A Lemon Social.

At the parsonage last Tuesday evening the ladies of the Baptist church gave a "lemon social." A large crowd came bringing their admission fee—a lemon. The house was decorated in green and yellow paper lemons. Miss Sadie Everist told fortunes under a lemon tree in the parlor while some scales in the sitting room caused much merriment as the couples were weighed. A guessing contest and a lemon race were other features of entertainment. Lemonade and wafers were served at the close. A very pleasant evening.

Quarterly Missionary Meeting.

Last Thursday afternoon a number of the Baptist ladies went out into the country to the beautiful new home of Mrs. Ed. Flitcraft for their quarterly missionary meeting. Beside the regular program, Miss Fay Eikenberry delighted the company with several piano selections. Delicious ice cream and cake were served by Mesdames Utter and Flitcraft, assisted by the latter's sisters.

Lemonade and wafers were served at the close. A very pleasant evening.

Free Delivery Next.

The gross receipts of the McCook postoffice for the year ending June 30, 1908, will be $11,200.00. This showing entitles the city to the advantages of free city delivery just as soon after July 1st as the department and the city authorities can perfect the necessary arrangements. Several months will be required.

Among other requirements will be that the houses will have to be numbered, the streets indicated and lacking sidewalks supplied.

Diphtheria Prevalent.

There are a number of cases of diphtheria in the city. None of them are severe, however, and quarantine regulations have been invoked. As similar reports come from other towns in this section, it would appear to be somewhat prevalent in this part of Nebraska.

Anti-Saloon League.

There will be a meeting of the Anti-Saloon League in the Methodist church, next Monday evening. The president of the league hopes for a representative attendance.

ROPE SUPERSTITIONS.

Odd Beliefs About the Cure of Cancer and Mumps.

"Yes, I am heartily glad that execution by hanging is passing out of existence," said the jailor of twenty-five years' service. "Not only was hanging by the neck a gruesome, horrible affair to me, but it was always followed by a host of requests for a bit of the rope with which the hanging was done. Of course, these requests came mostly from ignorant people, but they were no less of a nuisance on that account. Oh, no, they didn't want bits of the rope for morbid reasons, but because they firmly believed in the old superstition that a bit of rope used in a hanging would cure cancer if rubbed on the affected part. None of them ever came back to report whether a cure was effected, but I reckon if there had been any cures I would have heard of them."

"That isn't the only rope superstition, by the way. In Maine, where I came from, some folk always use hempen rope for the mumps. A piece of it is tied around the waist of the sick person, so that the disease will not creep to any vital part, but remain in the face. The superstition is observed by a few people of this day, and if you go into small remote country towns in Maine you will see hempen ropes hanging in the corner grocery store, bearing a label, 'Ropes For Mumps.'—New York Tribune."

Humiliation.

"I tell you, sir, kissing the hand that smites you is nothing to what I saw in the hotel this morning."

"What was that?"

"The porter blacking the boots that had kicked him last night"—London Telegraph.
