having made a home run, started round the bases a second time. "You're out!" shouted genial Uncle Joe. "Why?" demanded Harries. "I am entitled to run until they find the ball." "Not at all," the umpire said firmly. "Your time has expired."

William Ellis Corey, president of the United States Steel corporation, is reported to have given Mrs. Corey, who has just secured a divorce from him at Reno, Nev., $3,000,000 in securities in lieu of alimony and in acknowledgment of her course in charging him with desertion instead of accusing him of undue intimacy with other women. Mrs. Corey obtained the custody of her seventeen-year-old son, Allan. In the course of the divorce trial Miss Ada Corey, the steel magnate's own sister, testified: "I believe that my brother's associates in New York are not of the kind that tend to uplift a youth. The rich of New York—the kind my brother associates with—are demoralizing to young people. I do not think any New York man is fit to have charge of a boy of Allan's age." "Do you mean all New York men?" asked the examining lawyer. "I mean wealthy New York men," Miss Corey replied.

There have been many designations of Senator Beveridge of Indiana, ranging from Tillman's "wasp of the Wash-bash" down, but in the opinion of many Marcus Alonzo Smith's is the best. Marcus Alonzo, who is the delegate in congress from Arizona and who long fought Senator Beveridge's plan for the admission of Arizona and New Mexico as a state, said, "I think, after looking him over, that Beveridge is entitled to be known as the stud cricket of the senate."

Naturally I was more anxious to meet him than he could possibly be to meet me, and a few days ago I called upon him. "I assured him when he greeted me that I sought none of his money for library or other purposes. Carnegie looked at me searchingly. You can see that I am a small man. I am five feet four inches in height. He is no taller and is even slighter in build than I. "Suddenly he extended his hand
