

THE WHITE PLAGUE

SYSTEMATIC WARFARE WAGED TO WIPE OUT CONSUMPTION.

Warning That Intemperance Increases the Liability to Contract Disease—Neglected Colds a Prolific Source.

Organized effort is now being made throughout the United States to fight consumption. A warning is given against intemperate habits, which increase the liability to consumption while spitting in public places is deprecated, as the disease is frequently contracted from dried sputum.

Colds should not be neglected, as they leave the lungs in a peculiarly receptive condition for the tubercular germ. The following simple formula will break up a cold in twenty-four hours. A leading authority on lung trouble says that when prepared from pure ingredients, it will cure any cough that is curable.

Take half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure); two ounces glycerine and half pint good whisky. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

The ingredients can be secured from any good prescription druggist at small cost, and to avoid substitution should be purchased separately and mixed in your own home.

Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) is put up in half-ounce vials for dispensing. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper, with the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, O.—plainly printed thereon. There are many rank imitations of Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), which are put out under various names, such as Concentrated Oil of Pine, Pine Balsam, etc. Never accept these as a substitute for the Pure Virgin Oil of Pine, as they will invariably produce nausea and never effect the desired result.

POTENT LIQUOR IS SAKE.

Lafcadio Hearn's Testimony as to Strength of Japanese Wine.

There is no liquor in the world upon which a man becomes so quickly intoxicated as Japanese sake (rice wine), and yet none of which the effects last so short a time. The intoxication is pleasant as the effect of opium or hashish. It is soft, pleasant, luminous exhilaration, everything becoming brighter, happier, lighter; then you get very sleepy.

At Japanese dinners it is the rule to become slightly exhilarated, but not to drink enough to talk thickly or walk crooked. The ability to drink at banquets requires practice—long practice.

There are banquets of many kinds, and the man who is invited to one at which extensive drinking may be expected is careful to start in upon an empty or almost empty stomach. By not eating one can drink a good deal. The cups are very small and of many curious shapes. One may be expected to empty 50. A quart of sake is a good deal; two quarts require iron nerves to stand. But among the Japanese there are wonderful drinkers. At a military officer's banquet a captain offered me a tumbler holding a good pint of sake. I almost fainted at the sight of it, for it was only the first. But a friend said to me: "Only drink a little and pass it back," which I did. Stronger heads emptied cup after cup like water.—Letters of Lafcadio Hearn.

It is great folly not to part with your own faults, which is possible, but to try, instead, to escape from other people's faults, which is impossible.—Marcus Aurelius.

A cheerful life is often better than the solemn truth.

MAY BE COFFEE

That Causes all the Trouble.

When the house is afire, it's like a body when disease begins to show, it's no time to talk but time to act—delay is dangerous—remove the cause of the trouble at once.

"For a number of years," says a Kansas lady, "I felt sure that coffee was hurting me, and yet, I was so fond of it, I could not give it up. I paltered with my appetite and of course yielded to the temptation to drink more. At last I got so bad that I made up my mind I must either quit the use of coffee or die.

"Everything I ate distressed me, and I suffered severely almost all the time with palpitation of the heart. I frequently woke up in the night with the feeling that I was almost gone,—my heart seemed so smothered and weak in its action that I feared it would stop beating. My breath grew short and the least exertion set me to panting. I slept but little and suffered from rheumatism.

"Two years ago I stopped using the old kind of coffee and began to use Postum Food Coffee, and from the very first I began to improve. It worked a miracle! Now I can eat anything and digest it without trouble. I sleep like a baby, and my heart beats full, strong and easily. My breathing has become steady and normal, and my rheumatism has left me. I feel like another person, and it is all due to quitting coffee and using Postum Food Coffee, for I haven't used any medicine and none would have done any good as long as I kept drinking with coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. "There's a Reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. All grocers.

WHERE PEOPLE BELIEVE IN OMENS

Washington, self-admitted center of culture and enlightenment, looks upon superstition as a form of devil worship that vanished with witch burning. Yet within two hours' ride of the capitol are communities that, despite public schools and church choir factions and problems and things, are as deeply saturated with superstition as the scholarly bats that flitted through the intellectual twilight of the middle ages.

In the upper reaches of the Virginia counties that flank the Blue Ridge on the east and climb the mountain shoulders until they look down over the summit into the Shenandoah valley, the daily life of the hill dweller is hedged in with countless signs and omens, all portents of evil. Through them he walks gingerly, fearful lest in propitiating one genius of disaster he offend against another.

A religious and church-going folk are these—on Sunday. The rest of the week they devote to keeping out of the clutches of "bad luck," the modern form of that disagreeable and uncomfortable old god of the Zidonians, Baal, who visited them with dire and original punishments when he didn't get his regular allowance of broiled baby. They don't broil babies, these latter-day worshippers, but they keep themselves in perpetual hot water.

"Hance," said a sturdy old farmer of Big Cobbler mountain to his son, as the boy started out on a June morning to hoe the weed choked corn, "ther meen's in the secon' quarter, an' ef yer chop 'em down, them weeds 'll grow worse' ever. Better wait 'll nex' week.

"Sides, I want yer ter go fer ther doctor. Yer ma's allin' 'this mawnin', an' 'er durned whippo'll set on ther horse block an' holler 'las' night 'tel I clodded him off. Yer know what that means!"

