For Sale.

Dining table and chairs, and other furniture. Enquire at the Perry house on Monroe street.

One Held, the Other Released.

Sheriff Peterson made an important capture at Oxford, Sunday last, when he landed the two rascals who have been passing old southern state bank currency, all along the Burlington from Hastings to Denver. Julius Kunert accompanied him and assisted in the identification. Both men, a tall and a short man, were brought to McCook on No. 13, Sunday noon, and lodged in the county jail. The short man gives the name of George Monroe, the tall man that of Thomas Rogers.

Monday, both men were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Berry. Monroe was fined $100 and costs for securing money under false pretenses, and is now serving time in the county jail. Rogers was dismissed for lack of evidence.

Shortly after his release he went to a local hardware store and bought some saws and files, evidently for the purpose of releasing Monroe during Monday night. During the afternoon Rogers was again arrested and held for some time on advice from Wray, Colorado, where these scamps had both operated, but he was subsequently released and left the city on train No. 14, Monday night.

The "currency" passed here and elsewhere was absolutely worthless paper, reprints of the ante-bellum issue by the Merchants and Planters State Bank of Savannah, Georgia, of ten-dollar denomination, and pasted back to back. Four of these bills got into circulation here. At Denver 'tis claimed they passed several hundred dollars' worth, and word comes of their success all along the Burlington, between Hastings and Denver.

When Trainmaster E. E. Young of Lincoln recently was transferred to Denver, railroad men began to speculate on the next change to be announced. Mr. Eaton has been a division superintendent for about two years, possibly less, going from the position of superintendent of transportation at Omaha to McCook as division superintendent. When he went to that division it was said things were in a bad shape. Mr. Eaton went to work with a will and soon after it was reported that conditions had improved and that business was moving in good shape. Recently it has been reported that there was much congestion on the west end of the division. This, it was assumed by many, was because of lack of facilities. Denver papers recently published a story that Burlington officials had decided on new yards and terminals at Denver to relieve conditions there.

Mr. Eaton is well known in Lincoln, where he resided for many years and where he was connected with the telegraph and dispatching service. He was regarded as a first class railroad man. He has spent many years in the service of the Burlington. His friends would not be surprised should he go to some other road and land in a better position.

Sup't Eaton Has Resigned.

Last Friday evening, Sup't Cornelius L. Eaton of the McCook division sent in his resignation of this position to General Sup't Byram at Lincoln. It is to go into effect January 1st, 1907. Mr. Eaton states that he has no idea who will be successor. No reason is publicly announced as to the reason for resignation, but the strenuous and the incidental raw-hiding of the position seem to be discouraging factors that the hardest and sturdiest weary of.

Mr. Eaton has been superintendent of the McCook division for somewhat over a year, and his work has been difficult and constant, and it is the opinion of railroad men that he has improved almost impossible conditions materially.

Of the resignation the Lincoln State Journal says:

C. L. Eaton, Burlington superintendent at McCook, has resigned, the resignation to take effect on January 1. Mr. Eaton confirmed this statement by telephone to the Journal last evening, but gave no reason for his resignation. He said he had no idea who is to succeed him. General Superintendent Byram could not be reached last evening. As the resignation is made public nearly a month in advance of its taking effect, it is probable that the name of his successor will not be announced for some time.

When Trainmaster E. E. Young of Lincoln recently was transferred to Denver, railroad men began to speculate on the next change to be announced. Mr. Eaton has been a division superintendent for about two years, possibly less, going from the position of superintendent of transportation at Omaha to McCook as division superintendent. When he went to that division it was said things were in a bad shape. Mr. Eaton went to work with a will and soon after it was reported that conditions had improved and that business was moving in good shape. Recently it has been reported that there was much congestion on the west end of the division. This, it was assumed by many, was because of lack of facilities. Denver papers recently published a story that Burlington officials had decided on new yards and terminals at Denver to relieve conditions there.

Mr. Eaton is well known in Lincoln, where he resided for many years and where he was connected with the telegraph and dispatching service. He was regarded as a first class railroad man. He has spent many years in the service of the Burlington. His friends would not be surprised should he go to some other road and land in a better position.
