

Affirmatives Get the Decision.

A large and interested audience heard the debate on the woman's suffrage question in the Methodist church, last Thursday evening. The affirmative side was given the favorable decision of the judges.

The question debated was: "Resolved, that women should have the ballot on the same terms as men."

The affirmative side was represented by Mrs. Edker Burton, Mrs. Eugene Gary and Mr. Joseph Allen, besides by a large preponderance of the sympathy of the audience. The negatives were, Mrs. Mattie Welles and Mrs. W.G. Dutton.

The question was quite ably and most vigorously handled. Besides the debate there was a program of music etc. The high school orchestra played two selections which were greatly appreciated. The Misses Hickman gave a delightful piano duet. The reading by Miss Estella Fano was pertinent and effective.

The entertainment was under W. C. T. U. auspices and well worth a hearing and the price.

The "lords of creation" who served as judges were: C. H. Boyle, Dr. S. C. Beach and Judge J. C. Moore.

Dairy Meeting Held.

Claud Frazer and Edwin Perkins accompanied by Dr. Wilmer Neer, went to McCook last Wednesday evening to take examination for handling of cream under the State Dairy Commission, in compliance with the new laws enacted during the last session of the legislature and in force July 1st. A large number of the operators from Western Nebraska were present and the meeting was under the direction of Deputy Food Commissioner S. L. Mains. After July 1st all operators not holding a permit from the Dairy Commission will not be allowed to handle cream. The paper suffers one day's tardiness this week by the editor's two day's absence while attending a meeting of the State Dairy men at McCook.—Hendley Delphic.

Obedience.

Prompt and unquestioning obedience is the cornerstone of the foundation of success in life. No man can give orders properly who has not learned to take them, and "save he serve, no man may rule". It will be found that the men who have won their way to positions of power and responsibility have invariably been the men who did not reason or argue or even "respectfully resent," but who promptly did as they were commanded without questioning. It is the large man, not the little man, who recognizes a superior authority.—Ex.

Everyone would be benefited by taking Foley's Orino Laxative for constipation, stomach and liver trouble, as it sweetens the stomach and breath, gently stimulates the liver and regulates the bowels and is much superior to pills and ordinary laxatives. Why not try Foley's Orino Laxative today? A. McMillen, Druggist.

Borer Parasites.

Borers are gradually destroying a large maple tree in front of the A. P. Ely residence—the Sawyer place. One of the insects seen at work on the tree, and thought possibly to be a borer, was sent to the state entomologist. He reports the supposed borer to be a parasite of the borer, its destroyer in fact.

Arrived Here Monday.

On next Monday, Will Hill leaves for McCook with his two race horses. Will has his two horses, Reynolds Wright and Big Chief, in fine shape and expects to win his share of the purses in every race in which they enter. They will take in the big circuits of Iowa and Nebraska.—Arapahoe Pioneer.

The Red Man's Burden.

The spectacle of an aged Indian preaching a prohibition sermon over the grave of his son, while hundreds of blanketed braves stood by in silence, was presented one day last week at Lander, Wyoming, when Wolf Bear, sub-chief of the Arapahoe tribe, delivered a forceful and pathetic address at the grave of Leo Wolf Bear.

The young brave drank too much white man's whiskey, laid down on a railroad track to sleep and was killed. "The white man's whiskey kill my only son," said the venerable chief. "You see, young men of the Arapahoes, what the white man's whiskey will do. I don't blame the white man for drinking and selling whiskey, but I hope the young men and women of my tribe will have more judgment than their pale face brethren, and abstain from fire water."

Brinton-Rogers.

A very pretty wedding took place on Saturday evening, June 5th, just at sunset hour, when Mr. L. Wayne Brinton of Crewe, Va., and Miss Marie L. Rogers of West Medford, Mass., were united in marriage in the presence of immediate relatives of the bride and groom and friends from Rochester, New York, and Wilmington, Delaware.

The wedding took place at Aspen Hall, the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Weems, cousins of the bride, the spacious library being converted into a bower of greenery and roses. Rev. Telford of the Presbyterian church officiated. The couple were the recipients of numerous gifts of cut glass, silver, table linen, china, etc.

The future home of Mr. and Mrs. Brinton will be at Wildwood.—Crewe, Va., Record, June 12th.

VEST'S CAMPAIGN SPEECH.

Why a Small Boy Persisted in Hearing It Every Day.

"Senator Vest was making a buggy campaign in southeast Missouri some years ago," said a Missouri official. "His driver was a small boy, who was duly impressed with the importance of his distinguished passenger. "At each town visited by Vest the boy hurried his team to a convenient livery barn and then raced for the courthouse, or wherever the speaker" was to take place, and perched himself with painful regularity on the front seat. He invariably turned his eyes on the senator and took in every word of the speech as if his very life depended on it.

"Finally the lad's continued conspicuous presence among his auditors annoyed the senator, and he kindly but firmly reminded the boy that it was not necessary for him to attend every meeting.

