Will Start a School Paper.
The pupils of the McCook High School are going to start a school paper for the rest of the present school year. The paper will be small in size, printed on a good quality of paper and will contain no advertising matter. The paper will represent the different phases of school activities, particularly from the stand point of news. An effort will be made to have such material in the paper as will be of interest to all pupils and patrons of the schools. The different classes in the high school met and elected three members of their own to form a nominating committee. This nominating committee met in the superintendent's office and chose the editorial staff. The paper will have to stand financially on the money received from the subscriptions. No effort will be made to realize any profit on the enterprise. The following were elected on the editorial staff:
Editor in Chief... Fred Archibald
Business Manager... Harold Schwab
News Editor... Fred Amnden
Literary Editor, Gertrude Morrissey
Athletics... Coaland Wilson
Exchange... Chas. Meeker
Album... Joe Moore
Reporters from the grades:
Ninth... Clyde Rankin
Tenth... Leta Monks
Eleventh... Maurice Benjamin
Twelfth... Adaline Koller
The name of the new paper will be "The McCook High School Megaphone." There will be six issues this year, one for each remaining month of the school year. The first issue will be out Jan. 4-11.
The subscription price will be 25 cents for the six issues this year.

Worse than an alarm of fire at night is the metallic cough of croup, bringing dread to the household. Careful mothers keep Foley's Honey and Tar in the house and give it at the first sign of danger. It contains no opiates. A. McMillen.

At the Right Time.
Nebraska lost the National Corn Exposition because the officers of the National Corn Association insisted on holding it in Omaha just before the holidays. This met with so much objection on the part of business men and newspapers that the Omaha business interests let the show go. The objection was that the corn show drew people into the city at a time when they would do most of their holiday trading in Omaha instead of at home.
But for two years the corn show was an inspiration to the farmers of Nebraska and Iowa. No one doubts its good influence and that it increased interest in farm crops to such an extent that we have larger yields from our lands.
Since the National Corn Exposition left Omaha, there has been such an insistent demand for a mid-winter farm crop exposition where the work of western states could be gathered under one roof and compared, that enterprising Omahans have planned and arranged to hold the "Western Land Products exhibit" in the auditorium of that city from January 18 to 28. It is to be held in the same building where the corn show was held and will take its place in every way, except that only western states can enter their products and it thus becomes a greater exposition for the west than the now famous National Corn Exposition.
The dates selected should be more satisfactory and the attendance larger than at the corn show, and by the exhibits made from Nebraska and Iowa, people of the two states should be convinced when comparing soil products, that these two states offer just as good advantages for more profitable agriculture as the newer states in the west which are making every effort to get settlers from Iowa and Nebraska.

Get the Genuine Always.
A substitute is a dangerous makeshift especially in medicine. The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar cures coughs and colds quickly and is in a yellow package. Accept no substitutes. A. McMillen.
