Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Pos-itively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue o fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and alling Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these inerves—re-establish them as needed, with

Dr. Shoop's Restorative A. Mc MILLEN.

Choosing a Builder.

The selection of a builder is quite as Important a matter in putting up a house as the choice of an architect. Don't choose the cheapest builder merely because he is cheapest. If you accept his bid, find out the reason the cheapness. Frequently the builder is a man of litt'e means, and often h operates on borrowed capital. Should the builder become bankrupt or fail t pay for his labor or materials the own er, under the mechanics' laws of most states, becomes liable for the builder. debts. This is true even though the owner has paid the builder for his work. In order to obtain his house free and clear in such a case the owner must meet the builder's obligations. The prudent owner will, of course, pay for his house only as it is constructed. Even then it would be a useful caution to make sure that the builder has paid his indebtedness on the house. Payments are usually made the builder when the foundations are done, when the frame is up, when the house is closed, when the plastering is finished and when the completed house is turned over to the owner.-Circle Magazine.

Ancient Castle, Curious Clock. Rushen castle. Castledown, Isle of Man, is the ancient seat of the kings and lords of Man. The castle is a veritable curiosity both historically and otherwise. The first mention of it dates to the year 1257. It was taken after six months' siege in the year 1315 by Robert the Bruce. The castle is built of limestone and is not a ruin. Until a few years ago it was used as a prison. The town clock seen in the castle wall was presented by Queen Elizabeth in the year 1597. It has only one hand on the dial. This is the hour hand. The minutes are judged by the position of the hand between the hours. The works of this clock are also a curiosity. The weight at the end of the pendulum is a large stone. and it is driven by a rope colled around a cylinder of wood, with another stone at the end of the rope. The clock is still going after its centuries of service and is still the town clock.-Newcastle (England) Chronicle.

Where She Got the Money. They were at the circus. The conversation ran to the subject of how they had financed their admission ticket projects. One said she had gathered rags and sold them. Another had helped her brother spade a garden. The third member of the party presented a sickly grin and seemed reluctant about explaining where her half dollar came from. An explanation seemed absolutely necessary.

"Lizzie, whah yo' git dat half dollah yo' flipped up to de ticket man?" "Nevah yo' mind. Yo' all saw me pay de man, didn't yo'?"

"Sho 'nuf we did, but dat ain' no exp'anation."

"Well, I got de money all right." "Sho' nuf yo' did. Sho' nuf yo' did." "Yes, an' ef I doan' git a half dollah somewhah an' git my ole man's Sabbath shoes from dat pawnshop befo' Satahday evenin' I'm a deevo'ced woman, dat's all."-Indianapolis News.

Good Time to Go.

General Joseph E. Johnston, the Confederate commander, used to relate that in the hottest part of one of the early battles of the civil war he felt his coattails pulled. Turning about, he recognized a young man who had been employed in his tobacco factory previous to enlistment.

"Why are you not in your place fighting?" the general demanded angrily. "Why, I just wanted to tell you that if you don't mind I will take my day off today!"

To Sleep Like a Top.

To "sleep like a top" has probably a very different origin from that which appears. "Top" is thought to be a corruption of the French taupe, or mole. This interpretation is far more in accordance with the idea usually conveyed-that of a prolonged, undisturbed sleep like that of a mole in winter rather than the short, enduring so called "sleep" of a top when it revolves on its axis with a gentle, humming sound.

Both Willing. "He said he'd rather go to jail than pay his divorced wife alimony."

"Did she let him go?" "Yes; she said she'd rather see him save his money behind the bars than spend it over them."-Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Precocity. "Every time the baby looks into my face he smiles," said Mr. Meekton, "Well," answered his wife, "it may not be exactly polite, but it shows he has a sense of humor."-Exchange.

The brothers of fered their invention to the United States for its exclusive use and ownership for a term of years at a cost which would have enabled the government to build 3.000 aeroplanes, each capable of carrying 200 pounds of dynamite, for about one-fortieth what it would expend in building a single battleship. With such an aerial fleet in its possession the United States would be as invincible in the warfare of the air as Great Britain is now supposed to be upon the sea, or would perhaps be still more superior to other powers in this respect. But the Wright brothers were supposed to be only a couple of cranks in those days, and the golden opportunity was lost.

An incident in connection with the honors for the Wright brothers at their home in Ohio, Dayton, and at the national capital indicates what a close personal interest President Taft gives to all matters pertaining to his administration and how alive he is to the importance of having the United States abreast of other nations in the matter of aerial science, especially as applied to methods of war. Much has been said about the medals struck in honor of Orville and Wilbur Wright and presented to them by President Taft at the White House on behalf of the Aero Club of America. This occasion was honored by the presence of attaches of foreign legations; army and navy officials, cabinet members and senators and representatives in congress as well as by members of scientific societies and various learned institutions. Perhaps not since the returning heroes of the Spanish war were welcomed home have such demonstrations occurred as those planned in honor of the Wrights at the capital of the nation and in their home city. For presentation to them in connection with the Dayton celebration congress by special vote ordered gold medals struck. It is not generally known that President Taft went out of his way in order to assure the completion of these medals in time for the ceremonies at Dayton.

It chanced that Representative Cox of Ohio, who halls from the Dayton district, called on General James Allen, chief of the signal corps, to ascertain how the manufacture of the medals was getting along. General Allen teld him the medals could not be turned out in time, for Superintendent John H. Landis of the Philadelphia mint had reported that the dies had been

Mr. Cox agitatedly sought the White House, where he poured his tale it the sympathetic ear of the president.

"Can't get 'em ready, eh?" said Mr Taft grimly. "We'll see about that." In a minute the president had directed his telephone operator to connect him with Superintendent Landis in Philadelphia, and soon afterward there was a conversation which, according to report, ran something like this at the White House end: "Hello, hello! Is this Mr. Landis? How do you do? This is Mr. Taft. Why aren't the Wright medals to be ready for the celebration at Dayton, O.? What's that? In his capacity of dramatic critic Mr. J. Comyns Carr, the author, wrote a notice of the play of "Charles I.," in which Irving played under the management of Mr. Bateman. His production deeply incensed the manager. In order perhaps to find the opportunit of informing the critic of his disayproval, the manager invited him to a supper at the Westminster club on the second or third night of the production. When he thought the fitting moment had arrived Mr. Bateman led the conversation to the point at issue and, emphatically banging the table with his fist, declared in the loudest of tones that he did not produce his plays at the Lyceum theater to please Mr. Comyns Carr. There was a moment' awkward silence, which Mr. Carr confesses he did not feel quite able to break, but which was released by a wit of the company with the happy retort, "Well, dear boy, then you can't be surprised if they don't please him."

"You say that you are M. Gustave Dore, and I believe you," said the mayor, "but," and he produced a piece of paper and a pencil, "you can easily prove it."

Dore looked around him and saw some peasants selling potatoes in the street. With a few clever touches he reproduced the homely scene and, appending his name to the sketch, presented it to the mayor.

"Your passport is all right," remarked the official, "but you must allow me to keep it and to offer you in return one of the ordinary form."

Nearing the Limit.

An old lady was going down in the care in a Cornish mine. She looked with apprehension at the rope, and asked the miner anxiously: "My man, are you sure this rope is quite safe?"
