The Great American Play "Paid in Full."

Those who are curious about the theatre—and no other single contributory to the present-day social structure possesses so general interest—will be entertained by some striking bits of information relating to a successful play. The play is "Paid in Full," written by Eugene Walter, produced by the United Play Co., pronounced by public and critics the greatest and most enjoyable American drama of the time, and shown by actual proof to be the most notable success the stage in this country has known.

"Paid in Full" is now only in its third year, its second outside of New York, yet it has played a total of 244 weeks, with 2012 performances. This astonishing result was attained by five companies simultaneously in different parts of the United States and in Canada. Never before had any one play been acted by so many companies. No other play could have stood it.

All last season these five companies presented this play in New York in all the big cities, in the small ones as well, from coast to coast, from interior Canada to the Gulf, back and forth, covering the same theatre managers for return engagements, frequently as many as five or six times, invariably doing greater business on each "repeat," and this in cities which too often for theatrical good turned out a mere corporal's guard for other attractions known as popular successes.

The career of "Paid in Full" is the most remarkable in theatrical history. Never since the beginning has a play grown in favor like this one. Truly astonishing is its record of return visits. Back to a city for the fifth and sixth time it was sure to draw a bigger house than before. As elsewhere, so in New York. After the play had run for two years on Broadway the four other companies were called upon at various times to renew the New York engagement, and in every instance they were received with all the enthusiasm that had marked the course of "Paid in Full" at the Astor theatre. It is a New York cast that will be seen at the Temple Theatre, Saturday, Dec. 17th, when the United Play Company presents "Paid in Full." Don't allow yourself to miss this great play, with a New York company and production.

"Paid in Full" is a sane and wholesome contrast to the ordinary sickly sociological play of Bernard Shaw and others of his kind. Their art consists mainly in manufacturing heroes out of jelly fish. A community that prefers that sort of thing is a decadent community. "Paid in Full," with a specially selected cast that has won New York favor in this notable play will be at the Temple theatre, McCook, Saturday, Dec. 17th, and the occasion will be looked forward to with unusual expectancy. And so it ought. Every man and woman should see "Paid in Full." It is the greatest play of the age, the best product of the American stage since the beginning, the highest achievement in dramatic writing in this country.
