RAILROAD NEWS ITEMS.

Brakeman Herman Weisenberger is a new addition to the train service, this week.

Machine-shop Foreman J. D. Young has purchased the N. J. Johnson dwelling-house on corner of Madison and Dudley streets.

The Burlington has five hobos in county jail at Red Cloud charged with robbing Burlington freight cars, bound over to district court.

Conductor S. E. Harvey's household goods arrived, Saturday, and they hope shortly to be cosily ensconced in their pretty new home opposite the Catholic church.

Engineer J. W. Bartholoma departed, Saturday night, for Kansas City, on a visit of several weeks, which will embrace St. Louis, Peoria, Chicago, and possibly further east.

The "Merry Widow," 3186, has failed in steam producing qualities, and has not been out of the yard since her arrival here. It seems that when lignite doesn't throw fire, it doesn't make steam.

It is reported that a high-up official of the Burlington railroad, who speaks knowingly, has said that if a beet sugar factory is built at St. Francis, the branch line from Benkelman up the south fork to the saint city will be completed by the time the factory is ready for business.—Benkelman News.

The maximum pay of an experienced locomotive engineer in England is $11.68 per week, or about what an average American engineer receives for a round trip. The average pay of other railroad employes in railroad service in England, not including station masters, clerks and laborers, is $6.00. Which would look like about seventeen cents to American common laborer, who now proudly and disdainfully declines any offer short of two or three dollars a day.

Heater boiler No. 1 is to receive a new set of flues.

Conductor Carmony is laying off and Myers has his car.

Engines 1662 and 313 were run out of the tackshop this week.

Engineer Steve Finn has purchased the G. H. Thomas residence.

Tom Hunt is nursing a broken arm, resulting from falling off a horse.

About four inches of snow fell between Eckley and Akron, Tuesday.

J. S. Miller, wheelman, is in Lincoln, this week, during the M. W. A. doings.

Conductor Parkes has been on furlough, this week, and Davis has the car.

Engine 280 is in this week for pilot and other minor repairs in the round house.

O. M. Jackson, who formerly broke out of here, re-entered the service close of last week.

A. V. Anderson has been transferred to Roggen, Colorado, and Mr. Frederickson is the new night man at Trenton.

Brakeman W. A. Brown returned to work, yesterday, after the expiration of sixty days' furlough, which was spent on his Colorado homestead.

Machinist D. O. Hewitt went down to Omaha, Monday, on business connected with his electric light plant at Orleans. He will be off about ten days.

During the month of March the Burlington saved $594,540 in operating expenses over the monthly average and at the same time a comparison of net revenue makes the increase in earnings $101,708.

A couple of experts from the locomotive works at Schenectady, N. Y., have been here, this week, trying to make the 3100 steam without throwing fire, but their efforts have not been exactly a squealing success.

Harry Tomblinson was in town, Tuesday, overseeing the transfer of the Adams express business from G. S. Scott, who resigned about a month ago, to E.T.Foe, who took charge, yesterday. The office will be conducted in the old location in the ticket office at the Burlington station.

Engineer M. R. Gates was up from Republican City, last Saturday, to be examined by the relief surgeon. He returned home on No. 14, same day. The severe injury of Mr. Gates will be recalled by readers of this paper, and it will be a source of satisfaction to them to learn that he is gradually recovering his former health and activity and hopes soon to resume his engine on the Republican City-Oberlin branch.

Ladies' Guild Social Affair.

The members of the Ladies' Guild and D. of I. enjoyed a social evening at the home of Mrs. Anna Murphy, Thursday. High five was the card game of the evening, with Mrs. E. F. Caffrey of Stamford winner of first lady's prize and Ed Brady, the first gentleman's prize. Judge Heaton landed the booby. Besides the cards there was a social side and refreshments. Music was a special feature of the event, with Mrs. P. F. McKenna, Father W. J. Kirwin, Arthur Coupe and Frank Colfer as the artists. As Mrs. Murphy expects to depart from our city, middle of the present month, this affair was in the nature of a farewell. Mrs. Murphy expects to spend the summer on the great lakes, with her mother.

The Omaha Trade Excursion.

Unlike some cities who conduct trade extension trips, the party of Omaha business men who will visit us the end of this month are not coming out here to "talk shop" to us. The occasion will be a purely social one—the heads of Omaha's large business houses and banking institutions visiting us in order to become better acquainted with their western neighbors and the great development of this section.

It promises to be a mutually pleasant and profitable affair, both for the visitors and those visited. That our friends from Omaha will see much of interest to them is our prediction and learn a great deal that cannot fail to impress them favorably with our country.

No Co-Operative Stores.

It is believed that the project to establish co-operative stores under the management of labor unions represented by the Burlington employes has been dropped. Coincident with the dropping of this project comes the organization by representatives of all the labor unions on all the roads in the state of an association having for its purpose the protesting against reducing freight rates or the passage of further restrictive laws by legislatures or rulings by the railway commission affecting railroads. To work effectively the men have thought best to take petitions to the merchants in the towns where they do much trading and to get these signed. Sizing up this situation a Burlington employe said yesterday:

"The co-operative store idea might be all right in many cases, but now, I think we prefer to buy of the local merchant. We must not antagonize all the business interests to the point that they will in turn antagonize our employers and thus, by restrictive legislation and rate reduction force loss of dividends and cut in wages. We are now trying to get close enough to business interests to show them that the interest of the railroad and its employes is the interest of all business men."

The railroad labor unions will be represented more strongly than ever when the legislature meets in Lincoln next winter. The strength of the labor unions on the roads will be exerted wherever there is any considerable number of votes at the primaries and at the election this fall. Already some organizations have named legislative representatives to look after their interests during the next session. The labor unions will see to it that they leave no stone unturned to advance what they now consider their best interests.—Lincoln Journal.

To the Employes of the Great Burlington Route.

I have been making changes in the Hotel Akron, Akron, Colo. The hotel is now FIRST CLASS. On and after May 1st, 1908, my prices will remain the same. Meals to railroad men only, twenty-five (25c.) cents. Lodging to railroad men only, twenty-five (25c.) cents.

The lunch-room open DAY and NIGHT, in charge of first-class short order cooks, who will serve steak, potatoes, bread and butter, and coffee for twenty-five (25c.) cents. Bacon or ham and eggs, potatoes, bread and butter, and coffee, twenty-five (25c.) cents. Railroad men on night runs will find this a great convenience, as they can order all, or any thing they want, at popular prices from five cents up.

In order to make these improvements and keep up a first-class establishment, MY TERMS ARE CASH.

I refer you to many of the railroad men who are making the Hotel Akron their headquarters.

Glad to entertain you all.

Come and see us.

V. M. CAME, Proprietor.

A daughter was born to Conductor and Mrs. Frank Rank, this week.
