TREACHEROUS SAND THE CAUSE OF BOY'S DEATH

Alfred Lofvenborg Crushed and Smothered to Death in a Cave-in In Sand Pit Near Town

NEAR A BANK WHERE YOUNG MAN MET DEATH

In a Similar Manner Last Summer--Leon Clark and Ben Lofvenborg Have a Close Call for Their Lives.

Alfred Lofvenborg, son of John Lofvenborg, of West McCook, met death last Thursday afternoon, in the Flitcraft sand pit, a few miles west of the city, in a cave-in. He, his brother Ben, and Leon Clark were in the pit, loading a wagon, when the earth and sand from above caved in upon them. Ben had just thrown his shovel of sand onto the wagon and was in a standing posture, hence noticed the approaching sand and was just able to rush to safety. Alfred and Mr. Clark were both in a stooping position and were in a trice overcome by the weight of earth and sand. Mr. Clark was able to extricate himself sufficiently to escape death but Alfred was crushed and smothered to death before relief could reach him--possibly death was practically instantaneous.

The remains were taken to Inland, Nebraska, Saturday morning for burial besides the body of his mother.

The pit was not the same one in which the young man was killed last summer, but near it.

This is the second death that has occurred in these sand pits and it should seem now as though steps should be taken to make further victims of the treacherous sand impossible.

The dead boy was 19 years of age, an honest hard-working lad with manly friends. His father and the rest of the family are greatly and tenderly sympathized with in this tragedy and sorrow.

Mr. Lofvenborg and son Ben, accompanied the body to Inland for burial.

Alfred Lofvenborg was born in McCook, November 25, 1891. Died January 12th, 1911.

His life was insured for $2,500 in the Bankers Life Insurance Co., of Lincoln.

If there is one thing on earth that a quitter should leave severely alone it is advertising. To make a success of advertising one must be prepared to stick to it like a barnacle on a boat's bottom. Advertising doesn't jerk; it pulls. It begins very gently at first, but the pull is steady. It is likened to a team pulling a heavy load. A thousand spasmodic, jerks pulls will not budge that load, while one-half the power in steady effort will start it and keep it moving.