"I make the same speech each time. You have heard it often enough to know it by rote, so just put in your time in the future looking after the team," he admonished his youthful driver.

"Despite the senator's objection, the boy was again in the front seat the next day and the following day. This enraged Vest, and he thundered:

"Why do you persist in always occupying that front seat? Didn't I tell you I make the same speech every day? It's as old and stale to you as it is to me. Why insist on hearing it again and again?"

"I want to see what you're going to do when you forget it," answered the boy. Vest capitulated.—St. Louis Republic.

THE ELEPHANT FLEET.

How It Is Used by the British Government in India.

Its elephant fleet is one of the strangest and most deadly departments maintained by the British government in India. It is a large fleet of coasting steamers specially built for the transport of elephants. India's population is one-fifth that of the entire globe. All these people use elephants. They use them for draft work and for tiler hunting, and in the areas of the native states they even pit them against one another and against wild beasts. The elephant fleet transfers the animals from Dacca, the trapping and training headquarters, to the various districts whence comes the demand.

To get an elephant aboard ship is a difficult and dangerous task. The animal must wade through the surf to a stout raft, and this unknown surf, so white and tumultuous, often terrifies and maddens him. If in his fury he slaughters a mahout or two he cannot be greatly blamed. Once on the raft, his legs are tied to pegs, and the slow sail to the ship is uneventful. But now a great hand must be arranged under the elephant's belly, and a crane must hoist him up some twenty or thirty feet to the deck. Here again the elephant cannot be set down as intractable if, losing his head in that unprecedented aerial journey, he murders some more mahouts. Very prosperous, albeit stained a little with mahouts' blood, the elephant fleet for many years has plied up and down the Indian coast, embarking and disembarking its heavy, unmanageable freight.—New York Press.

The Appreciation of Music.

If we would appreciate music aright, we must remember that its beauty depends not upon the composer alone, but upon ourselves also. Deep calls unto deep, and the harmony of sound, though appealing primarily to the outward ear, must be answered by a harmony from within ourselves. The more culture we bring to the hearing of music, the wider our sympathy, the more exquisite will be the echoes which it awakens in the soul. If we would understand the composer's message we must co-operate with him. We must reach out to him with all our faculties. If we do that, the revelation of music will ceaselessly renew its beauty, ever turning unimagined aspects to gladden us.—Redfern Mason in Atlantic.

An Ugly Looking Lizard.

Among the lizards of Australia the "thorny devil" (Moloch horridus) is unrivaled in its ugliness. From the tip of its nose to the end of its tail this lizard is covered with tubercles and spines, but in spite of its dangerous appearance it is quite harmless. It measures about seven inches in length. It has a fat body, a small head and a cylindrical tail. It frequents sandy places, feeds largely on ants and is more or less diurnal in habits. Its powerful limbs are furnished with strong claws, which it uses in digging the sand, in which it often lies wholly or partially buried.

Defined.

"What is the difference between firmness and obstinacy?" asked a young lady of her fiancé.

"Firmness" was his gallant reply. "Is a noble characteristic of women; obstinacy is a lamentable defect in men."

Graduation At Annapolis.

"June Week" at the Naval Academy and the Ways in Which Its Functions Differ From Commencement Ceremonies of Other Educational Institutions.

"JUNE week," as graduation time is called at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, varies in many important respects from commencement week at the average college or university. The training of a young man to fight for his country on a vessel of war necessarily differs from educating a boy to be a lawyer, doctor, minister, teacher, mining engineer or journalist or from training a young woman to excel in intellectual pursuits or the science of homekeeping. The studies at the Naval Academy include many subjects taught in the curriculum of the average college, like the modern languages, mathematics and science, but a student who graduates from Yale or Harvard or Columbia or Princeton or Cornell or the similar institutions of the middle west or Pacific coast is not expected to know much about how a warship should be handled during an engagement with an enemy or to be on intimate terms with the articles and formulas of naval construction. Much of the time during the graduation season at Annapolis is taken up with drills in which the future captains and rear admirals of the navy go through evolutions which are very interesting and spectacular and usually attract many visitors besides the immediate relatives of the young men who are to receive reward for their four years' work.

The academy is a national school, supported by the government of the United States, and as such subject to the supervision of congress and the chief executive, and the cadets and their instructors are alert at this time especially to make a good showing when the eyes of the representatives of the nation are upon them. One of the events of the week is the inspection by the visiting board appointed by the president, acting under the authority of congress.

This year special interest has pertained to the graduating exercises at Annapolis because of the visit of the Baron and Baroness Teru of Japan. The baron is a vice admiral of the Japanese navy and a graduate of the United States Naval Academy in the class of '81. The academy had much to do with preparing him for his important part in the war with Russia. He and Admiral Dewey enjoy the highest rank of any of the academy's living graduates. The class of '81 held a dinner which the Japanese admiral attended, and he was a guest of honor at various other functions. June week begins with the receptions to the board of visitors and ends with the grand ball with which almost all educational institutions wind up the festivities signaling the close of the academic year. One event of the week which always enlists the interest of visitors is the sail drill on board the Severn, the practice ship named in honor of the beautiful river which bounds one side of the campus. Gunnery, of course, is a subject which occupies leading attention at the academy, and the artillery drills are naturally foremost in interest. The efficiency of a warship is at bottom the efficiency of her battery, and it is considered the duty of every officer aboard her to see that the highest possible results are obtained from the ordnance equipment put into their hands to use.

