The Burlington weed burner, which is in competition with S. W. Wind, has completed its work on the St. Francis branch, finishing between Beaver City and Orleans, Wednesday.

—Beaver City Tribune.

The Burlington operated their weed burner on this branch this week, burning off the weeds on the right-of-way on the Hendley and Wilsonville sections on Thursday. The destroying agent is coal oil, which is burned in a machine something on the order of a street sprinkler, which is trailed behind an engine. While it does not burn the green weeds to the ground, they are saturated with oil, and it is claimed that they die in a day or two.—Hendley Delphic.

IDENTIFIED.

Wreck Victim Who Didn't Know Where He Came From Found by Relatives.

The mystery surrounding the identity of one of the men hurt in the Indianola wreck has been solved, says the Lincoln Daily News. He thought his name was Hart and that he once lived at Mt. Pleasant, Ia. After the wreck he was taken to Holdrege, where he lay in a stupor for a long time.

The fact that a man named Hart who thought he came from the Iowa town was brought to the attention of Mt. Pleasant people, and a cousin, Mrs. Mamie McDorman, came to care for him. He was able to recognize her. A dispatch from Holdrege says:

"The relatives think that it will be necessary to have a guardian appointed for him on account of his present condition and papers have been filed in the county court there to this end. F. W. Byrd, an attorney of this city, has been retained as counsel to look after the injured man's interests. It is alleged that Mr. Hart while in worse condition even than he is now in, made a settlement with the railroad company which the relatives think will not stand when the facts are properly presented. The sum the injured man is supposed to have settled for is $700.

MUST REPORT WRECK AT ONCE.

Commerce Commission Orders Wire Account of All Fatal Railroad Accidents.

Washington, June 22.—Every common carrier will be required, after July 1, 1911, to report to the Interstate Commerce commission by telegraph, "any collision, derailment or other accident," resulting in the death of one or more persons.

By the terms of an order issued today by the commission a report must be sent "immediately after the occurrence of the accident" by a responsible officer of the carrier.

The Cost of a Wreck.

That the head-on collision of Burlington trains Nos. 9 and 12, near Indianola, Neb., May 29, will cost that road at least $250,000, is the opinion of the accountants who are now completing the damage figures. Nearly $200,000 of this amount will be paid because of personal injuries. One death claim, asking $32,000 for the life of a Holdrege, Neb., citizen, was filed the day following the catastrophe. This was the largest amount asked for a death, and it is said, will not be paid outside of court. All other claims probably will be adjusted without recourse to law.—Omaha News.

I was at Sibley, Iowa, the other day and caught this one: Two German women met in a store and after friendly greetings one of them said: "I see you have been buying an automobile. What kind of a one is it?" "Oh, yes, ve haf, but I fertit the name."

"Why, can't you think what it is, a Reo, or a Ford or something like that?"

"No, I can't think vat it iss, but it sounds somethings like Vomick."

"Vomick; no, no; there is no automobile like that. Is it a Mitchell or a Buick or—"

"That's it—Puick. I knew it vas somethings like Vomick, but I could not jes tink vat it vas—Puick."—Denison Bulletin.

MARTIN TELLS WHY BOARD LOCATED SCHOOL AT CURTIS

Attorney General Grant G. Martin has written a letter to J. R. Cooper, a Holdrege newspaper man, in which he states the position taken by him in regard to the location of the new southwestern Nebraska agricultural school at Curtis. The letter is in reply to one from Mr. Cooper, which reads as follows:

"The people of this section of the state have been awaiting some statement from the board of public lands and buildings, of which you are a member, giving the controlling reason for the location of the Nebraska agricultural school at Curtis. We have noticed statements from Mr. George and Mr. Wait, to the effect that each gentleman favored a certain city as the location. We understand that you are not bound to explain your vote, and yet in justice to yourself don't you think it would be the best thing to do? From authority which we believe to be reliable we understand that but for your influence the school would have been located elsewhere. The people of our section choose to hear from you before passing their final judgment in this case. On account of the inaccessibility of the town of Curtis we cannot believe that its central location geographically carried any weight in favor of its choice by your board.

"This paper would be pleased to give space to any statement you would choose to make."

Attorney General Martin says in his letter written in reply:

"I shall speak for myself only. The democratic state platform pledged the establishment of an agricultural school in southwestern Nebraska. The legislature fixed the boundaries within which it should be located, making the 99th meridian, which passes about two miles west of Minden, the east line, and making the 4th standard, which passes along the edge of Broken Bow, the north boundary. The legislature left the selection of the site to the four members of the board of public lands and buildings, of which I am one.

When confronting the fact that the district is from 161 to 261 miles in length, it seemed that the school ought to be located farther west than any of these cities. Approximate the population east of those cities in this district is 40,000 and west 115,000. Besides, there was a state normal school located almost on the east line, at Kearney, and only a few miles distant from those cities.

"Curtis is 80 miles from the east line, 81 miles from the Colorado line, and 181 miles from the extreme western line. Approximately the population of the district west of Curtis, leaving out the county in which it is located, is 45,000 and east of it 110,000. Three lines of railroad traverse this territory east and west. To locate the school on the Union Pacific would leave two parallel lines to the south; to locate it on the Burlington main line anywhere west of Holdrege would leave two parallel lines to the north. The high line of the Burlington running between the other two more nearly traverses the center of the prescribed district. Curtis is situated on the high line, and while it is considered east of the geographical center of the district, it is much nearer the center than any of its
