INITIATING THE CUB.

Stunts the New Boys in Some Banks Have to Face.

Now, when a tyro goes to work in a machine shop he is sent to the tool room for a left handed monkey wrench. A foundry wag will send the new boy in search of "core holes." A printer's devil is sent to the typefounders with a wheelbarrow for a hair space. Humorists in certain Kansas City banks have a revised code, says the Times of that city.

Here are six things the beginner probably will be required to seek—at drug stores, in stationery shops, even at the county courthouse, where one trustful youth went the other day to inquire diligently for a "speed ball" to assist him in his work:

There is the "speed ball," then, and there is the "check stretcher," presumably used to increase the size of checks that do not conform to the filing cases; the "discount board," supposed to be checkered in a manner to facilitate the handling of discounted paper; the "clearing house key," in search for which half a day easily may be consumed, and for the red and black lines that lie artistically on the fair pages what could be more appropriate than "striped ink," and lest the ink becomes too thick should not an "ink strainer" be procured? Ask the new boy.

THE FIRST ASTOR.

A Daring and Resourceful Operator in the Fur Trade.

John Jacob Astor was born in the little village of Waldorf, in Germany, in 1763, just as France at the close of the Seven Years' war was ceding Canada to England. He sailed to our side of the Atlantic in 1783, when George III, in the treaty of Paris was acknowledging our independence and when the merchants of Montreal were establishing the Northwest company. He became a fur dealer, gradually gained control of the trade south of Lakes Huron and Superior, except that which was in the hands of the Mackinaw company, and won a reputation as a daring and resourceful operator, which made his name known in Montreal, St. Louis, London and Canton.

He had a dozen vessels afloat, representing a capital of $1,000,000, carrying furs to England and China in 1800, and at the time that the purchase of Louisiana in 1803 pushed our boundary to the Rocky mountains he was the wealthiest and most successful merchant in the United States.—North American Review.

The Man of Leisure.

Most of our rich men work very hard—not always because they want to, but in many instances because they have to. The husbandry of a big estate in itself may be a task for the whole of the time and thought, not of one man, but of several. As a general thing it is fair to say that our only man of leisure is the tramp. The social pariah, the mutineer against the rule of work, is the only one who can be sure of a cure free, sybaritic existence, and even he lives in constant danger of rock salt from the farmer's gun or the onslaught of the watchdog around the corner as the hobo knocks at the kitchen door or pauses at the water trough to drink. The poor tramp is certainly a more frequent social phenomenon than the rich one.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Earl and the Angler.

One of the earls of Minto had a kindly nature. One day a Hawick angler was throwing his line on the river near Minto when a tall gentleman came up to him and inquired what kind of sport he was having. The fisher replied that it was not very good and that he could do better if he were at the other side of the water, adding, "I'll give ye sixpence if ye'll carry me across." The bargain was struck, and the gentleman, setting the angler on his back, carried him through the water to the other side. True to his promise, the angler produced the sixpence, which he proffered to the stranger, who, however, smiled and remarked, "Give it to the first beggar you meet and tell him it is a present from the Earl of Minto."

Why She Worried.

"But, mother, why do you object to my being pleasant to the young men? You can't hope to keep me with you always, you know. One of them will take me away from you some day."
 "Take you away from me? Well, if that happens I shall not complain. It is the certainty that none of the young men who have been coming here so far would take you away that has worried both your father and me."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Only Wanted the Chance.

Emperor—I do not care to hear your proposition, sir. Everything that is submitted must first be put through the prime minister. Subject—Nothing would please me better. I wanted to show you the new layonet which I have invented for army use.—London Answers.

Willing, but Cautious.

"Yes, my daughter eloped."
 "I suppose you will forgive the young couple?"
 "Not until they have located a place to board."—Washington Herald.

Tough Combination.

Probably there is no combination on earth harder to live with than an artistic temperament soured in a bad cold.—Galveston News.

It is always safe to learn even from our enemies, never safe to instruct even our friends.—Colton.

INDIANOLA.

Mrs. Frank Lowe came up from Steele City on Saturday evening for a visit with the home folks.
 Mr. and Mrs. Garry Dole visited with the Hatcher family this week.
 The Memorial services were held in the M. E. church Sunday, Rev. Bayne of McCook preaching the sermon.
 Y. Stoddard returned from a trip in Colorado Saturday.
 Relatives are visiting at the Goben home this week.
 The junior class royally entertained the senior class Thursday evening. They were first taken for a hay rack ride which was a most pleasant feature as it was an ideal evening, then they were taken to the home of Fern Hedges where they were entertained with games consisting of strawberries, salad and sandwiches, ice-cream and cake. It was in the early hours of morning when they left, all declaring it was one of the most pleasant evenings they ever spent.
 Friday at the school house patron's day was observed, work from all grades was on exhibit. The teachers served punch and waffles. Although it was a stormy day there was quite a crowd out to enjoy it.
 The baccalaureate service was held in the M. E. church Sunday evening, the pastor, Mr. Norlan, having charge. Indianola was the scene of a fearful disaster Monday morning when

No. 9 and No. 12 ran together just west of the creek bridge. Some eleven were killed and several more injured. A large crowd from the country and towns gathered in no time to view the ruins.

R. F. D. No. 1.

W. N. Rogers has commenced the work of excavating for his irrigation ditch.
 Ash Creek was largely represented at the Indianola wreck Monday.

About an inch of rain fell in parts of the east side of Bondville precinct last Friday. But it was very streaked.

Miss Pearl Rogers left Tuesday for Deshier, Nebraska, to visit the Mitchell family. She will also visit in other Nebraska points before her return home.

Harry Rogers is shipping his goods and effects to Lake View, Iowa, where he expects to go Sunday night. He will engage there in the fine stock business. He expects to make the old gentleman go some.

For Sale.

S. E. 1/4 sec. 7 and N. E. 1/4 sec. 18, T. 5, R. 29, and N. E. 1/4 and N. W. 1/4 S. E. 1/4 sec. 12, T. 5, R. 29. Will consider any fair offer, cash or part on time. Address owner.
 J. T. FOLEY, Lewistown, Montana.

SCENES FROM THE RAILROAD WRECK AT INDIANOLA ON MONDAY

DON'T PLAN that summer vacation away off some place. Why should you? You wouldn't have a better time with the inconveniences of hot-weather travel and of being away from home comforts than you can have right here. Plan for a vacation Chautauqua Week. The Chautauqua is bringing a whole host of high-class musical companies, entertainers, orators and Chautauqua lecturers for your entertainment—for you folks who live right here in this community. You would travel for months to hear and see as much that is of the same class—and then you might not find it. It's a great gathering of great men and women—the largest and best that could be sent to you in so short a time. Plan to stay at home—if it's a good time you want.
