30 YEARS OF SUCCESS.

L. W. McConnell Offers a Remedy For Catarrh. The Medicine Costs Nothing If It Fails.

When a medicine effects a successful treatment in a very large majority of cases, and when we offer that medicine on our own personal guarantee that it will cost the user nothing, if it does not completely relieve entirely, it is only reasonable that people should believe us, or at least put our claim to a practical test when we take all the risk. These are facts which we want the people to substantiate. We want them to try Rexall Mucu-Tone, a medicine prepared from a prescription of a physician with whom catarrh was a specialty and who has a record of thirty years of enviable success to his record.

We receive more good reports about Rexall Mucu-Tone than we do of all other catarrh remedies sold in our store, and if people only knew what a thoroughly dependable remedy Rexall Mucu-Tone is, it would be the only catarrh remedy we would have any demand for.

Rexall Mucu-Tone is quickly absorbed and by its therapeutic effect tends to disinfect and cleanse the entire mucous membranous tract, to destroy and remove the parasites which injure the membrane, to soothe the irritation and heal the soreness, stop the mucous discharge, build up strong, healthy tissue and relieve the blood and system of diseased matter. Its influence is toward stimulating and improving nutrition until the whole body vibrates with healthy activity. In a comparatively short time it brings about a noticeable gain in weight, strength, good color and feeling of buoyancy.

We urge you to try Rexall Mucu-Tone, beginning a treatment today. At any time you are not satisfied, simply come and tell us, and we will quickly return your money without question or quibble. We have Rexall Mucu-Tone in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in McCook only at our store—The Rexall Store. L. W. McConnell.

Those attacks started with a pain in the small of my back which gradually became fairly paralyzing. My attention was attracted to Foley's Kidney Remedy and I am glad to say after using this wonderful medicine I am no longer bothered in any way by my old enemy lumbago." A. McMillen.

PRINCESS LOUISE.

EVER since Princess Louise, the only daughter of the kaiser, made her bow to society she has been reported betrothed to various sons of royalty, and now comes the statement that she has been won by the Archduke Karl Franz, eldest son of the late Archduke Otto of Austria. The princess is a charming girl of seventeen and is still very youthful and unspoiled in her ideas and ways. She looks not unlike an English girl. She is rosy cheeked and has an abundance of flaxen hair, which before she came into young woman's estate fell in cascades over her shoulders. Her English is faultless and even includes a lively bit of slang now and then.

When John E. Redmond, who is now touring America with several other distinguished Irishmen, delivers a speech in parliament it is always received attentively. He is a tactician who knows the value of obstructing business, but who realizes just how and when to do it. He can speak for a day or for days if need be, and he did upon one occasion when he wished to hold the house on a question vital to Ireland. It was in that memorable speech that Redmond gave Parnell his title of "crowned king," a title which has survived the great land leaguer and which has been considered one of the felicitous epigrams in public speaking. The Redmond style is deliberate, he has wonderful reserve, and when he opens the gates of his oratory his power is superb, but yet sufficiently contained to suggest no straining for effect.

J. E. REDMOND.

In appearance Mr. Redmond is a man of medium height, with a fine head, a ruddy complexion, blue eyes that become gray when he is very interested and a mouth whose firmness is not concealed by his mustache.

James C. Dahlman, the "cowboy mayor" of Omaha and Democratic nominee for governor of Nebraska, recently had published some early incidents of his life owing to rumors circulated by his enemies. Mr. Dahlman confirms the report that he shot a man and fled from Texas and assumed the name of Murray, but the man he shot did not, he says, die. His version of it is as follows:

"The immediate cause of my leaving Texas was this: An elder sister married a man named Charley Bree, a shiftless sort of fellow, nothing more or less than an outlaw. They lived together for two years, and some time after their child was born he deserted her for no apparent reason than that he was tired of married life and his innate cussedness.

"I was a fiery, quick tempered boy, less than twenty years of age. There was scarcely any law in the country and none that was likely to reach a cuss like that. I sent him word that I would shoot him the first time I saw him.

"Things went on in this condition for some time, and Bree and I did not meet. Then one day purely by accident we met in a town where neither was known. No sooner did we face each other than we both pulled and shot. I got him; he missed me. We shot but once each. My shot hit him above the eye, and he dropped like lead. I thought he was done for and wasted no time in getting away. I rode through into Arkansas and stayed there in secret, soon after coming to Nebraska.

"As I became a young man," he said, "about the only right I knew was that of the pistol and a quick hand. The law was but poorly enforced, and men lived by the right of might. I got to be pretty tough; I admit it. I could see that it was only a question of time when I would get into trouble, so I came to Nebraska to get away from it."