Whipporwills, that the ignorant may know as much as Hance, mean early and sudden death. For years they had made that block a rendezvous for their nightly chorals, while the family remained healthy as hostlers. But it shook not the old man's belief in the faith of his fathers. The doctor was hurriedly fetched, only to find ma recovered "as peart as a cricket."

"Don't yer put that sassafras wood in ther kitchen fire!" cried the old lady to her helping hand one day, a 12-year-old girl, as yet unlearned in the lore of the hills. "Every single cow on ther place 'll go dry ef yer do. Go an' put it in pa's fire."

A listening city man wondered at this fine distinction.

"Law, chile," sagely explained the old lady, "it's jes' puttin' sassafras in ther kitchen fire what makes cows go dry; it don't make no diffrence in no other fire. Why, when I wuz er gal over'n Rappahannock—" and wise saws and ancient instances were copiously cited to sustain the theory of interrelation of sassafras, kitchen fire, and cow.

Sometimes they hit it. One day the city man bent on a little exercise in wood chopping, strolled through the house with an ax a-shoulder.

"Git outer hyah 'ith that," roared the old man in pallid terror. "Don't yer know it's ther wors' luck in ther worl' ter tote er ax thro er house? What yer thinkin' 'bout, anyhow?"

An hour later, as the city man approached the dwelling, his ears were flooded with a torrent of high treble recriminations mingled with a deep flow of apologies. They gushed from the door and window. The city man betook himself back to the placid forest, where he abode until the gusty Niagara had subsided. As he emerged the old man met him.

"I knowed yer'd make trouble 'ith that air ax," he said accusingly. "Yer hadn't got fer ez ther barn 'fo' ther old 'oman foun' er jug er moonshine hid under ther bed, an' I'd done swore off las' Cris'mas fer er year. Let this be er lesson ter yer, m' son, an' don't never tote er ax thro er house no mo'."

The city man began to believe there was something in it.

"Peacocks won't stay 'ith us," explained the old lady when the city man suggested them as an ornament to the velvety blue grass lawn. "They won't stay 'ith po' folks.

"We used ter have er beautiful pair of 'em. They stayed here fere years 'til we los' that law suit 'ith ther Cyarters an' got po'. Ther very nex' night them peacocks went down ther mount'n, pas' Dorse Heflin's place an' ole man Cooser's, who's both po' folks, an' didn't stop 'tel they got plum' ter Colonel Waller's, thet owns 'bout half o' Warren county.

"They've been ther ever since, an' they'll stay ther 'tel ther Wallers gits po', and then they'll move on. No, 'tain't no use ter git peacocks hyah."

One sign the sexes split on. The men hold it is worse to drink whiskey on the waxing, the women on the waning, moon. They agree, however, that a given and sufficient amount will make a man twice as drunk and twice as long when the moon is on the wane. So it is simply a question for dialecticians and prohibitionists.

"That fool put 'em on ther barn on ther dark of ther moon," complained the old man when he saw the shingles curling up like the bow of a toboggan; "an' he laid ther rail fence in ther pasture on the dark, too—time I wuz sick an' couldn't git out an' learn him some sense. That's why it's sunk two rails deep in ther ground 'ready. It'll go plum' out er sight in ther earth in er couple er years. 'Co's 'twus ther moon!"

Keep the Kidneys Well and the Kidneys Will Keep You Well.

Sick, suffering, languid women are learning the true cause of bad backs and how to cure them.

Soon after I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills I passed several gravel stones. I got well and the trouble has not returned. My back is good and strong and my general health better."

Caution.

Imitations have been placed upon the market so closely resembling Alcock's Plasters in general appearance as to be well calculated to deceive. It is, however, in general appearance only that they compare with Alcock's, for they are not only lacking in the best elements which have made Alcock's so efficient, but are often harmful in their effects. Remember that Alcock's are the original and only genuine porous plasters—the best external remedy known—and when purchasing plasters the only safe way is to always insist upon having Alcock's.

By Endless Chain.

"Speaking of the endless chain prayer that is going the rounds," said the woman with the cheerful voice, "I can't see what good that can do, unless, maybe, it might start some poor wretch on the road to glory, but I got an awfully nice silk petticoat through an endless chain once. The manufacturers sent letters asking for five names and a ten-cent piece. I sent five names and the ten-cent piece, not thinking much about it, just trying it, and it wasn't long before they sent me this lovely silk petticoat. It was the nicest sort of silk, too. As long as I wore it it didn't crock."

MOTHERHOOD

The first requisite of a good mother is good health, and the experience of maternity should not be approached without careful physical preparation, as a woman who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from native roots and herbs, more successfully than by any other medicine because it gives tone and strength to the entire feminine organism, curing displacements, ulceration and inflammation, and the result is less suffering and more children healthy at birth. For more than thirty years has been the standby of American mothers in preparing for childbirth. Noteworth Mrs. James Chester, of 427 W. 35th St., New York says in this letter:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I wish every expectant mother knew about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A neighbor who had learned of its great value at this trying period of a woman's life urged me to try it and I did so, and I cannot say enough in regard to the good it did me. I recovered quickly and am in the best of health now."

MRS. JAMES CHESTER

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a successful remedy for the peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women. It has cured almost every form of Female Complaints, Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation, Ulcerations and Organic Diseases of Women and is invaluable in preparing for Childbirth and during the Change of Life.
