TRUE IRISH BULLS.

They Have a Flavor All Their Own, "the Effect of Climate."

BRANDS FROM OTHER LANDS.

The Best of the French Bulls Are Acted, Not Spoken—Some Droll Examples of the Italian, Portuguese, Dutch and German. Sir Richard Steele explained why his countrymen made bulls: "Tis the effect of the climate, sir. If an Englishman were born in Ireland he would make as many," said he. It is not every one who knows a bull when he sees her. It may be no bull, but merely a blunder—a betise, as the French have it. To make sure that we have the true criterion let us first set down a few of the genuine, orthodox Irish kind: He built the wall wider than it was high, so that when it fell down it should be higher than it was wide. Two weary and footsore Irishmen come to a milestone, ten miles to Dublin. "Arrah," says one, "'tis but five miles apiece." Disputing of the date of St. Patrick's birthday, "He couldn't have had two unless he was twins." An Irish sailor reported that in Philadelphia they copper bottomed the tops of the houses with sheet lead. Give me the loan of a hatchet to saw an empty barrel of flour in two to make the dog a pigpen. His estate is divided by impenetrable furze ditches made of quarried stones set on edge. An Irishman, describing a glorious fight, said, "There was only one whole nose in the house, and that was the taylor's." In these and in hundreds like them we have the true flavor of the Irish bull. There are genuine bulls in French, but they are rare. The genius of the language does not lend itself to anything less than neat precision. A French bull is usually nothing more than a betise. Still, French bulls exist. Leon, Bishop and Count of Lisieux wrote to the Duchess of Brissac as follows: "Madame, knowing how fond you are of red partridges, I send you here with half a dozen. Three of them are gray, and one is a woodcock. You will find this letter in the bottom of the basket." A Frenchman used a large stone jar for a pillow, explaining that it was not hard because he had stuffed it full of hay. The very best French bulls are acted, not spoken. The Duke de St. Simon relates that a lady, lying ill, was much disturbed by the ringing of the church bells. To deaden the noise her lover had the street in front of her house laid with straw. A spoken bull in French is apt to be something different from the Irish variety, something more like a betise, as has been said. And it is difficult to retain the flavor in translation. "Ce sont toujours les memes soldats qui se font tuer," says Marshal Bugeaud of his army. This loses a little when one translates, "It is always the same soldiers who get themselves killed." "En fait d'utilites il ne faut que le necessaire" is more highly colored in the French than in its translation, "Only so many useless things are required as are strictly necessary." Here is the translation of part of an Italian letter: "We have had a most famous earthquake. If by the mercy of God it had lasted for another half hour we should all have gone to paradise, from which my God deliver us. Whether you receive this letter or not, please advise me in either case." Here is a Portuguese bull. In offering a reward for the recovery of the corpse of a drowned man his relatives remarked that the deceased might be identified, if found, by a slight impediment in his speech. After much research it has been so far impossible to discover a genuine Spanish bull, but here is a Dutch bull: "The pig had no marks on his ears except a short tail." And here is a German bull: "Der Zahn der Zeit, der alle Thranen trocknet, wird auch uber diese Sache Gras wachsen lassen" ("The tooth of time, that wipes away all tears, will permit grass to grow over this matter also"). Blunders in English speech are not uncommon. The orthodox bull of Ireland has scarcely crossed the channel. A fellow of the Royal society speaks of "the earthquake that had had the honor to be noticed by the Royal society." "The West Indies will now have a future which they have never had in the past" sounds promising until one sees that its bullish quality is a mere blunder by which the word "opportunities" was omitted. There is none of the flavor of the famous definition of salt by the Irish schoolboy, "Salt is that which makes your potatoes taste nasty if you don't put it in." Even the best of the foreign bulls in Latin tongues evoke the suspicion that they are mere translations from Irish originals. The Dutch, the Germans and perhaps the English may have the genuine article at times. No distinctively American bulls have emerged from the long research that is the foundation of these few paragraphs.—New York Sun.

CARE FREE CONVICTS.

Jail Life in Montenegro a Cheerful Sort of Existence. Cetinje, the capital of Montenegro, possesses the most remarkable prison system in the world. The jail presents little to indicate that it is a place of confinement. There are no outer prison walls, and in the cells the men—about ten in each—are as contentedly and comfortably housed as their own personal domestic belongings can make them. Moreover, they are generously fed, and cigarettes without stint, wine occasionally and no work at all combine to check any desire to escape more effectually than would strong walls, iron bars and an army of warders. When W. J. Stillman was in that country in the seventies all the free men were away fighting, and he observed how when a messenger was wanted the official took a man out of the prison and sent him off, having no fear that he would not return. One such messenger was sent to Cattaro, in Austrian territory, with 3,000 florins for the bank and duly came back. Another asked a Russian at Cattaro to intercede with Prince Nicholas for his release from prison. "But you are not in prison," said the Russian. "Oh," said the man, "I have only come down for a load of skins for So-and-so, but I must go into prison again when I get back to Cetinje." One guard watched all the prisoners when they sunned themselves out of doors, and if he were called away a prisoner would take his rifle and do duty for the time.—London Mail.

