Mrs. Parker had been in the Lane family long enough to have taken care of Willard Lane when he was a kid. Some people will think it right for lets correct these disorders and enyou to give her a home here with me for chaperon, while some will talk. But if we're going to listen to what people say of us we'll be hearing something disagreeable all the while. If she's happy here I see no reason why she shouldn't stay."

"That settles it; she remains." Marie Bingham was of an age to be treated either as a woman or one just emerging from childhood, especially by her father's old friend. The tomb, as he had called his house, seemed to have thrown off its sepulchral atmosphere from the day she came into it. For some time after her arrival she felt deeply the loss of her father. But youth is quick to throw off sorrows, and even during this period she was cheerful. Beyond this was the presence of a young girl. It seemed that the very atmosphere had been changed. The servants were better contented and easier to manage. Mrs. Parker's heart, that had been supposed to have congealed with age, came out to the motherless girl, and she was happy in having some one to care for. As for Lane, it seemed to him that he walked lighter. breathed freer-indeed, that the whole world had taken on a brighter hue. Three years passed, years that Lane afterward referred to as the happiest of his life. From the first he was interested at having the direction of a young girl's education, the same as if she were his own daughter. Her income was a slender one, entirely inadequate to give her special advantages. He supplied the deficiency, keeping her in ignorance of the fact. "I must find some young fellows for her," he said to Mrs. Parker. "She needs to associate with young men of

Warning to Railroad men.

Look out for severe and even dangerous kidney and bladder trouble resulting from years of railroading. Geo. E. Bell, 639 Third st., Fort Wayne. Ind., was many years a conductor on the Nickel Plate. He says: "Twenty years of railroading left my kidneys in terrible condition. There was a continual pain across my back and hips and my kidneys gave me much distress, and the action of my bladder was frequent and most painful. I got a supply of Foley Kidney Pills and the first bottle made a wonderful improvement and four bottles cured me completely. Since being cured I have recommended Foley Kidney Pill to many of my railroad friends." A. McMillen.

had just left at the door. He opened and read it:

Willard Lane, Esq.:

Dear Sir-We have to announce to you that by the will of the late Hamilton Bingham, which has this day been admitted to probate, you are appointed executor of his estate and guardian of his daughter, Marle Southworth Bingham. Your ward has no relatives, and it is incumbent upon you to provide a home for KINGSLEY & KINGSLEY, Attorneys.

"Well, well! Poor Bingham's gone! And left his child to me! Why didn't these musty attorneys say something about her age? Will she need a nurse, or is she old enough to go to school by herself? Let me see. I have had no knowledge of Bingham for a dozen years. I can't figure out how old the child is. But, any way, it will liven up this tomb to have any living thing in it. I mustn't sell it. I'll need it for her home. By Jove, that's what I'll do! I'll make a home for her right here!"

Going out to a telegraph office, he sent the following message to the attorneys: "Send Marie Bingham here." During the evening Mr. Lane received a reply that his ward would be with him at 5 o'clock the next evening, and it was suggested that he meet her at the station. Calling for Mrs. Parker, harness 1000 00 he gave her minute instructions as to the preparations he desired made.

"Put in order," he said, "the two rooms adjoining on the west, second story-the one for a nurse, the other for a child. In the garret is a crib that has been there for years. Get it down, and I'll order a new mattress." "How old is the child, sir?" asked the housekeeper.

"How old? I don't know. The stupid attorneys didn't say anything about her age, but I figure it out that she can't be over, say, ten years old. If she is I've been getting old mighty fast. I hope she's between six and twelve. We'll assume that she's seven, not too 1st McCook 1300 00 old for dolls, sets of dishes and all that. It. He gave it to her, and she perused At any rate, I'll provide these when I | it carefully, go downtown tomorrow. Poor little thing! I wish her to feel at home. She's just lost her father."

"I'll see that everything is done, sir." So Lane the next day sent home all that was required, including such toys as would please a child seven years old. There were three dolls and a playhouse big enough for the little girl to get into-that is, if she wasn't large for her own age." Mrs. Parker looked up at the celling and said nothing.

So Lane hunted up some of the younger members of his club and took them to call upon his ward. She appeared to enjoy their society, but it was not to be expected that she would fulfill the purpose for which he had brought them-that is, that she should marry one of them. Her twenty-first birthday was near at hand, when by the terms of her father's will her inheritance was to be turned over to her, and, though her guardian had trotted up a number of attractive young men, she had shown none of them any preference.

The day she was twenty-one Lane handed in to the chancery court an account of his stewardship. His ward surprised him by asking for a copy of "I can't make this out," she said to her guardian. "What has been the average income from the estate since father's death?" "About $700." "How much have you charged me for board?" "There hasn't been any income for board. It has all been needed for schooling." "And how much has been drawn for schooling?" "Nothing has been drawn for schooling. It was all needed for board." She looked up from the paper. There was a revelation for him in that look. She put out her hand and rested it on his. He drew her to him and kissed The next morning Lane said to Mrs. Parker, "I have a surprise for you." "What is it?" "Marie is going to turn down all the boys to marry the old man." "Tut! That's no surprise."
