 School population and votes would clearly indicate that McCook has a good large lead over Holdrege in point of population. At the last election McCook cast between 150 and 200 more votes than did Holdrege and the ratio of school population is about the same. Besides McCook always has a considerable railroad vote out on the road every election. A full vote here would mean about 1,100. Our population easily exceeds that of Holdrege by a half thousand.
