RED WILLOW.
Regular old time dust storms, this week.
There is trouble in country schools as well as in the high schools in town, though of a different nature.
Lucy Miller is helping Mrs. Owens Longnecker with house cleaning.
Spring work is vigorously pushed now.
They had an Easter program at the church on Sunday morning. It is a beautiful sight to see such little tots interested and taking part in these exercises.
Young spring chickens are becoming plentiful, giving promise of toothsome dishes later.
When Mrs. Paul Smith returned to Colorado, from her visit to the old home, they reached the station just as the rain started, and she had no time to secure a ticket or check her trunk, which was left, with the promise of the baggage man to forward it by next train. The train was surely long delayed, as the trunk remained in McCook and she did not get it for six weeks.
As Owens Longnecker and wife were coming from Indianola on Saturday evening an automobile frightened their young horse and it turned very short, breaking the shafts.
Walter Helm was burning off the bottom when the fire got away from him, burning a stack of hay.

A STEADY DRAIN.
Sick Kidneys Weaken the Whole Body—Make You Ill, Languid and Depressed.
Weak kidneys weaken the body through the continual drainage of life-giving albumen from the blood into the urine, and the substitution of poisonous uric acid that goes broadcast through the system, sowing the seeds of disease. Loss of albumen causes weakness, languor, depression. Uric poisoning causes rheumatic pains, nervousness, nausea, cricks in the back, gravel and kidney stones. The proper treatment is a kidney treatment, and the best remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills, William Parks, living in Red Cloud, Neb., says: "For about three years my kidneys were in a disordered condition and I was obliged to get up three or four times at night to void the secretions. I was also subject to dizzy spells. I have now used Doan's Kidney Pills for some time and have the greatest relief therefrom. My kidneys give me no further trouble and the dizzy spells are a thing of the past."
Plenty more proof like this from McCook people. Call at McConnell's drug store and ask what customers report.
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.
Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

DANBURY.
Joe Greenway and family left, last Tuesday, for their home in Colorado.
Mrs. B. N. Leisure died at her home on Sunday last at 10 o'clock. Funeral services were held Monday in the M. E. church.
A number of ladies of the R. N. A. of Lebanon came up, Tuesday, for a dinner and supper in the hall.
J. L. Sims has built him a new implement shed.
Dr. Hoffman of Orleans was called up here on a professional business trip, Friday.
Tom Austin is having a siege of appendicitis.
There was a surprise party on Herna Roop, Thursday night.
C. W. Powell has been on the sick list.
Earl and Bert Powell are painting J. W. Nutt's barn.
There are new lights being installed in the hall.
Pius Lehn was hurt Saturday while the wind was blowing. A trap door off of a water tank blew down and hit him on the back of his head, knocking him unconscious. He is not improving very fast.

REPRESENTATIVE MANN of Illinois, one of the busiest men in congress these days, was recently noticed by two of his colleagues making a close examination of the grass in a park near the capitol.

"Now, there is a sight which does me good," remarked one. "I had always supposed that Mann thought of nothing else but legislation morning, noon and night. And yet here he is out here in the park studying nature. Let's go over and see what new kind of plant he has discovered."
The two representatives joined Mr. Mann, who, after greeting them shortly, continued to walk in circles, poking his cane in the grass.
He seemed angry and perturbed, and occasionally they could hear him muttering to himself, and once when a curious canine came along and joined the group Mr. Mann turned on him and started him on the run up the street with a yelp.
"Jim," said one of Mann's friends, "I did not know you were interested in botany."
"Neither did I," returned Mr. Mann, still gazing intently on the ground.
"Why," returned the other in surprise, "I thought you were looking for some kind of plant."
"Plant!" roared Mann. "Plant! I'm not looking for a plant in this park. I find enough of them in the house. I dropped a quarter around here some place, and I've been looking for the blooming thing for half an hour. You fellows get busy and help me."
Secretary Dickinson is a good Biblical scholar. He is "PUT HER HERE!" a good story teller, too, judging from the yarns with which he regaled the Tennessee society at a banquet in New York recently. Here are two that he got off:
"There was a certain governor of Tennessee whose name I don't have to mention and who seemed to be taking the duties of his office pretty seriously. One day a member of the legislature who knew this governor personally dropped into his office and, after some little conversation, asked him what he thought of being governor.
"Well, do you know," the governor said, "sometimes I don't think I'm fit to be governor of this here imperial state."
"Put her here, gov.," the senator replied instantly. "That makes it unanimous."
"A Tennesseean told his friends before he moved to New York that he intended to show those New Yorkers they didn't know it all. He calculated that there were a few tricks that could be learned from a real live one from Tennessee. A friend met him after he'd been three months there and asked him how it was going.
"Well," said he, "I've about made up my mind that if they'll let me have mine they can keep their's."
Custodian of the House Press Gallery Charles Mann was a Pullman car conductor before the late Senator Gorham invited him, thirty years ago, to come to Washington and there take a position in the press gallery. In a reminiscent mood recently Mr. Mann told a story that will be of use to the thousands who travel on sleeping cars and who do not think they receive proper attention. It was the custom whenever the conductors or porters of the Pullmans found a man they suspected of being a spotter to mark him for the benefit of others. This was done by the porter making a nick in the heel of the suspect's shoe. When the traveler reached the next train and put his shoes out the porter would find the nick and report to the conductor that a spy was aboard. Then they would make life miserable for the supposed spotter. But frequently mistakes were made.
One poor salesman had been mistaken for a spotter, and he poured out his woes to Mann, telling him how badly the porters and conductors had treated him. Indeed, the fellow intended to stop traveling. He added: "My business is bad enough. I sell for an undertaker's supply house, and that is solemn, but the way I am treated sets me wild." Mr. Mann looked at the fellow's shoes and found the nick. That settled it. He advised the man to change his shoes and see if luck would not change. He did so, and, meeting Mann afterward, the fellow asked what he meant, as good fortune had smiled upon him ever since he changed his shoes. Then Mann told him.

