W. N. ROGERS IS INTERVIEWED.

Veteran Hereford Breeder of McCook Is Booster for College Location.

The field man recently interviewed W. N. Rogers, the Hereford king of McCook, Neb., who divided his time between extolling the virtues of his White-face offerings in the South Omaha sale of April 12 and 13, and boosting for McCook as the logical location for the new agricultural college, just authorized by the Nebraska legislature.

Rogers' line-up of McCook's claims runs somewhat like this: It is geographically ideal and logical. Its railroad facilities are unapproachable in that section. Being both a center for thorough bred and range stock raising, it best subserves the purpose of the college to advance the great stock interests of southwest Nebraska. As headquarters for the promotion of the sugar beet industry it has additional demands for expert agricultural skill in developing that feature of agriculture. Having both irrigated and dry land farming at its door, with rain and soil conditions typical of the large area to be assisted by this college, it has every desirable feature for the greatest good to the greatest number. Hence, Rogers boosts mightily. — Daily Drivers Journal-Stockman, South Omaha, April 17, 1911.

After State School.

The town of McCook is bending every effort to secure a state agricultural college which is to be located somewhere in the western part of the state of Nebraska in the near future. The town of Holdrege is also after the school and seems to be McCook's formidable rival.

We hope that McCook may be successful in landing the prize as such a school there would be of value to not only Southeastern Nebraska, but Eastern Colorado as well. There is no school of the grade of a state agricultural college between Lincoln and Denver and such an one located at McCook would mean much to this section, known as the "dry farming" region. The school located at McCook would be of greater advantage to Western Nebraska than one located at Holdrege for the reason that the country surrounding the latter place is not identical to it from the standpoint of rainfall and other climatic conditions but more nearly identical to the eastern part of the state.

It behooves every town in southeastern Nebraska to "get into the band wagon" and boost for their sister town of McCook.—Wray (Colo.) Gazette, April 20, 1911.

Schools Consolidated for Closing Day Exercises.

On Saturday, April 22nd, Miss Maggie Doyle, teacher of Dist. 64, Miss Sallie Minnick of Dist. 65, and Mr. Francis Hall of Dist. 76, and scholars consolidated with Miss Alice Moore's school of Dist. 58, known as the Coleman district for the closing day exercises.

An excellent program was rendered which was very creditable to the schools.

We are all very grateful to Mr. Jim Heskett for the fine music rendered by his phonograph, after which a very sumptuous dinner was served.

At about 4:30 all considering it a day well spent departed for their various homes.

Arbor Lay Observed.

Arbor Day, last Saturday, was observed by the banks, which was about the only outward observance given the day in McCook. The postoffice remained open and the carriers made their usual deliveries. All other business was conducted regularly.

Constipation brings many ailments in its train and is the primary cause of much sickness. Keep your bowels regular, madam, and you will escape many of the ailments to which women are subject. Constipation is a very simple thing, but like many simple things, it may lead to serious consequences. Nature often needs a little assistance and when Chamberlain's Tablets are given at the first indication, much distress and suffering may be avoided. Sold by all druggists.

Better of the Argument.

Quite a contest prevails between the cities of Holdrege and McCook for the location, by the state board of public lands and buildings, of the new agricultural school, for the establishment of which, in the southwestern and semi-arid region of the state, appropriation has been made by the legislature. The agricultural school in connection with the state university of Lincoln well supplies the demand for agricultural education and demonstration in the eastern part of the state. There has long, however, been a demand for a similar institution in the western part of the state, in a section in which climatic and soil conditions were far different from those prevailing, with reference to the institution at Lincoln. Such a school has now been provided for. The measure establishing the school provides that it must be located west of the 99th meridian and south of the north line of the first tier of counties running across the widest section of the state, that is, in the southwestern section of the state. Holdrege is located almost along the eastern border of this district, and in the rain belt, rather than the semi-arid section and with the end in view that such a school shall do its utmost to promote the development of the semi-arid section of Nebraska McCook would seem to have much the better of the argument. The development of that section is, of course, of indirect interest to every other section of the state.—Grand Island Independent, April 22, 1911.

