

A Mistaken Idea....

Some people have an idea that in order to have a bank account, they must have a large sum to deposit; that the bank does not care to be bothered by small accounts.

This, however, is not true of the First National Bank. This bank welcomes new accounts, whether of $1 or $1,000, and the same courtesy and service is accorded the small depositor, as those in more fortunate circumstances.

It is our object and wish to serve the public in financial matters in a manner that should be satisfactory to all—old or young, rich or poor.

We Want Your Banking Business and will be pleased to have you open an account with us.

South-Western Nebraska Teachers' Rally

October 8 and 9 are the dates of the South-western Nebraska Teachers' Rally to be held at Culbertson. Red Willow, Hitchcock and Dundy counties have united to have as large and interesting a rally as possible. Friday afternoon, October 8, is to be given over especially to the patrons and directors, but all teachers are welcome.

The plan of this rally is to have discussed at this time those problems that are sure to puzzle all teachers most, but especially the inexperienced teacher.

One of the most important features of school work is enthusiasm. This is given a generous boost when all teachers and directors meet together to talk over school problems under the leadership of the foremost educators in the state.

Such leaders in education as Ex-State Superintendent McBrien, Chancellor Davidson of Wesleyan University and Superintendent C. W. Taylor of McCook, along with our best local talent promise us something extra fine in the matter of a fruitful meeting.

A concert will be given by the McCook band, which has no superior in the middle west. This concert, prepared as it is especially for this occasion, would be worth any teacher's or director's time. Ample arrangements are being made by the Woman's Club to see that all those attending the rally will be taken care of.

Visit From Gang of Crooks.

McCook, in common with other towns in this section of the state, was visited by a gang of crooks, end of week. Incidentally, two of them will remember McCook better than other places where they worked.

Saturday night, one of the gang, giving the name of Leonard Lyons, short changed the Monte Cristo cafe, where he sought to have a twenty dollar bill changed. The cafe got stung for the sum of five dollars in this transaction. The short change artist was arrested and placed in the county jail until Monday morning, when he was brought before Justice of the Peace Berry, who assessed him $50.00 and costs of suit, with restitution to the cafe of twice the amount stolen, or ten dollars.

Sunday evening, during the dinner hour at the cafe a pal of the crook in jail appeared at the cafe and attempted to have Mrs. Ballow drop the matter of prosecuting the short change man. Upon her refusal, he made most insulting allegations against the house, for which he was promptly and thoroughly trounced by the enraged proprietress—perhaps the blackguard never received such a trimming down in so brief a while in his life. He left the city, the same night.

There were two others with the gang, but the police were unable to secure any cases against them. The gang was well supplied with money.

Woman Suffrage.

To the Editor of the Tribune:

The attainment of the suffrage for women is accepted by the leaders in this movement as the final accomplishment of woman's "emancipation from thralldom to man," the evidence of her complete "economic independence." Step by step she has encroached upon man's province as the maintainer, provider and defender of the home, till now he has to face her competition in every bread-winning vocation, and finally, as a last step in her progress, she demands the ballot, which is regarded as only another degree in her advancement, analogous to entrance into another vocation.

But the attainment of the ballot is a vastly different matter, for it involves a wholly different principle in the social philosophy; a step longer than all the rest combined. Individual women always have earned their living, but the province of government she never has encroached upon, and in this country the voter is the government, and the suffrage, typically masculine.

From the earliest prehistoric times of which we catch any glimpse the maintenance and perpetuation of the social organism have been secured by a division of labor based upon sex. In the early infancy of the race men came to recognize the overwhelming dominance of the sexual attraction and the utter impossibility of holding the sexes apart. Pains and penalties were useless. "Love laughs at obstacles" is proverbial the world over. Inevitably, helpless infancy was continually being thrust upon society demanding its care. The mother, burdened by her infant, could not by any possibility, care for her child and herself too. Hence, from puberty to the menopause, one half the mature social body must be dependent upon the other half for maintenance and defense.

Out of this condition was finally evolved the home and national government in all their modern complexities, their several duties and responsibilities being divided between the sexes as the order of nature seemed to dictate. To the woman, as the mother of the race and necessarily physically dependent, fell the work of making the domicile a home for her mate and their children and rearing them into useful manhood; and to the man, physically free, fell the duty of providing, maintaining and defending the home so created, out of which finally developed the whole intricate machinery of our industrial, intellectual and governmental fabric. For the central thought of national government, with its legislative, executive and judicial departments, its courts and sheriffs and armies, in defense of the homes of the land; not of the individuals, merely as such, but as heads or members of a family.

Now, under our form of government, the voter is the ruler, and the voting class, the ruling, governing class; the active defenders of our homes. So that the demand for the suffrage for women becomes tantamount to a demand for man's emancipation from the burdens of paternity; his release from obligation to care for, maintain and defend the mother of his children.

For woman must remain woman, with the suffrage as without it. She cannot divest herself of her sex though she may seize the government, and marriage—in the broadest sense of the term—invariably will continue. As inevitably, children will continue to be born. What then, is there for woman to gain by possession of the suffrage? Aye! What? What, but the privilege of carrying the entire burden; not only of perpetuating the race and determining the trend of its development, but of maintaining and defending the social organism as well? If it be emancipation at all, it is man's, not woman's. Granted that she gains the goal of her latest ambition, she will become a thousand times more a slave than she ever has been. For man will be freed from all coercive force except his moral sense. He will gratify his lust without a thought of after consequences, and leave the "economically independent" mother of his children to the full enjoyment of her independence, as the average father of a bastard child does today.

WILLIAM B. ELY.

Ladies Two-Times Winners.

The ladies were well represented in the woman's suffrage debate in the Baptist church, last Thursday evening, and by the same token the lords of creation were in submissive minority.

The music-literary program which preceded the debate was excellent in quality: Three selections by an orchestra composed of Mesdames Vabue and Mills and Messrs. Ely and Gaarde; vocal numbers by Miss Ruth Wiehe and Miss Florence Rosebush; readings by Miss Leona Phelps and Miss Gertrude Morrissey. All were of enjoyable merit and received deserved appreciation.

The subject of debate was in substance, "Shall Women be Given the Right of Suffrage on Equal Terms With Men?" Mrs. Mattie Welles affirmed with skill, her experience and culture, her mature training added to enthusiastic sympathy with her side of the subject, won the verdict. Mr. Marvin Somerville came into the negative side of the debate with the vigor and enthusiasm of sophomore young manhood, but was not able to offer a sufficient array of rebuttal evidence and argument to head off a verdict for the affirmative—which, it may be added, met with vigorous approval from the ladies and insinuations more or less broad from the men that the committee was intimidated by the gender circumstances of the audience. Rev. Burton was platform manager and Messrs. Taylor, Kimmell and Ritchie, judges.

The debate and program were under W. C. F. U. auspices and the ladies and friends of the cause may well feel repaid for the effort put forth.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES.

Later information from the state fair is to the effect that the McCook city schools received first premium, instead of second premium, for the best exhibit of school buildings and grounds in Nebraska. This same exhibit was also instrumental in securing for the county of Red Willow the first prize for the best county exhibit of school buildings and grounds.

"Miss Bertha Doud," says the Danbury News, "who has been working in this office for the past three years, has resigned and will enter the high school at McCook."
