ORDER OF HEARING ON PROBATE OF WILL.

In the county court of Red Willow county, Nebraska.
In the matter of the estate of Edgar B. Evans, deceased.
On reading and filing the petition of J. E. Kelley praying that the instrument filed on the 14th day of July, 1907, and purporting to be a duly authenticated copy of the last will and testament of the said deceased, may be proved, approved, probated, allowed and recorded as the last will and testament of the said Edgar B. Evans, deceased, late of Boston, Massachusetts. Ordered that July 20, 1907, at one o'clock p. m., is assigned for hearing said petition and all persons interested in said matter may appear at the county court to be held in and for said county and show cause why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted, and it is further ordered that notice of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof be given to all persons interested in said matter by publishing a copy of this order in the McCook Tribune, a weekly newspaper, printed in said county for three successive weeks prior to said date of hearing. Dated July 5, 1907. J. C. MOORE, County Judge.

It Was His Dog.
An automobile dashed along the country road. Turning a curve, it came suddenly upon a man with a gun on his shoulder and a weak, sick looking old dog beside him. The dog was directly in the path of the motor car. The chauffeur sounded his horn, but the dog did not move—until he was struck. After that he did not move. The automobile stopped and one of the men got out and came forward. He had once paid a farmer $10 for killing a calf that belonged to another farmer. This time he was wary. "Was that your dog?" "Yes." "You own him?" "Yes." "Looks as if we'd killed him." "Certainly looks so." "Very valuable dog?" "Well, not so very." "Will $5 satisfy you?" "Yes." "Well, then, here you are." He handed a $5 bill to the man with the gun and added pleasantly, "I'm sorry to have broken up your hunt." "I wasn't going hunting," replied the other as he pocketed the bill. "Not going hunting? Then what were you doing with the dog and the gun?" "Going down to the woods to shoot the dog."—Youth's Companion.

Story of a Clever Jackdaw.
In a small cottage in Herefordshire there lived a family who owned a very large but clever jackdaw which was noted for its very witty sayings. One day the jackdaw saw the lid of the stewpot partly off, so thinking he should like a meat dinner he went out and caught a frog and put it in the boiling water in the stewpot, which had in some pieces of beef. After this the jackdaw went quietly back to his perch and waited till dinner time. All went well till the cook began to share the dinner out before the family. Every time she pulled a piece of meat out of the pot the jackdaw said, "That's not mine; that's not mine," till at last the cook pulled out the frog, when he exclaimed in a very triumphant voice, "That's mine; that's mine." The shock nearly made the guests faint away, but nevertheless the jackdaw got his meat dinner, while the others did without for a change.—London Answers.

An Agricultural Surprise.
"Eastern visitors to the west are generally prepared for any phenomenal showing in the line of agriculture, stock raising and the like," says a Colorado man, "but once in awhile they are taken by surprise. A New Hampshire man who was spending his vacation on a ranch of a relative in Colorado went out one morning to inspect a large incubator in which the young chicks were hatching. In one corner of the incubator a neglected peach seed encouraged by the warmth of the atmosphere had burst, and a tiny sprout several inches long was growing out of it. "Suffering Caesar!" exclaimed the New Hampshire man as this caught his eye. "Do you hatch out your peaches in this country?"—Kansas City Independent.

Legend of the Moss Rose.
A German tradition gives the origin of the moss rose as follows: An angel came to earth in mortal guise. He sought a place of shelter and repose after his labors of love, but every door was shut against the heavenly visitor. At length the angel, being very weary, sank upon the ground and over him a rosebush spread like a tent. It caught upon its outspread leaves the falling dew which would otherwise have parched the messenger of love. Waking, the angel said to the rose: "Thou hast yielded the shelter that man denied." A proof of my love shall with the abide." And the green moss gathered about the stem. While the dewdrops shone like a diadem, crowning the blushing flower.—Circle.

Story of a Greek Saint.
A member of the Royal Geographical society gives this little story of a Greek saint: "Our good St. Blasius gave us the phrase 'drunk as Blasius,' for this saint was pleasantly done to death by having his flesh torn off by wool combs, and so he became the patron of the English wool combers, and as a high feast was kept up on his day and the people who frequented the feast were called Blasius so the saying grew into the English tongue and remains there fixed and useful."

Both Deceived.
Customer—You have deceived me outrageously! You told me that I would be provided with a good watch as long as I lived, and now after barely a fortnight it is quite good for nothing! Watchmaker—But it is not my fault that you were so thin and sick looking!—Translated For Transatlantic Tales From Fliegende Blatter.

Advice They Heed.
"Yes, I'm going abroad at once. I gotta go." "Oh, you mustn't let the doctors scare you!" "I got this from a lawyer."—Washington Herald.

HOWARD GOULD.

Howard Gould.
His Unusual Troubles With His Wife, Who Was Once an Actress.
It is a rare day when some member of the Gould family is not mentioned in the papers. Howard Gould, whose matrimonial troubles have recently been attracting attention, is the third son of the late Jay Gould and was born in New York in 1871. It was in 1898 that he created a sensation by marrying the actress Katherine Clemmons, a daughter of a United States army officer who was killed in the west in the Custer campaign. Mrs. Gould was at first given the cold shoulder by her relatives, but her success in winning the friendship of the Ger-

A LUCKY JUNE BRIDE.
Mrs. Albert Zabriskie Gray, Her Wedding Trousseau and Her Dowry.
The wedding of Miss Marian Anthon Fish to Albert Zabriskie Gray at St. Bartholomew's church, New York, was the largest and most fashionable wedding of the present season in New York, and the list of guests included practically all of the Four Hundred and some not included in that mystic circle. In fact, the number invited to the church ceremonies was about 5,000, but not so many were invited to the reception at the bride's home, as, of course, they could not have been accommodated. The Fishes and the Grays are not only "old families," but families prominent in the history of New York for a century or more back.

Mrs. Albert Zabriskie Gray.
The bride's father, Stuyvesant Fish, until recently president of the Illinois Central railroad, has been especially in the public eye on account of his controversy with E. H. Harriman over railroad and insurance matters. He is a son of the late Hamilton Fish, secretary of state in the administration of General Grant. Mrs. Fish is one of the leaders of the Four Hundred and is a niece of the late Professor Charles Anthon, the great Greek and Latin scholar. The father of the groom is Judge John Clinton Gray of the New York court of appeals. Mrs. Gray, who wore a princess robe of heavy white satin when she stood before the altar, has dark eyes and hair. Her trousseau cost $250,000, and she received a gift of $1,000,000 from her father.
