The Surprisers Were Surprised.

On Saturday evening, chapter X, P.
E. O., met at the home of Mrs. A. C.
Ebert, avowedly to welcome Mrs. Humphrey, who comes by demit from the chapter at Oxford. After the formal words of welcome, Mrs. Schobel was called to account for the use of her time in P. E. O. interests, and was presented with a P. E. O. emblem ring, as a token of appreciation from the members. The president, feeling that she was very wise, kept herself busy trying to hold off the serving of refreshments. Suddenly the body of ladies were greatly surprised by the entrance of ten fine looking men, who were all decked out in shining stars of prodigious proportions, and lettered "A. U. K. B. I. L." The "chief" immediately began making a speech, and read a beautifully rhymed address, at the close presenting it, with an envelope, to Mrs. Britt, the president, who was now most thoroughly surprised of all, on finding the envelope contained a check for $100.00, payable to the treasurer of chapter X. The ladies, being thus assured of their ability to meet all convention expenses, gave the P. E. O.
"yell" out of the fullness of happy hearts. If these "A. U. K. B. I. L." are "birds," as they stoutly maintained, the P. E. O. sisters pronounce their "B. I.
L." the most beautiful they have ever seen. Long live the A. U. K. B. I. L. L!
May their number never grow less, nor their hearts any smaller. * * *

A Memorial Evening Social.

The young men of the Congregational Christian Endeavor gave a Memorial evening social to the members and friends of the C. E. Society at the church, Thursday evening. About thirty-five of the young people made their way through the storm to the church, which was artistically decorated with flags, and the national emblem.
The following program was rendered.

and speaks admirably for the young men who had it in charge.

Entertains the A.W.L.-Os.

Mrs. G. H. Thomas was the hostess at the regular convocation of the "A.W.L.- Os", Tuesday evening. While a regular session, the meeting was somewhat unusual in character, with a wedding announcement feature.
The guests were each given an envelope containing an advertisement of a humorous character which they read before the club, concluding with an announcement by Mrs. J. R. McCarl of the wedding -- June 4th, -- of Miss Ida McCarl and G. L. Burney. This interesting ceremony concluded Miss Mc-Carl presented each guest with a piece of wedding cake in a tiny box tied with club colors. Miss Gertrude Kenagy secured the coveted ring; Miss Minnie Rowell the dime; but the identity of the drawer of the thimble is still misty.

A Surprise Kitchen Shower.

The Misses Kenagy were the authors and finishers of a surprise kitchen shower on the person of Miss Minnie Rowell, last Monday evening, at the home of Mrs. H. N. Rosebush. The teachers of the public schools were guests of the memorable occasion, which announced the approaching nuptials of Miss Rowell and Dr. Jones of Holdrege.

One Question Too Much.

The servant problem was under discussion, and "experiences" were being related. Several women stopped talking at the same moment, and the silence, which had lasted nearly two seconds, was broken by a young matron, who said: "But, ladies, that's all nothing to what happened to me last week.
My cook left me, you know, for no earthly reason except that she told the chambermaid we starved the help.
The idea! Well, I went to the intelligence office and after a long search found the girl I wanted to take Maggie's place. She answered every question to my satisfaction until I asked her, 'Why did you leave your last place?' Then she got red in the face, threw her head back and said in an angry tone: 'Because I wanted a change. Why did your last cook leave?' And before I could answer she turned away, saying, 'You'll not suit.' Now, isn't that dreadful?' And then all the other women told "dreadful" stories.—New York Tribune.

An Ancient Irish Custom.

In the district known as "the barony of Forth," in County Wexford, Ireland, is to be found a race of hardworking, industrious peasants living in thatched cottages with clean, whitewashed walls which by their perfect whiteness at once arrest the attention of the visitor.
These people differ in many respects from the inhabitants of the other parts of the same county and have habits and customs peculiar to themselves.
When a funeral takes place two wooden crosses are provided. On the way to the cemetery a halt is made at a certain spot by the side of the road.
Here prayers are said for the deceased, after which one cross is deposited in a hawthorn bush or under it. The procession then goes on its way, and after the interment the other cross is fixed at the head of the grave. This strange custom dates from time immemorial, as the great pile of crosses by the roadside indicates.

How to Stop Runaways.

The policeman had stopped the runaway very neatly. Now, though puffing a little, he was quite calm.

"It's nothing to stop a runaway," he said as he wiped his foam covered hands. "It is like jumping on or off a moving car—dead easy when you know how. What you want to do when you see a runaway tearing toward you is not to stand still, but to run all your might in the same way the nag's a-going. Then, when it catches up to you, you grab the bridle and keep a-running. Then you are not thrown, you are not trampled on, and in a minute or two the horse slows down. I've stopped a dozen runaways without an accident. It's part of our training, and the policeman who would refuse to take a chance would be disgraced the same as a soldier who would refuse to fight."—New York Press.

Waked Him Up.

"Fare!"
The passenger gave no heed.

"Fare, please!"
Still was the passenger oblivious.

"By the ejaculatory term 'fare,'" said the conductor, "I imply no reference to the state of the weather, the complexion of the admirable blond you observe in the contiguous seat, nor even to the quality of service vouchsafed by this philanthropic corporation. I merely allude in a manner perhaps lacking in delicacy, but not in conciseness, to the monetary obligation set up by your presence in this car and suggest that, without contemplating your celebrity with cunctation, you liquidate."

At this point the passenger emerged from his trance.—Columbus Dispatch.

Tree Fountain.

An extraordinary curiosity is to be seen in the Swiss village of Gunten, on Lake Thun. It takes the form of a natural tree fountain, the water flowing continuously from a spout high up in the tree. About twenty years ago the water from a spring was conducted through a shaft, and the supply pipe was directed through the cut trunk of a young poplar tree which was rammed in the ground. After a short time the trunk rooted, branches followed, and now there is a splendid top growth.

Friendship.

Friendship is a vase which when it is flawed by heat or violence or accident may as well be broken at once.
It never can be trusted after. The more graceful and ornamental it was the more clearly do we discern the hopelessness of restoring it to its former state. Coarse stones, if they are fractured, may be cemented again precious ones, never.—Lander.

Great Laughters.

The giant laughters have been men-Shakespeare and Rabelais. I do not regard Cervantes and Sterne as laugh-ers. They are smilers. They are not jolly roasters and guffawers. They are not fat, rotund, jovial hilarities. They are thin, lean, ironic smiles. A smile is a diluted laugh. Sterne is a diluted Rabelais.—James Douglas in M. A. P.

Like Talking Shop.

A stockbroker whose mind is always full of business was asked a few days ago how old his father was.

"Well," said he abstractedly, "he's quoted at eighty, but there is every prospect that he will reach par and possibly be at a premium."

A Rebuff.

"Miss May," began Mr. Hoamley, "would you—er—be mad if I were to kiss you?"
"Not necessarily," replied the bright girl, "but I would certainly be mad to let you."

Are we to mark this day with a white or a black stone?—Cervantes.
