No longer are people satisfied with crackers taken from the grocer's box or barrel—exposed to dust, moisture, handling.

They have learned that the only crackers that are crisp, tender, always fresh and really good are those protected by a moisture proof package. These are the kind they get—as if just from the oven—when they ask for

THE DARK OF THE MOON.

A Result That is Produced by the Light From the Earth.
Many people have wondered why the part of the moon that receives no sunlight is often visible to us, the term being the "old moon in the young moon's arms." The dark part is easily seen as a copper colored globe resting in the bright crescent. This that we see is nothing more or less than the earth shine on the moon. We appear the same way to the moon when we are in that phase, and our dark part is where the moonshine appears and the bright part of the sunshine.
The reason the copper color appears is because light has to traverse the atmosphere of the earth three times—once on coming from the sun to the earth, once when reflected to the moon and again on being reflected back to us. Our atmosphere possesses the peculiar property of absorbing the blue rays of this white light and allowing only the red and orange to go through, thus causing the appearance of copper color by the triple absorption.
An odd thing connected with this phenomenon, though having nothing to do with it, is this: That part of the moon which appears dark to us is the same part of the earth that appears light to the moon at any specified time, and that part of the moon which appears bright to us corresponds to the portion of the earth appearing dark to the moon.
Of course it is well known that the moon gives out no light whatever itself, the moonshine being merely the light of the sun on the moon reflected to us. The same applies with the earth in its shine on the moon, save that we do give out glows, no doubt, around great cities at night, on account of the enormous number of lights. One thing, however, in which moonshine excels the earth shine is its constant character. Where the earth possesses varying clouds the old moon never has any at all.—St. Louis Republic.
A PUNJAB CIRCUS.
Program, in "Punch and Jab" English, as Good as the Show.
The sun never sets on the English language. This overdose of sunshine sometimes warps it out of shape. In the Malays it becomes "pigeon," in the south seas it is either "sandalwood" or "beche de mer," and among the erudite along the water front at Yokohama it is "banzai." Here is a sample of a brand sometimes called "punch and jab" English. It was captured alive by a Calcutta exchange editor armed with his scissors in the jungle of advertising literature that threw its shadow ahead of a native Punjab circus:

Lost Temper.
"Lost temper does great harm," said a politician. "I once knew a man who held thirteen trumps at whist, and on account of his partner's temper he took only one trick with that ideal hand."
"Impossible!" sneered a reporter who conducted a weekly bridge column.
"Impossible? Not at all!" was the politician's reply. "You see, as soon as this man trumped his partner's ace on the first play his partner in a rage jumped up and kicked him out of the room!"

Accounting For Patrick Henry.
It is related that Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase on stopping at the birthplace of Patrick Henry in Virginia exclaimed: "What an atmosphere! What a view! What glorious mountains! No wonder that Patrick Henry grew here!" Whereupon an honest native dryly remarked that the atmosphere, the view and the mountains had been there for ages, but that only one Patrick Henry had been produced.—Macon Telegraph.

Lincoln's Condition.
As the year draws on, the situation at the capital city crystallizes upon the new no license policy, and so far all is gratifying to the prohibitionists. The campaign last spring was waged upon three propositions by the saloon sympathizers. First, that it would increase taxes, since the $50,000 heretofore received from the saloons must be raised by additional taxation; second, that it would injure business; and third, that crime and drunkenness would not be decreased.
The first proposition has proven untrue, since the added taxation has been nominal and offers no substantial basis for argument. As to the injury to business, that, too, has been a will-o'-the-wisp, as the wholesale business of Lincoln has increased materially in the past half year of prohibition, and many retail dealers quote an increase of 50 per cent. The only adverse condition so far known has been with the wholesale cigar dealers, who numbered saloonkeepers as their patrons. Restaurants also claim a decrease in profits, not attributable to prohibition, but to the greatly increased price of foods. The hotel business also claims a decrease, but local conditions enter here largely. The second hand stores, on the other hand, report a loss of business, and one man frankly states that "the working men now do not spend half their earnings for booze, so they are able to buy new goods." Rentals are not decreased, as was prophesied, in spite of the fact that twenty-five former saloon buildings were thrown upon the market. Higher rent is always demanded for a saloon, since many landlords are not willing to rent property for that purpose, and further, under the law the property itself is answerable for damages sustained by reason of the saloon being conducted illegally.
Building permits for five months in 1909 were $816,426, and for a corresponding period in 1908 $566,785. At the present time there are in course of erection enough business buildings whose frontage would cover half a mile solidly. Bank deposits exclusive of government deposits have increased nearly $700,000. Postoffice receipts, a good index of the life of a city, have increased for the five months from $112,220.75 in 1908 to $120,593.93 in 1909. So much for business.
Now for the third proposition, or lack of decrease in crime. From thirty-eight policemen the city has reduced to fifteen, and of the 361 arrests for drunkenness and disorderly conduct in 1909, as compared with 373 in 1908, fully 75 per cent of the 361 were taken direct from the Havelock cars, and are due to the saloon conditions in Havelock, which by the way is wet by a majority of seven votes, and will not, in the event of Lincoln dry next spring, repeat the experiment.

These are but a part of the facts that have been gathered regarding the Lincoln situation. They could be multiplied by the hundred, in testimony and by statistics.

ANSWERS EVERY CALL.
McCook People Have Found That This is True.

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench. A little cause may hurt the kidneys. Spells of backache often follow. Or some irregularity of the urine. A certain remedy for such attacks. A medicine that answers every call. Is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true specific. Mrs. B. F. Marshall, living in the western part of Arapahoe, Neb., says: "While lifting some years ago I strained myself and after that began to have trouble with my kidneys. If I worked a little harder than usual, or caught the slightest cold, I was sure to suffer more severely, and at times would be forced to remain in bed for a couple of days. My back was very sore and when I straightened after stooping, sharp pains would dart through me. I also had frequent headaches and dizzy spells and the kidney secretions annoyed me somewhat by their irregular action. Not until I used Doan's Kidney Pills was I able to get relief. They went directly to the root of my trouble and before long I was in good health."
Plenty more proof like this from McCook people. Call at McCook's drug store and ask what customers report.