All the Advantages.

McCook is making a vigorous fight for the location of the new state agricultural college; and her geographical location furnishes the city with cause to hope for success. In addition to being located almost in the center of the district covered by the bill, that section furnishes both valley and upland soil for experimental purposes and possesses all of the advantages for such an institution, with few of the disadvantages.—Fairbury News, April 14, 1911.

That's McCook.

McCook is living in high hopes of securing that new agricultural college, and the sentiment of the entire southwestern part of the state is agreeable that it should. By all right of necessity, the place for that college is at McCook. The place to drive a nail is where it is needed. The district in which to experiment on dry farming methods and how to induce grain to grow is where crops have been an uncertain quantity for several years. That's McCook.—Benkelman News.

Loves Us Still.

Oxford has it decided that the agricultural college will be located there but we still think that McCook is the logical location.—Danbury News.

Trenton Heads District.

In two of the districts the championship honors have been settled, the southwestern and the western. In the southwestern district, Trenton carried off the honors by defeating Minden at Minden, April 14. The Trenton debaters, Raymond Scott, William Wertz and Oscar Carlson, first won from Culbertson, then from Indianola, which had defeated McCook, and finally from Minden which had won from Beaver City, the winners from Franklin. The championship in 1909 and again in 1910 went to Beaver City.—Lincoln Journal.

A Reliable Medicine—Not a Narcotic.

Mrs. F. Matti, St. Joe Mich., says: "Our little boy contracted a severe bronchial trouble and as the doctor's medicine did not cure him, I gave him Foley's Honey and Tar Compound in which I have great faith. It cured the cough as well as the choking and gagging spells, and he got well in a short time. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has many times saved us much trouble and we are never without it in the house." A. McMillen.

Minta Scott Tindall Marries.

Mrs. Araminta Tindall of McCook, widow of Zene Tindall of Atwood, well known in Benkelman in her childhood days as Minta Scott, was married to Henry Rogers of McCook at Lincoln last week. The congratulations of a host of old friends in this community are extended. The bridegroom is a brother of the husband of the bride's sister, Mary.—Benkelman News.

ANOTHER BANK STORY

Smith bought some pigs from his neighbor Jones. The price came to $6.42. Smith paid Jones in cash, but as usual neither had the proper change. and Smith said; "Just make it even money." Smith lost 8 cents. Jones bought some pigs from his neighbor Johnson. The price came to $6.42. Jones had no money in the bank and gave Johnson a check for the exact amount. Jones did not lose a cent. This is only one of the advantages of a checking account. Come in and let us explain further.

Roast Pork.

The extra stock train shot into the Beaver city yards at 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning with two cars of the stock cars on fire. One which was loaded with hogs was totally consumed, and all the hogs were burned to death except ten, which were put to death by the train men to relieve their agony. It was an awful scene. The hogs died in terrible contortions, some of them being actually on fire while yet squealing in death agony. Their piteous cries were heard for miles.

The car caught fire between Hendley and Beaver City from sparks from the engine. A fast run was made to town and an effort made to put out the fire at the water tank, but the flames had gained too much headway and had been communicated to a car of cattle next to the hogs. This the train men succeeded in extinguishing.

The hogs were owned by J. W. Rice of Wilsonville, and were valued at $1700. As the fire caught in the roof of car instead of the straw used for bedding, as suggested by some, his claim against the company will no doubt be paid.—Beaver City Tribune.

The Sound Sleep of Good Health.
Can not be over estimated and any ailment that prevents it is a menace to health. J. L. Southers, Eau Claire, Wis., says: "I have been unable to sleep soundly nights, because of pains across my back and soreness of my kidneys. My appetite was very poor and my general condition was much run down. I have been taking Foley's Kidney Pills but a short time and now sleep as sound as a rock, my general condition is greatly improved, and I know that Foley Kidney Pills have cured me." A. McMillen.
