We Mean You!

During the one week of March 21 to 28 The Lincoln Daily News will accept $2 from mail subscribers for a whole year to April 1, 1911. This is a cut of just one dollar from the regular price made just this one week by cutting out all sorts of canvassing and collecting and letting you do business by mail at a cost of a stamp. This is a year filled with big things, the nomination and election of a United States senator, a big row over the saloon question and then the coming legislature, to say nothing about the scrap over Uncle Joe Cannon and a few smaller guns. You cannot afford to be without a live, independent, fearless newspaper. We let you in right by knocking off a dollar on the start. No booze or nasty medical ads, and free from bossism. It is human throughout and is always doing things it thinks will help Nebraskans. Remember, Lincoln is your town and here is where lots of your interests are. This is the paper you ought to take, and by sending in before March 28 you can save this dollar. Don't pay money to strangers for any paper, but send your order direct to the Lincoln Daily News or to your local agent.

Lloyd Barrett was kicked by a horse Thursday morning, and quite severely, though not seriously, injured.

Death of Former Resident

Many readers of the Tribune will hear with keen regret of the death of one of Red Willow county's former citizens—Charles T. Eller, who for many years lived in the southwest part of this county.

The following dedication is from the pen of A. B. Heath, a California friend:

Chas. T. Eller was born in Jefferson county, Iowa, on March 4th, 1857, and died in Long Beach, California, January 27th, 1910. He was the fourth son of J. C. and J. R. Eller, and moved with his parents to Clay County, Nebraska, in 1874. He was converted and joined the Salem Baptist church. In 1884 he was married to Flora N. Randall of Clay county, Nebraska, and to them three children were born: Ernest W., Orlando S. and Mildred L., all surviving. The eldest son, Ernest, was very ill in Butte, Montana and was unable to attend the funeral.

In 1907 Mr. Eller came to Long Beach for the benefit of his wife's health, and while here was employed as collector for the Long Beach Water Company, which position he held until June 1909, when he returned to his former home at Hastings, Nebraska on a visit. Shortly after his arrival he was stricken with typhoid fever, from which, perhaps, he never fully recovered. He was confined to his bed in Hastings until the month of October, and when he was able to be moved was immediately brought to Los Angeles, California, where it was hoped the change in climate might hurry his convalescence. He gained apparently for three weeks, then took to his bed again; was operated on in the Good Samaritan hospital, which gave him temporary relief. This was all his doctor and surgeon could promise at the time. He was in the hospital four weeks and as soon as possible was moved to Long Beach at his desire where he gradually sank until relief came to end his sufferings early Thursday morning, January 27th.

The end was peaceful, and while he wished to live he was willing to do what seemed best for his Heavenly Father, and his words were: "God's will be done." During his long illness Mr. Eller had the best of medical skill, and all that love and money could do was done to give him comfort and if possible prolong his life. His many friends were ever ready to make him as comfortable as possible, and some of the family were constantly at his bedside.

Through all his sickness he showed his natural self and to one who has known him for over a score of years that serene and sunshine nature prevailed under adverse conditions, as well as all through life. In his dealing with men that same self-denying nature of his made him loved and respected by them, and others were made better for knowing him. He made many fast friends by presenting his duties in an affable manner, and all troubles were smoothed over and made satisfactory. There was in him that natural something which drew people to him and made them life-long friends. Surely his life has been an example of a true Christian, and was the keynote of a true Christian, a devoted father and loving husband.

The funeral was held at the family residence where many sorrowful friends met to convey him to his last resting place in beautiful Sunnyside Cemetery, Long Beach. Rev.

J. Lewis Smith, of the Baptist church of which Mr. Eller was a member, gave a very true and touching discourse on his life as an example which would be well to follow as he followed his Master's.

The members of the family join in thanking friends and neighbors for the untiring and ever-ready hands to help in this their bereavement.

COPEL-EGGELING.

One of the largest church weddings held here for a number of years was solemnized at the German Evangelical Lutheran church, Friday morning at 10 o'clock, where occurred the marriage of Miss Adelia Eggeling of the south side and Mr. Fred Coppel of Perry. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Myers of Arapahoe according to the impressive rites of the Lutheran church.

The bride looked very charming and happy in a beautiful princess dress of white satin and lace with the bridal veil fastened by a wreath of flowers. The attendants were Misses Thressia Coppel and Anna Eggeling. After the ceremony at the church the bridal party and guests went to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eggeling where a reception was held and an elaborate wedding dinner and supper was served. Over a hundred invitations were issued.