Gossip of People In the Dispatches

ACCORDING to a story being told of Henry L. Stimson, the Republican nominee for governor of New York, he rode into office on a horse. While Mr. Roosevelt was president Mr. Stimson used to visit him socially. On one occasion he went to the White House unannounced and found that the president had gone for a walk. Mr. Stimson then decided to take a horseback ride and soon found himself in Rock Creek park. Suddenly he heard a hello from across a creek and saw Mr. Roosevelt and Elihu Root on the opposite bank.

"Hello, Stimson!" cried the president. "Come on over."

Mr. Stimson without hesitation plunged his horse in. The creek was swollen, and this, with the uncertain footing, made the trip a perilous and exciting one for both horse and rider, but finally they pulled themselves out, dripping, on the opposite bank. After he had appointed Mr. Stimson to the United States district attorneyship Mr. Roosevelt recounted the incident and added:

"I thought that anybody who was fool enough to jump into that stream the way Stimson did would make a good prosecutor."

The hazing of Captain Rufus E. Loggan at West Point recently by the "silence" method is an episode which has been discussed throughout the length and breadth of the land, and thousands of people have wondered where such a custom had its origin. This practice of which Captain Loggan has been the victim is a modification of the old English idea of "sending to Coventry" one of whom his fellows disapproved, and to this day it appears in armies, including that of the United States. The origin of the "silence" treatment is more or less involved in mystery and under that name was not known until between thirty and forty years ago.

CAPTAIN LOGGAN.

The silencing of an officer who has incurred the displeasure of the cadet body is easily and simply accomplished. The cadets when seated at table in the mess hall as long as the person who is looked upon with disfavor is with them will desist from all conversation among themselves and remain with folded arms looking at their plates. If the person to whom this contemptuous treatment is given withdraws the rattle of knives and forks and the animated cadences of conversation are at once resumed. The instructor who sees this sign knows that a situation has been forced upon him, and he usually meets it with as much of repressive discipline as he can devise.

Well illustrative of the "boy scout" spirit was the care which Lieutenant General Sir Robert Baden-Powell took at the dinner given in his honor to accept no undue credit as the starter of the admirable movement which he has done so much to further. He did not claim to be more than an uncle of the scout idea and frankly admitted its American origin. That was in full accord with "scout law," which demands that honesty shall be generous as well as strict and fiercely condemns anything like false pretenses. It is a fact, however, that in England national and international attention was attracted to the possibilities of the scheme, and Sir Robert by his interest and activity in it attained results the influence of which has been felt in the United States.

General Baden-Powell's military title and record have had one slightly unfortunate consequence—that of giving the impression that the boy scouts are in training for war. They are not, except incidentally and rather remotely. It is indeed expected that the scouts will be better soldiers in case of need than other boys, but only because of higher efficiency and intelligence, developed for the attainment of ends entirely unwarlike.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Plenty of Them in McCook, and Good Reason for it.

Wouldn't any woman be happy, After years of backache suffering, Days of misery, nights of unrest, The distress of urinary troubles, She finds relief and cure? No reason why any McCook reader Should suffer in the face of evidence like this.

Mrs. A. M. Wilson, 204 E Second St., McCook, Neb., says: "My back bothered me for years and there was a dull ache across my kidneys and loins. The pain in my back became worse when I exerted myself and often I had headaches and dizzy spells. I could not stoop and there were many other disagreeable symptoms of kidney complaint in evidence. On a friend's advice, I finally procured Doan's Kidney Pills from McConnell's drug store and I soon found them to be just what I needed. This remedy strengthened my back and kidneys and before long effected a complete cure."

(Statement given June 26, 1907.)

Re-endorsement. On June 21, 1910, Mrs. Wilson said: "I am pleased to verify the statement I gave in 1907, recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy is a specific for kidney complaint."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A Simple Safeguard for Mothers.

Mrs. D. Gilkeson, 326 Ingles Ave., Youngstown, Ohio, gained wisdom by experience. "My little girl had a severe cold and coughed almost continuously. My sister recommended Foley's Honey and Tar. The first dose I gave her relieved the inflammation in her throat and after using only one bottle her throat and lungs were entirely free from inflammation. Since then I always keep a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar in the house." Accept no substitutes. A. McMillen.

You May Help Us.

There are three parties to a telephone call—the person making the call, the person called and the Telephone Company. These three must cooperate if the most efficient service is to be given.

You can assist us—

- By consulting the directory to be sure you have the correct number—memory plays tricks.
- By speaking directly into the transmitter in a clear distinct voice.
- By separating the figures of the telephone number when calling, for example, Red 1234, Red one-two-three-four.
- By correcting the operator if she repeats the number incorrectly.
- By moving the receiver hook slowly up and down three times if the operator does not answer promptly.
- By saving much time by identifying yourself when answering, as, "John Smith talking," instead of saying "Hello," and causing unnecessary delay.

No mechanical device can ever take the place of human ingenuity in telephone service; a central operator is a vital part of telephone equipment.