Few people are aware how broad an education is given to the graduate at Annapolis or how well his brain and body are both trained.

Few appointments under the government involve the necessity for more general and scientific attainments. As officers of the navy the graduates are required to act as judges of the law and evidence on trials of their brother officers for offenses affecting the life and character of the accused; as commanders of ships they should not only possess a practical acquaintance with seamanship, but an accurate knowledge of those branches of mathematics connected with the science of navigation, with astronomy and geography, and as commanders of fleets or squadrons they must be well informed on all points of international law.

PATTI'S EARNINGS.

The Shrewd Financial Methods of the Musical Miracle.

Adelina Patti never suffered from the financial timidity of a Jenny Lind. Not only was she a supreme vocalist; but, as Colonel Mapleson remarked, "no one ever approached her in the art of obtaining from a manager the greatest possible sum he could by any possibility contrive to pay." But the musical miracle was the spoiled darling of her day, and she never failed to obtain exactly what she wanted. She was first engaged in London in 1861 by Mapleson to sing four nights "on approval" and in case of success to obtain £40 a week. This contract was not fulfilled, however, for, being hard pressed financially, she had borrowed £50 from a rival manager, and her receipt proved practically a contract. This was the beginning of a career so dazzling that its successive steps are simply a series of increasing banknotes. In 1872 she obtained in London 200 guineas a night, since she insisted on having more than Christy Nilsson, who was receiving £200. She sang twice a week. Ten years later she was given $5,000 a night! Her famous contract to sing in America provided that the money should be paid her at 2 o'clock on the day she sang; also a drawing room and sleeping car to be especially built for her, with conservatory, fernery, etc. Further, there was to be deposited to her credit $50,000 for payment of the last ten performances—Patti's favorite device. She thus received about twenty times what Mario and Grisi got.

Her private car incidentally cost $60,000 and contained a silver bath and gold keys to the doors, to say nothing of a $2,000 piano. Patti gave to the manager only her voice and her costumes. Her drawing capacity justified this. "Lucia," as an example, was sung to an average of $14,000. "Travata" drew more, since she sang more notes. It was a frequent occurrence among the poorer music lovers to buy a club ticket and each take turns at hearing her for twenty minutes. If one overstayed his time he paid for the entire ticket. Some mathematicians computed by dividing the number of notes sung by the sum paid that in "Sondramide" Patti received 42¢ cent for each note. This was found to be just 7 1/10 cents a note more than Rossini got for writing the whole opera.—George Middleton in Bookman.

A BEAR STORY.

The Picture the Amateur Photographer Did Not Wait to Get.

The best bear story I ever heard, states a writer in Recreation, was told me by an amateur prospector, who might have stepped out of a comic weekly. He had made a big trip in the Siskiyona with no weapon save a nickel plated miner's pick. "Have you seen much game?" I asked.

"None at all," he replied in his dry falsetto. "No bear?" I exclaimed, knowing he had come right through Bear Camp.

"Oh, yes," he returned, "quite so. Now that you mention it I dare say that is what it was. Didn't occur to me, you know. I was so very angry, don't you see, I took no pains to identify the brute."

"Why, what did he do to you?" "What did he do? Why, nothing, of course. You see, the little beggar ran and climbed up a stump. And he wouldn't come down so I could obtain a decent photograph of him. Sat up there half a day, fifty feet from the ground. Then his legs got tired holding on, I imagine, for he started in to squeal. And, do you know, the brute must have given me away, for pretty soon his mother, I suppose it was, came hurrying up, and I had to clear out. Four times as big as he, she was, I assure you."

"Did you run?" I asked, laughing. "Oh, not at all; not at all," said he. "But still I thought it best not to remain." He paused and stroked his stubbly chin reflectively.

"By Jove," said he finally, "how very interesting! I should have thought to photograph the old one. She looked quite savage, don't you know?" "Such a picture would have been unique, to say the least," I replied. "Quite so," said he.

Why She Was Right.

Haydn had a peculiar way of determining the time in which a piece of music should be sung. On one occasion a female singer in high esteem at court had been appointed to sing one of Haydn's compositions. At the rehearsal she and the conductor differed as to the time of the music. The matter was to be settled by referring it to Haydn himself. When called on to decide he asked the conductor if the singer was handsome.

"Very," was the reply, "and a special favorite with the prince." "Then she is right," replied Haydn.

Occasionally. "You must try to love your papa," said the visitor, "as much as he loves you." "Oh, I love him more!" replied Tommy. "Indeed? Doesn't your papa love you very much?" "Not much. He says he loves me only when I'm good."—Exchange.