Mr. and Mrs. Coppel received many beautiful and elegant presents as tokens of love from their many friends. The happy couple will live on a farm of the groom's which is located near Perry.

The Banner extends congratulations.

The following were among the invited guests: Messrs. and Mesdames Charles Miller, Henry Morthole, William Hagermann, William Wittwer, Frank A. Miller, Charles Deiter, August Coppel, Hiram Feekin, Julius Hoelek, Frank Zander, Henry Johnson, Jacob Zimmer, Albert Groothuis, Joseph Schnabel, Mrs. C. Farewell to Mr. Hill.

The spontaneous and hearty impromptu farewell accorded to Mr. E. C. Hill at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fisher was a fitting tribute to an earnest Christian gentleman and efficient Sunday school superintendent. There was a goodly attendance of those connected with the Methodist Sunday school and church. Light refreshments were served. The company vied each with the other in desiring for Mr. Hill and his estimable wife their best wishes and prosperity in their new home in Alliance, which city gains a desirable citizen of the highest character.

Leading Educators to be Present.

A number of the leading educators of the state, as well as some of the leading public men, will take part on the program of the Southwestern Nebraska Educational association at Alma, April 6, 7, and 8. Governor Shallenberger, State Superintendent E. C. Bishop, Director J. I. McBrien of the University Extension, Dr. George E. Condra, Superintendent W. M. Davidson of Omaha, Superintendent N. M. Graham of South Omaha, besides a full evening concert by the Steckleberg Concert company.

In addition to these people for leading parts, there will be programs suited for both the grade and rural teachers. The last evening will be given over to a declamatory contest between the leading schools in southwestern Nebraska. The contest will be divided into three classes— oratorical, dramatic and humorous. McCook, Holdrege, Alma, Benkelman, Stratton, Trenton, Culbertson, Oxford, Beaver City, Bloomington and Wilcox will have teams in the contest.

All in all, the program promises to be one of unusual worth and merit for all school people. Programs can be had of County Superintendent Bettcher, at McCook.

CROP $1,000 00 AN ACRE.

Salem Peach Orchards Yield Big Sum-- Thousands of Trees Are Being Planted on River Bottom Lands Near the Capital City.

Salem, Ore., Sept. 19th.—(Special.)—The Willamette Valley peach crop is a revelation this year, even to the growers, who are accustomed to big crops and big profits. In the orchard of Alexander Lafollette, in the Mission Bottom country, north of Salem, the yield is so heavy that it was necessary to place hundreds of props under the trees to keep the branches from breaking off.

Lafollette picked 2,000 boxes from 57 trees, this year, and his son Clyde, at Wheatland, on the west side of the river, has 15 acres which brought him in this year about $1,000 an acre.

W. H. Eagan, a veteran grower, frequently has peaches on the market for four months during a single season by growing several varieties. His crop this year is large. W. A. Jones will have about 7,000 boxes, and the price will average better than $1.00 a box.

William Wright, last year, cleared $1,500 off 10 acres of peaches—the first crop from the trees. The acreage of peaches is increasing faster relatively than that of any other fruit grown in this section. L. H. McMahan is setting out thousands of young trees on the old Judge Hubbard place in Mission Bottom, and others are going into peaches extensively.—From Oregonian, September 19th, 1909.

ORCHARD BRINGS $64,000.00

Eighty Acres of Young Apple Trees Sold to Eastern Man.

Portland, Ore., August 14.—Sixty four thousand dollars was the price paid today for an 80-acre orchard of young trees by Henry C. Peters, a capitalist of Cincinnati, Ohio. Mr. Peters purchased the property, which is situated in the heart of the east side apple belt, from Willis VanHorn, one of the VanHorn brothers, who have the biggest orchard land holdings in the valley.

The land purchased by Peters is in three-year-old Spitzenberg, Newtown Pippin and Ortley trees, and the price per acre was $800. It adjoins the large tract recently bought by a Philadelphia man, for which he paid $96,000. It is the intention of the purchaser to erect a fine dwelling on the place and make it his summer home.—Portland Journal.

TWO ACRES YIELD $1,200.00.

Strawberries Are a Profitable Crop at Montecano.

Montecano, July 20.—C. E. Wagner of Oregon, has a prize patch of strawberries, from which he sold this season 600 crates, at an average price of $2 a crate, or a total of $1,200 for the crop. There are two acres in the patch and no special treatment was given the plants save a small smudge plant, which was brought into use to prevent damage from frost, at a cost of about $65.—Portland Journal.