In his new book, "The Land of the Lion," the Rev. W. S. Rainsford describes interestingly his hunting expeditions and also African conditions as they exist today. In his chapter on "My First Lion" he says:
"Who shall attempt to describe the feelings of a man who after long waiting, when the golden chance comes to him, knows, as he steadily presses the yielding trigger home, that he is 'on?' That triumphant survival may be the result of some dark survival of barbarism within him. All the same he is living! It is glorious! It was mine and is part of me forever."
Dr. Rainsford's lion measured ten feet and five inches from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail.

William E. George in his new book, "The Junior Republic," tells much of interest concerning the republic where the too hilarious youth is made a good citizen. Very much apropos of a subject of public interest just now is the story he tells of how the republic encountered the demand for "votes for women" at its very first election. The girls supposed they would have the right to vote as a matter of course and were indignant when they found they could not. They declared they paid taxes the same as the boys and therefore ought to have the ballot.
The question was discussed with the greatest interest, all the girls and many of the boys favoring suffrage for them, but some of the boys opposed. Finally one of their champions introduced a bill in their legislature conferring the ballot upon the girls, and it was carried enthusiastically by a two-thirds vote.
In a suggestive final chapter Mr. George expresses his conviction that boys of all sorts ought to have the opportunity of some such training in practical citizenship as the young people get at the Junior Republic.
Probably of late years Cleveland Moffett has become better known as a playwright than as a novelist. He has four plays in hand at present, and all will be running in New York next winter. There is "The Battle," which is now in its second season, and Mr. Moffett is actively engaged in the production of three other plays lately come from his pen.
For a number of years he has made his home in France and now spends about half of his time there. He has a villa in Paris, shut off from the world outside by high walls and tall trees. During his long residence in Paris, where he did much newspaper work, he acquired a familiarity with the French tongue which enables him to use it, both in speech and in writing, practically as well and as easily as he does English. In fact, he has now selling in France a novel, written in collaboration with a Frenchman, called "La Femme Bien Aimee de M. Queench." The central theme of this is the same as that in one of his forthcoming plays, "Esther Frenn." On the other hand, "Through the Wall," written first in English in Paris, has been translated into French, and with a few modifications it is being brought out by a well known French novelist in that language as a collaboration.

Books and Authors

FREDERIC S. ISHAM, whose book "Half a Chance" has been so widely read, is an indefatigable traveler. He reports having seen during his recent visit to Russia many articles indicative of the ever growing activity in American exports. At a small place near St. Petersburg he heard an American phonograph. At another rather out of the way town an official played merrily on an American typewriter to the tune of the complicated Russian alphabet. In Moscow shopkeepers galore ring up the ko-pecks on Yankee made cash registers.

To cap the climax of this appreciation for Uncle Sam's wares the author adds that in a certain Siberian town in a shop window—as jaunty as when she made her debut in Detroit, Mich.—"Hiawatha" looks down from the cover of a piece of music, while next to her stood "Mumblin' Mose," in philosophical contemplation of the strange and diversified multitude that floated by in this faraway land.

Advise Concerning Stomach Troubles and How to Remedy Them.

Do not neglect indigestion which leads to all sorts of ills and complications. An eminent doctor once said that ninety-five percent of all the ills of the human body have their origin in a disordered stomach.
A physician who made a specialty of stomach troubles, particularly dyspepsia, after years of study perfected the formula from which Rexall tablets are made.
Our experience with Rexall Dyspepsia tablets leads us to believe them to be the greatest remedy known for the relief of acute indigestion and chronic dyspepsia. Their ingredients are soothing and healing to the inflamed membranes of the stomach. They are rich in pepsin, one of the greatest digestive aids known to medicine. The relief they afford is almost immediate. Their use with persistence and regularity for a short time brings about a cessation of the pains caused by stomach disorder.
Rexall Dyspepsia tablets will insure healthy appetite, aid digestion and promote nutrition. As evidence of our sincere faith in Rexall Dyspepsia tablets, we ask you to try them at our risk. If they do not give you entire satisfaction, we will return you the money you paid us for them, without question or formality. They come in three sizes, prices 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain them only at our store—The Rexall Store. L. W. McConnell.

Capt. Bogardus Again Hits the Bull's-Eye.
The world famous rifle shot who holds the championship record of 100 pigeons in 100 consecutive shots, is at present living at Lincoln, Illinois. Recently interviewed, he said: "I have suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble, and have used several well-known kidney medicines, which gave me no relief until I started taking Foley's Kidney Pills. Before taking Foley's Kidney Pills I was subjected to severe backache and pains in my kidneys, with suppression and oftentimes cloudy voiding. While upon arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am not bothered with kidneys or bladder, and once more feel like my old self. All this I owe solely to Foley's Kidney Pills, and I always recommend them to my fellow sufferers."

NOTICE.
I am satisfied that there are $200,000.00 worth of chattel mortgages on file in the County Clerk's office which have been renewed or paid off and the original has not been released.
Now all Grantees of said mortgages residing in Red Willow county, will please take notice that all such mortgages remaining uncancelled on April 1st., 1910, will be added to your Personal schedules according to the laws of the state of Nebraska.
