J. H. Bayston Passes On.
J. H. Bayston died in St. Anthony, Idaho, last Tuesday evening, November 15th.
Deceased is widely known in Red Willow and Frontier counties. He was formerly a teacher and county superintendent in this county—a resident for a number of years in this county.
He afterwards lived in Frontier county, publishing the Stockville Faber for a number of years,—going west on account of impaired health.
He and wife were both teaching in the St. Anthony schools at his death. The bereaved wife, nee Miss Chrysler and children have much tender sympathy from Red Willow county and McCook friends.
James H. Bayston was born in Orland, Cook Co., Ill., Sept. 13, 1858, and died at St. Anthony, Idaho, Nov. 15, 1910.
Was converted in Illinois in early manhood and joined the M. E. church of which he was a member (John Collins M. E. church, Denver, Colo.) at the time of his death.
Mr. Bayston was ailing for several months and was ill with remittent fever and yellow jaundice two weeks. Leaves a wife, daughter, son, father, mother and five sisters.
Remains taken to Bennett, Neb., for interment, where his family lives.

Library Notes.
"The Power and the Glory"—Grace M. Cooke. Romance of the Tennessee mountains and cotton mills. The horrors of child labor are vividly but not too realistically pictured.
"Clever Betsy."—Clara L. Burnham. The author has returned to the manner of her early novels and written a pleasing though sentimental love story. New England and the Yellow Stone Park supply the local color.
"Burning Daylight."—Jack London. The powerful and the gentle are strangely blended in the hero, a strong personality of the frozen north known as "Burning Daylight," "The King of the Klondike," "The Hero of the Arctic" and "The Thirty-Million Dollar Millionaire of the North."
"Max."—Katherine C. Thurston. Skill in handling amazing situations is the reputation this author achieved in her famous "The Masquerader," and readers whose expectations are high will not be disappointed in the present emotional story and its remarkable plot.
"The Glory of the Conquered."—Susan Glaspell. While this book has been in the library for a few months it is certainly well worth the time one puts in reading it.
LIBRARIAN.

The "Practical" Joker.
The following paragraph appeared in last week's paper, under what purported to be regular correspondence which was however, unsigned:
"Cards are out announcing the approaching wedding of Mr. John Dawson and Miss Katie Sellin and Mr. J. F. Sellin and Miss Mary Dawson." We are advised that the article is entirely erroneous.
And this moves us to state that a horse whipping would be about the right remedy for such a "practical" joker and to urgently request regular and special correspondents to not fail to sign their names to their letters—not for publication necessarily, but that the publisher and the public may not be imposed upon.
Both Speedy and Effective.

This indicates the action of Foley Kidney Pills as S. Parsons, Battle Creek, Mich. illustrates: "I have been afflicted with a severe case of kidney and bladder trouble for which I found no relief until I used Foley Kidney Pills. These cured me entirely of all my ailments. I was troubled with backaches and severe shooting pains with annoying urinary irregularities. The steady use of Foley Kidney Pills rid me entirely of all my former troubles. They have my highest recommendation." A. McMillen.
