Ex-Governor Shallenberger Delivers a Fine Address

Ex-Governor Shallenberger of Alma addressed a fine audience in the Temple theatre last Saturday afternoon, on "The Advantages and Benefits of an Agricultural College." The governor is an enthusiast on the agricultural college proposition and has an enviable reputation as a practical and successful farmer and stock raiser. Hence his utterances along the line of agriculture, soil, stock, etc., are entitled to weight. Withal he carries enthusiasm and energy and optimism of a sane sort, and is a convincing talker, a live wire in street parlance.

He is an earnest advocate of the back to the soil movement, and credits the soil with producing the best conditions for the best citizenship and human development, and quotes history fluently and copiously to prove this pet theory of his. Hence it is not surprising to find him lined up with all his energy and enthusiasm for the agricultural college authorized by the last legislature, a bill he championed vigorously and successfully.

Unlike some others, the ex-governor believes such a school would have before it a splendid growth and development, and would be a tremendous factor in the scientific development of Southwestern Nebraska.

Knowing that Southwestern Nebraska constitutes a distinct soil and rain area, the governor believes that this school will prove finally most valuable in discovering and developing the scientific basis for the culture of this soil under the circumstances of small rainfall conditions. Eastern Nebraska has its distinct soil and rain conditions. Southwestern Nebraska has its distinct soil and rain and climatic conditions. Hence it will be the province of this college to bend its every energy to the solution of the specific and special problems of this part of the state.

Such a college the governor argues will have a tendency to keep the young men on the farm, to elevate it to the scale of a profession, where the farmer will stand shoulder to shoulder with the banker, the lawyer, the preacher in importance and dignity. That the school will make easier, less expensive and more certain the solution of the difficult problems of dry soil farming in this section, and therefore will add immensely to the advancement of this part of Nebraska, within a very few years from its establishment.

The speaker placed no small estimate on the benefits of the proposed school to this part of Nebraska, and no doubt succeeded in inspiring his hearers with some of the optimism and enthusiasm he felt for the measure.

In the evening Mr. Shallenberger was a guest of the McCook Commercial club, where many members had the pleasure of a more intimate touch with the gentleman, who served the state well in the capacity of governor, and who is one of the strong and progressive men of our part of Nebraska.

The Tribune takes pleasure in thus publicly extending Mr. Shallenberger the thanks and appreciation of this community for his address.

Bishop Beecher Addressed McCook Commercial Club

Bishop Beecher of the Western Nebraska diocese of the Episcopal church, while in the city last Friday evening in the line of his official duties in this part of the diocese, took advantage of the opportunity to briefly address the members of the McCook Commercial club, while remaining over between trains.

The general trend of his remarks was toward good citizenship—that not the money and might of a country made it essentially great and enduring, but the quality of its citizenship.

Personally, the bishop is a virile, forceful man, who appeals to men, and his remarks were attentively received and enjoyed.

Incidentally, the bishop partially unfolded a matter near his heart, the founding of a farm for boys somewhere in this part of the state. The bishop has been closely allied with juvenile court work in Omaha for years, and this thought of a farm for boys is the result of his observations and experiences in that capacity.

While this matter is in embryo, the bishop hopes in time to be able to realize this dream, and may in the not distant future, have something more tangible to bring before the people of this part of his diocese.

Boosts Agricultural College and Good Roads Movement

An Omaha friend of the publisher in a personal letter says some things so pertinent that we take the liberty of reproducing them here:

"I note that McCook is making an effort to secure the location of the new agricultural college and I hope she succeeds as it is the logical location. That part of the state west of the 100th meridian known as the semi-arid portion and covering more than one-third of the state, should have this new school where methods of dry farming should be taught and developed. I have great faith in the future of that section of the state, though progress toward its development has not been very encouraging to date. There is much to be learned how to procure the best results on those dry farms and nowhere is there more need of special agricultural education to meet the conditions and the needs of climate and soil. May success meet your efforts.

"Another matter that you people in southwest Nebraska should not overlook and that is the good roads movement that is arousing so much interest all over the land. Nowhere are good roads built and maintained so cheaply as out there in your country. If you people build that road from the Colorado line through Imperial and down the Frenchman valley to Culbertson and on east it will become the main automobile road between Denver and Omaha and no man or set of men can decree otherwise."

Lily Patent Flour—when once used none other will satisfy you.

Methodist Church Notes.

The special meetings at the Methodist church will close with Easter Sunday. These meetings have been of untold value to the church and a goodly number of persons found peace and their personal saviors. Rev. Sturgis proved himself to be a man of God, and endeared himself to the hearts of the people and the best wishes and prayers of all who knew him go with him in his labors in other fields. There will be special Easter music and Easter services reminding us of our risen Lord through whom we have hope of immortality.

The Epworth League wishes to announce that there will be a sun-rise prayer meeting at 6 a. m., beginning promptly on time and closing in 45 minutes. This meeting will be open to all people and hope to see many come to enjoy its blessings. The pastor would be pleased to see all members and friends on this glad Easter day.

K. of P. Boosters.

A bunch of Pythians went up to Haigler this morning to some special doings. Incidentally, the boys will do some boosting for the Agricultural college.

Special Monday.

A special meeting of the City Council has been called to meet Monday night.

Postoffice to Close On Sunday.

As the department has approved of the Sunday closing idea, and beginning with Easter Sunday, April 16, there will cease to be a Sunday delivery by carriers, I wish to fully inform the public as to the extent of the Sunday service.

The general delivery window will be open for one hour at the usual time, 12 to 1 o'clock, to accommodate transient patrons and permit the necessary purchase of stamps and envelopes.

Carriers' windows will be closed and it is not expected that patrons of the city delivery service will call for mail unless it should be something of great importance, when they may call at the postmaster's office and state the circumstances. The same courteous attention will be given such requests as has characterized the office heretofore.

All incoming mails will be distributed as usual, and patrons having boxes will receive exactly the same service as formerly. The usual evening collections from street letter boxes will be maintained, and mails dispatched to out going trains as heretofore.

The postoffice department believes that postal employees are as much entitled to a day of rest as are other toilers, and that a large part of the Sunday delivery is wholly unnecessary, and it is hoped that McCook people will look upon this change with the same liberal and charitable spirit which has characterized the citizens of other towns and cities.

LON CONE, Postmaster.

Engravings of Presidents.

A. Barnett presented the high school Monday evening with a complete set of twenty-five presidents of the United States. They are steel engravings, nicely framed, and compose a handsome present. Mr. Barnett delivered a very neat presentation speech in delivering the engravings to the school.

A enumeration of the gifts and services to the public schools of Mr. Barnett as a member of board of education and as a citizen, place him easily among our most philanthropic citizens and The Tribune herewith makes due acknowledgement of the same.

He will be missed from the board, retiring as he does with the present term.

Dismissed by Supreme Court.

The mandamus case of Lafe Burnett, the Lincoln lawyer who has gained more than his share of notoriety, against C. A. Rodgers of our city, to compel Clerk Rogers to furnish a bill of exceptions, has been dismissed by the supreme court of Nebraska. Clerk of the District Court Rodgers defended on the ground that it was an attempt to obtain the bill of exceptions without payment of his fee, and the supreme court sustained his contention.
