The next state convention of the W. C. T. U. will be held in McCook, some date next year.

The Alliance Times could use information concerning the whereabouts of a "bum" printer by the name of J. L. Sullivan, who took liberties with the Times' till etc.

Dean G. A. Beecher of Trinity College, Omaha, has been made missionary bishop of this jurisdiction to succeed the former Bishop Graves, resigned on account of age.

The people of Nebraska will do well to make a mental note of the peculiar fact that practically every effort to discredit Hon. C. H. Aldrich, Republican nominee for governor, has its origin in the brewery forces. This indicates that the liquor interests are following their usual and well-known tactics in fighting political battles and opponents, and that they are in practical charge of the Democratic campaign in Nebraska, this fall. They seem to take delight and satisfaction in attempting to fool the "Goody Goody" fellows, as they style them. One of the cries being repeated by their workers over the state is: "Aldrich is no better than Dahlgren." The record of these two candidates is too well known over Nebraska to make it necessary to answer such silly stuff, and the real purpose of the liquor men is elsewhere. They seek to cloud the issue, to fool the voters, to raise doubts, anything to keep temperance people—"Goody Goody" people—from voting for Aldrich. Let no temperance advocate, no seeker for better things in Nebraska politics be misled. Aldrich is at the head of the forces seeking for civic and political betterment, for temperance, for law-enforcement in this campaign.

Central Committee Meeting.

The Republican county central committee will meet in the court room, McCook, next Tuesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock.

Warning to Voters.

The Tribune is reliably informed that the Lahlmaites are secretly but systematically attempting to work out a campaign of slander of Mr. Aldrich's home life at Lavid City. This effort failed in the early stages of the campaign, being frustrated by the efforts of his home friends and the intelligence of the voters, and a general more subtle and underhanded attempt is said to be contemplated.

It is intimated that this attack will be launched from some eastern source at a date and in a manner which will make it impracticable to deny the falsehoods and slanders, which will probably have some slight foundation, upon which a mass of deceit and deception will be slanderously built.

The Tribune refers to this not at all because it fears the result or because there is any foundation for the assault—Hon. C. H. Aldrich needs no defense—but simply to warn its readers to be on guard against this cowardly manner of defaming character and obscuring the issue.

To be forewarned is to be forearmed.

The other day in Lincoln, Will M. Maupin, deputy commissioner of labor and for many years editorial writer of the World Herald and later of the Commoner, was asked by a Fifth district friend if he were a Fifth district resident would he vote for Norris. The following is Mr. Maupin's reply: "If I lived in the Fifth district I think I would vote for Norris, just as I would vote for Bourne if in Oregon, for LaFollette if in Wisconsin, for Cummins or Dooliver if in Iowa, or for Bristow if in Kansas. My democracy does not run to the party name—I would rather see my party defeated and my wishes fulfilled than to see my party triumphant and my hopes and aspirations dashed. I recall that it was Norris who led the fight against Cannonism—Norris the Republican. And I recall that it was Democrats who furnished the votes necessary to foist Cannonism upon us again. I esteem Sutherland as a splendid, scholarly gentleman, and it would be an honor to vote for him. But these are not days for party bias nor for partisan blindness. Let's loosen the grip of the special interests first; then we'll take care of the tariff. Really, about the only difference I can see between a Lemo rat like myself and the average insurgent Republican is that I saw it first."

Some people are desperately afraid of the farmers—especially on the county option question. Those same good citizens, however, have no objection to the farmers' trade.

J. F. Cordeal, of McCook, Republican candidate for state senator, was in town, Monday, supposedly fixing up some political fences. Mr. Cordeal is a fine young man and should be fortunate enough to reach the goal he is after the district would be well represented.—Trenton Register.

THE SOLAR SYSTEM.

Its Flight Through Space Toward the Constellation Lyra.

In what direction are you moving? If you are going toward the Battery, you will answer "south;" if up Broadway you will answer "north;" toward the Hudson you will say "west," and if in the direction of the East river you will reply "east."

These answers might be correct as regards the surface of the earth, but they may be far from answering the question, for the earth is turning eastwardly at the rate of about a thousand miles an hour, which carries you in that direction very much faster than you can move over the ground.

But that rotating motion, constantly changing your direction in relation to all outside the earth, is quite subordinate to another far more rapid motion that is carrying you and the earth around the sun eastwardly on an entirely different curve at the rate of about nine miles a second, ever changing your direction in relation to the stars in a circular path 279,000,000 miles long.

Yet that isn't a key to your direction, for little you, your tiny earth and your third rate sun, with all of its planets, are traveling as a united group in one direction, differing from all those mentioned. Find the large first magnitude bluish white star Vega, in the constellation of Lyra, and you will be looking in the direction of the flight that our system is taking through space. If you will observe the stars around Vega for a few hundred years you will find that they are apparently slowly separating, while the stars at the opposite pole of the heavens are slowly drawing together. That means we are moving toward Vega and away from the opposite point. This motion is in a circle that cannot be exactly measured, but there is evidence to show that it will require 18,200,000 years for our system to complete it.

Then can you answer, "I am moving toward Vega." Perhaps so, but more likely perhaps not, for it is far from unlikely that you and your solar system, with Vega and all of the galaxy of stars that eye can see on the clearest night, are moving in the same general direction around some great common center yet unknown. Who can tell? No one now, but the possibility is presented to the human mind from what we know of the motions of the great universal clock of space that marks off the seconds of eternity.—New York Herald.

Spoiled the Evening For Her. "I suppose you had a perfectly lovely time at the dinner party last night?" "No. Through some mistake they sent me next to my husband."—Chicago Record-Herald.
