LEBANON.

Services in the Methodist church, December 4th: Morning—Sunday school at 10. Preaching at 11; subject, "Jesus, a Character Study." Evening—Epworth League at 7. Praying at 7:30.

The prayer meetings of the Methodist church begin at 7:30 each Friday evening. Rev. Anderson has a new way of conducting these services, which is well received by those who enjoy intellectual and spiritual things.

Died, Saturday, November 26th, 1910, at his home in Lebanon, Neb., John Kinkad, aged 79 years, 9 months and 29 days. Mr. Kinkad had suffered with asthma for several years past, but was in apparently as good health as ever until about a week before he died. He was taken with what appeared to be the grip and took to his bed and died in a few days. Funeral services were held Monday in the M. E. church, the Rev. Anderson officiating, after which the remains were laid to rest beside his wife in the cemetery at Wilserville. Mr. Kinkad was John, as he was more generally called, and was a kind husband, a good father and loved and respected by all who knew him. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community in this their hour of grief.

John Kinkad was born in Ashland Co., Ohio, January 27th, 1831, December 13th, 1857, he was married to Rebecca Ann Drazgo, to this union 10 children were born, 6 boys and 4 girls, of whom all but one survive him. About 1860 he moved with his family to Linn County, Iowa, where he enlisted in company H 24th Iowa infantry. He served his country for about two years when he was honorably discharged for disability. In 1874 he with his family came to Red Willow county, Nebraska, and settled on the northwest quarter of section 1, town 1, range 28, where Dec. 24th, 1898, his wife passed away. In 1900 he sold his farm and moved to town where he continued to reside until death called him home.

Mrs. Andrew Broman died Friday, Nov. 25th, 1910, at the home of her daughter-in-law Mrs. C. A. Johnson, aged 80 years, 2 months and 25 days. Funeral services were held in the M. E. church, Saturday afternoon, Rev. Anderson officiating, and the remains were laid to rest in the Lebanon cemetery. She leaves two brothers, one sister, and four grandchildren to mourn her death.

Brela Sophia Johnson was born at Enby, Sweden, Sept. 1st, 1830. At the age of 15 she united with the Lutheran church. She was married to Carl Johnson in 1853 and to this union one son was born, Charles Alfred Johnson. They came to America in 1869 and lived in Chicago until 1878, when they moved to Red Willow county, Neb., near Lebanon. In 1863 she was married to Andrew Broman who preceded her to the other world several years ago.

Her Case of Nerves

The summer girl who was sitting on the end of the pier with the young man who was so beautifully gotten up in white flannels that he looked like the new artistic kind of clothing advertisements in the magazines suddenly pressed her hand against her heart, turned pale and moaned. "Oh! Oh!"

"What is it?" cried the young man, startled.

The summer-resort girl opened the corner of one eye, surveyed the pier and then opened both of them. "It's begun," she said. "Drowning the children, I mean," she explained further. "It's worse this year because there are more children here at the inn. And they are really such nice-looking ones that it seems a pity—"

"Would you mind telling me—" interrupted the young man, still staring at her.

"Not in the least," said the summer-resort girl. "Only I should think you could see for yourself. The pier is full of devoted mothers with the most artistic get-ups in the way of hair I ever saw and they dress their infants in perfectly fascinating garments and then lead them outdoors and practically say, 'Now, darlings, run along and see how nicely you can drown yourselves! Mother's right here to watch you do it!' Or else they have an infinite trust in the watchful care of Providence.

"Sometimes they have nurses to help watch the children and then it's worse!"

"What startled me just now," explained the summer-resort girl, "was Tommy—the one in the white pique and red belt and socks! Yes, his mother is sitting on that bench right there and she was gazing with dreamy, placid eyes at him as he tried to walk the extreme edge of the pier between those two posts. The water is twelve feet deep along there.

"Mrs. Eckers arrived yesterday with Joseph and Philip and that is positively the last straw! All last summer I wore myself to a perfect frazzle seeing Joseph and Philip commit suicide in dozen times a day! If that woman doesn't succeed in drowning them this year I should think she would be a little discouraged, because she certainly tried hard enough last season, and now she's beginning all over again.

"Joseph was 4 last year and Philip was not quite 2 and he moved as agilely as a lightning bug. He had a pleasant little trick of darting from the center of the pier straight at the water. The nurse always caught him just as he was going over the edge, but between his start and his finish I nearly died from terror. Because, you see, sooner or later the nurse is certain to be a half second behind time in the little game. In imagination I can just hear Philip splash and gurgle as he surges under the pier, where no human being can get him!

"Mrs. Eckers is the woman over there with the face of an appealing angel and the lingerie dress that cost $200 if it cost a cent. Just a few minutes ago everybody was having fits because Joseph was standing with one foot on the pier and the other on the ferry boat, pushing it out and trying to fall in between the boat and the pier. She was the only human being in sight who wasn't frenzied.

"When that nice old gentleman took Joseph by the collar and yanked him inland and he yelled she merely murmured, 'Dear me! What is Joseph doing now? Something, I suppose! Those children know they have me at their mercy! Their father wrote yesterday that if they would not mind I was to shut them in their room and save my nerves!'

"Now, when a real grown-up woman pretends that she can't manage two small, fragile infants like those it is simply infuriating! She ought to be ashamed of herself!

"The Jofords, evidently after much thought, have decided that the best way of disposing of their Arthur, aged 12, is to put a sail on a canoe and turn him out on the raging lake in it. There he goes now, and if he doesn't tip over before the week is out I'll eat my hat!"

"You don't wear hats up here," said the young man, who was literal.

"I'll eat it anyhow," declared the summer-resort girl, grimly. "There's no limit to my achievements when I get nervous!"

"It does seem to me," she went on, "that the only people up here who have the slightest bit of caution or sense about managing children are the people who haven't any children. You can laugh, but if you had to jump into the water in all the glory of that white suit of yours to fish out some youngster you'd feel different!"

"That wouldn't be necessary," said the young man. "There are such a lot of children around that I don't think one or two would be missed at all. Especially the ones who played tag in the corridor in front of my room early this morning—hello!"

In another instant the young man in white flannel was clambering agilely across two boats and grabbing wildly at something white in the water.

What he fished out was nothing but a bunch of newspapers.

"It was all your fault!" he told the summer-resort girl afterward when the hilarity had died down. "Your nervousness made me nervous and I saw things! If women with nerves aren't the limit!"
