"Big Business" Methods.

Some "big business" methods were illustrated in a "small way" in this city, last week one day, by a navy youngster representing Klapp, Bartlett Co. of Omaha. After showing one of the county officers samples of legal blanks glaze which could have been secured at any local county printing office just as cheap and just as well printed—he flashed some blanks of a character seldom required by the office, blanks which perhaps properly should be purchased by the officer out of his own pocket, and then had the gall to state to the official that he could have the blanks charged to the county at so much—but that the charge made to the public could be as the officer closed to make it. At the office of another county official he broadly offered a nice premium if the officer would buy a certain article. THE TRIBUNE makes bold to lay down the law that any representative of a wholesale, manufacturing or private concern, local or out of town, who should so approach any county officer, should be promptly kicked out of the office.

Just one more proposition—which is self-evident: Every article that can be purchased in Red Willow county in the printing line, at a fair and reasonable price, should be bought of the local offices, and that not one unnecessary cent should go to the "big business" fellows.

A Promising Investment.

The experience of the gentleman who operates the Indianola swimming pool is practically a guarantee that such an investment would be even more profitable in McCook, where no public bathing places on a larger scale than a bath tub are available. During this summer the swimming and bathing pool at Indianola has been very liberally patronized and has been a source of no end of pleasure and comfort to the patrons. There is a real demand for a natatorium in McCook, and we hope that citizens with the necessary funds available will enter this open field. In winter time, the pool could be profitably utilized as a skating rink, so that the capital invested need not lie idle for a considerable part of the year. If any one is in doubt as to practicability, of the comfort, of the pleasure to be derived from such an enterprise, these may all be dispelled by a visit to Indianola.

Top of the Market.

Every stockman and farmer naturally seeks to secure for his stock the highest and best price the market affords. McCook is well situated in this respect in having a dealer who deals squarely with those who bring hogs and cattle here for sale. D. C. Marsh is thoroughly acquainted with the stock proposition in southwestern Nebraska. He knows the worth of stock and pays the right full price all the time.

Sunday Afternoon Concert.

Colonel Sutton and band, with a genial admixture of sunshine and invigorating ozone, made the city park most attractive for an alluring hour and a half, Sunday afternoon. This was properly the closing concert of the season, but as a few concerts have been necessarily omitted, the concerts will be continued as long as weather conditions will permit.

Changes Hands, This Week.

Monday, the deal was closed whereby Mrs. Rose Bayles becomes owner of the Hawkins rooming house on 1st street west. Mr. Hawkins gets the Bayles dwelling on 6th street west in part payment. Engineer R. E. French will move into the Bayles residence on north 1st street west. Mr. Hawkins will occupy his new 6th street east residence.

Hefner-Hickerson.

Last Saturday evening at nine o'clock, Rev. M. B. Carman officiating, Miss Bessie Hickerson and Mr. Ernest Hefner, both of this city, were united in marriage, the ceremony being performed at the home of the bride's parents. Both have been employed in the Barbazette bakery of this city.

Clean 'Em Up!

It has been suggested to the writer that some of McCook's alleys need a cleaning up. And we pass the suggestion along to the city marshal for verification and action as provided by the ordinances of the city.

WOMAN AND FASHION

The Rooster Hat.

This hat isn't a "scream." It's a cock-a-doodle-doo. Of course it has a polite Parisian name. Over in Paris madame is very proud of her chancier chapeau, named from the new play by the famous French author Rostand. The hat itself in its plain, primitive, untrimmied state isn't half such a freak as the passe "Merry Widow" or the near passe peach basket.

THE CHANTICLEER CHAPEAU.

It is simply rather large, with a wide, flaring brim and a low, broad crown.

But in the garniture—there all the bizarrerie lies, for it consists of a rooster, white and fluffy and wavy and droopy as to plumage indeed, but an unromantic barnyard fowl notwithstanding. And it's all there—red comb and wattles, stout, curved beak and every last pinfeather.

Cock-a-doodle-doo! What next?

A Great Silk Season.

The silk forecast that is looming up on the horizon of autumn fashions certainly brings the hope of decided changes in the world of silks. Thanks!

As it were, they say that every dog has its day, and it certainly must be drawing near the end of the eleventh hour for messaline. This beautiful satiny silk fabric undoubtedly has been abused of late by its hundred and one imitations. But because it is such a close kin to satin we will always like it for that alone, and therefore its use will not die out entirely. This is merely incidental more than to predict the downfall of messaline popularity.

For gowns for street wear and afternoon affairs heavy serge-like weave silks (both diagonal and straight weaves) are to be the vogue. Heavy tussors are forecasted too.

Styles, like people, are generally influenced by extremes; so, as heavy as silks are to be for gowns for day wear, silks for evening gowns are to be the other extreme, very thin and filmy.

Evening gown fashions are to be built on revivals of quaint and charming gowns of the good old days when women were attired in such picturesque modes. Daintily colored chiffons are to be worn over darker and brighter colors—for instance, a light gray over pink or rose or cerise. Each will give a delightful light effect, full of rays of beautiful light. Yellow over lavender or heliotrope is a sunshiny combination. This also reminds that lavender, heliotrope and wistaria are to be very much used again this season.

Dainty flower strewn and pompadour printed chiffons are to share honors with the plain colors.

This is an economical as well as a charming style, as milady can have several harmonious "slips" for the same gown, practically several gowns in one.

It is also whispered that brocades are once again to be in favor.

Undoubtedly it is to be a greater silk season than ever. Why not, with such delightful predictions?

Trifles Light as Air.

The newest bonbon holder to please one's ladylove is a large and ferocious bulldog of papier mache. The ugly head can be removed and the body filled with her favorite bonbons. A saucy bow of pale ribbon ornaments the ugly beast's neck.

Little yellow ice cream holders are fascinating for summer luncheon favors. They have full, fluted "shirts" of yellow crepe paper, and the little handles hold several scarlet cherries, and they are 35 cents each.

Making "spooky" candle shades, which one can do oneself, is the newest and most fascinating summer occupation. The spooky effect is given by cutting out grotesque figures of one paper and pasting another of contrasting color underneath. They are so cheap and pretty that one need not mind throwing them away quickly, which one hesitates to do with more elaborate and more expensive shades.

Vagaries of Dress Linings.

Linings are peculiar this season. A peep inside some frocks shows a half lining or a piece thereof. No longer does one find a dress "with all appurtenances thereto affixed," as the lawyer would say. The lining may not consist of a little sheer piece of goods on which the long waist is built. It firmly holds the satin, foulard or silk over the hips to support the heavy flounce. In a sheer dress with panel front, fitted to the form, and a loose back the lining is attached to the side seams of the front panel and hooks in the back. Diaphanous yokes are lined, and so are many sleeves. The peekaboo waist is not seen this year. What was the peekaboo waist is now backed with net.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.
