NUMBER 23

Old Folks Day Observed.

Old folks day was observed, last Sunday morning, in the Methodist church. The auditorium was well filled. It was decorated with autumn leaves, wheat, corn and chrysanthemums. A choir of 14 voices with the congregation sang old hymns, the choir rendering a splendid anthem. Mrs. George H. Thomas sang a solo, "The Model Church," effectively. The pastor preached from the text, "The hoary head is a crown of glory when on the side of righteousness." A Bible 153 years old was on the pulpit, the property of William Weygant, the oldest person present, who is nearly 87 years of age. There were 40 people over 50 and under 60 years of age; 9 over 60 and under 70; 6 over 70 and under 80; one 84 and one 87. The oldest person in town is William Bailey, 88 years old. After the service the members of the congregation came forward and exchanged greetings with the old folks—to their great pleasure.

Sunday School Convention.

A Sunday School convention will be held in Danbury, November 7th, afternoon and evening. State Secretary Steidley to be present upon both occasions and to deliver addresses. These alone will be well worth going to hear. The convention will embrace the Sunday Schools of Lebanon, Danbury and Marion. There will be an interesting and instructive set of subjects presented in papers and discussed. All interested in the great and vital work of the Sunday Schools should make an effort—some sacrifice if need be—to be present. There will be delegates from McCook, Indianola and elsewhere present.

Union Temperance Meeting.

The union temperance meeting held in the Baptist church, last Sunday evening, under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon league, drew a crowded house. Rev. Green of the Baptist church addressed the meeting, being introduced in a neat little speech by the president of the local organization, Howe Smith. Rev. Green removed his gloves and went after the liquor traffic in his characteristic energetic fashion, to the satisfaction and enjoyment of many of his hearers. The doctrine of temperance and the practice of the same are needed in McCook and the Anti-Saloon league is making an effort in that direction. Speed its efforts.

Reduced Rate For the "Kilties."

Manager Bixler has secured from the Burlington company and announces that a reduced fare of one and one-third has been given from all points for parties of ten or more who desire to hear the famous "Kilties" band, in the Bixler opera house, November 13th. This ought to largely increase the attendance on that occasion. Pass the word along.

DR. ALONZO P. WELLES

Hears the Call and Passes on to His Reward While Asleep.

Early Monday morning, the citizens of McCook were startled and saddened by the news of the sudden death of Dr. A. P. Welles during the earlier hours of the morning. Mrs. Welles was with the doctor until shortly before midnight, when she retired, leaving him feeling as well as usual. Early in the following morning she called the doctor, whom she found sitting up in bed—dead.

Funeral services were conducted in the Methodist church by Rev. Carman, Thursday afternoon, many friends paying a last tribute by their presence and in a wealth of flowers. The members of the G. A. R. post and circle attended—but there was no ceremony.

There goes out to Mrs. Welles, in this sudden and great sorrow, the deepest sympathy of the people of this city, where her husband has been so long known and respected.

(DR. ALONZO P. WELLES was born in Steuben county, N. Y., October 29, 1845, where he lived the early years of his life. In 1861, October 6, he enlisted in the Union army as a member of company I, 85th regiment of New York volunteers. In April, 1864, he and his father were taken prisoners near Plymouth, N. C., and they remained in the prisons of Charleston and Florence, S. C., and in Andersonville, until paroled from the latter on March 1st, 1865. Receiving an honorable discharge as sergeant a few hours after his parole, he went to procure some coffee for his father. Upon returning from his errand, the father could not be found and for ten years no word came of him, when the war department at Washington sent the doctor his father's pocket diary with the information the father was dead and buried somewhere in the south-land,—the exact place being still unknown. The mother in York state not hearing from husband or son for long while and deeming them both dead, moved with her people to Illinois, where the son afterwards found her.

After the war he attended and was graduated from the Hahnemann College of Medicine, Chicago, where he practiced one year after graduation, when he moved to Aurora, Nebraska. After a short residence there he went to Colorado and thence to McCook in the spring of 1888, residing here until his death. He was a member of the American Institution of Homeopathy and of the Nebraska State Medical association, whose meetings he has annually attended until the last year. Two years since he was the association's president. He has been master workman of the A. O. U. W. and medical examiner of the order and of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Was several times a delegate to the grand lodge of Nebraska. Held insurance in both the Workman and the Degree of Honor. Was prominent in G. A. R. circles,—commander and adjutant at different times. Became a member of the McCook Methodist church in Sept., 1861, and for years was chorister and held other official positions in church. Was Sunday-school superintendent at the time of his death. Was a member of the Brotherhood of St. Paul, and the Anti-Saloon league's first president.

Departed was an educated, cultured, patriotic Christian gentleman.

Some two years since he was compelled by increasing disabilities to discontinue the active practice of medicine, going to Lincoln for an operation and treatment, twice to Chicago and Lake Michigan summer resorts, once to Excelsior Springs, Mo. Since his return home about a month since he has rapidly failed, although he was out on the street as late as last Saturday.

His was a complication of diseases,—asthma, dropsy and heart trouble. Mrs. Welles had been reading to him untie-eleven o'clock, Sunday night, when he seemed as well as usual. Early Monday morning she found him sitting up in bed as she at first supposed asleep. Repeated calls brought the said conviction that his spirit had winged its flight—his life had gone out quietly and peacefully in his sleep.

Scotch Music.

The musician to properly render and interpret Scotch music must be in touch with its history, legend and story, for all the songs of Auld Scotia have their legend or story. Take the beautiful Loch Lomond, "O ye'll tak' the high road an' I'll be in Scotland a-fore ye", is the advice to his sweet heart of a Jacobite who was convicted at Carlisle. By the "low road" he meant the grave, by the "high road" was meant that by which the girl would return to her home. Death would relieve his spirit so that it would be in Scotland before she crossed the border.

Annie Laurie was the daughter of a rich farmer; she loved a foreman named Wallace for which he was discharged. He went to his home in Maxwellton and was taken very ill; Annie went to him and waited on him until to his death. It is believed the song was composed on his death bed.

"Maxwellton Braes are bonnie
Where early fa's the dew,
An' it's there that Annie Laurie
Gie'd me her promise true.
An' ne'er forgot t' will be
An' for bonnie Annie Laurie,
I'd lay me down an' dee."

The Kilties understand how to render and bring out the beautiful melody and pathos of the Scotch music and it will be a treat that should not be missed when they appear at the Bixler opera house, November 13th, afternoon and evening.

The "G. Gs." Entertain.

Halloween party at the "G. Gs." in the club rooms over the post office, Wednesday evening, was up to the lofty traditions of the club. The young ladies to the number of one score received an equal array of young gentlemen at 8:30 of the clock, the hostesses being en masque and gingham aprons being their similar and distinctive raiment. The reception room was fancifully decorated along Halloween lines and an Egyptian booth, where the gentleman were subjected to the art of palmistry, was an added charm. Red was the predominating color in the tasteful dining room decorations. Candles shed their soft rays over the festal board, as the young ladies served an appropriate supper in four courses. Altogether the affair was voted a notable one by the young folks.