GRISTLE BREAD.

A Favorite in Norway and in Parts of Germany. "What is gristle bread? Why, that," said a baker, "is a kind of bread that is peculiar to Norway and to some parts of Germany. In Norway it has been made for many years, and here there are bakeries in which it is made for Norwegian patrons who still prefer it wherever they may be. "In making gristle bread the loaves when first formed up from the dough are laid on boards and put through an extra heated oven in which there is baked on them an outer crust or skin, the gristle. Then the loaves are turned over and put through the oven again, so that the gristle may be baked all over them. This quick oven makes only that outer crust on the loaves, which are then placed in another oven for their final complete baking. "Originally in Norway gristle bread was made of rye flour only. In this country there was a demand for a handsomer and larger loaf, and wheat flour was mixed with the rye, as has now to some extent come to be the custom in Norway also. Here the proportions now used are about half and half, the result being a bigger loaf of the same weight as one of all rye. "Gristle bread costs more than ordinary bread because of the greater time and labor required in making it."—New York Sun.

His Equivocal Answer.

The blushing girl buttonholed her flushed fiance. "Well, Egbert," she murmured, "did papa give his consent?" Egbert drew himself up stiffly. "He did not commit himself either way," he responded. "Then are we or aren't we engaged, Egby?" "I do not know," answered Egby, still stiffly. "But what happened?" "This," said Egby more stiffly than ever. "I went in and said: 'Sir, I wish to marry your daughter. Have I your consent?' He turned and looked at me a minute, then he grew red in the face, then he grabbed me, then he lifted me up, then he threw me over the banisters. But whether he is in favor of our engagement or not, Ethelbrite, he did not say."

Beginning of the Drama.

The theater in the only sense that is worth considering was born in Athens. Both tragedy and comedy spring from feasts in honor of Bacchus, and as the jests and frolics were found to be out of place when introduced into graver scenes a separate province—the true drama—was formed and comedy arose. The father of the Greek comedy was Aristophanes, who had lots of fun lampooning the public men of Athens. The creator of Greek tragedy was Aeschylus, born B. C. 525. In sublimity Aeschylus has never been surpassed. He is to the drama what Phidias and Michelangelo are to art.—New York American.

The Irony of Fate.

"What is your understanding of the irony of fate?" asked the bashful young man. "Well," the beautiful girl replied, "if two fellows should fight over me and I shouldn't get into the papers I should think that was about it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Celebrity.

The doctor told little Missy she was unwell because she was so white. "A few days in bed," she exclaimed. "Oh, mamma, come here and look at this mamma horse! He's just as white as he can be!"—Judge.

PAYING WORK

The Lincoln Daily and Weekly Star are two of the few publications which give the subscriber more than he really pays for. Big Value and small price are the very features that have given The Star the largest circulation of any Nebraska paper outside of Omaha. People are just as willing, in fact more so to place their subscriptions with our field representatives, than to send them in direct to us. WE WANT MORE REPRESENTATIVES to look after the renewal of our expirations and send in new subscriptions. We are prepared to pay you for your work, and pay you mightily well. We have a liberal proposition to make you. For terms and supplies write to F. J. REHLAENDER, Business Mgr., Star Publishing Co., Lincoln, Neb.

A Reliable Medicine—Not a Narcotic. Mrs. F. Marti, St. Joe, Mich., says: "Our little boy contracted a severe bronchial trouble and as the doctor's medicine did not cure him, I gave him Foley's Honey and Tar Compound in which I have great faith. It cured the cough as well as the choking and gagging spells, and he got well in a short time. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has many times saved us much trouble and we are never without it in the house." A. McMullen.

In cases of rheumatism relief from pain makes sleep and rest possible. This may be obtained by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. For sale by all dealers.

Old Dutch Cleanser

Will Be Welcome In Every Home

Because it keeps the house, from cellar to attic, in spick and span condition, and saves the housewife labor, time, trouble and expense. Just you try it!

Washing Dishes Without Drudgery

Place dishes in pan of warm water, sprinkle a little Old Dutch Cleanser on dish-cloth (don't put the cleanser in water) and wash, each piece, putting second pan to drain, rinse in clean water and wipe dry. Easier, quicker and hygienic; no caustic or acids (not a soap powder). Old Dutch Cleanser will remove the hardest "burnt in" crust from pots and pans, without the old time scalding and scraping.

Cleans-- Scrubs-- Scours-- Polishes

Lame shoulder is nearly always due to rheumatism of the muscles, and quickly yields to the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. For sale by all druggists.
