TALKING OF "FEEDERS" TO PROPOSED STATE HIGHWAY

Now that the Omaha-Denver transcontinental good roads movement is well under way, boosters for improved highways in Nebraska are beginning to consider the possibility of "feeders" to the main line across the state. It is known that a number of counties west of Lincoln are planning to improve roads north and south of the river-to-mountains route, leading into this main artery of travel. Eventually this will give central Nebraska a net work of first-class public roads, all based upon the transcontinental line.

Lincoln men figure that similar work can be done to excellent advantage in the territory north, east and south of Lincoln. One suggestion is for an improved road north through Wahoo and Fremont. This route would tap the line of the proposed North Platte road and might deflect some travel to the southern road through Lincoln. Another proposed road is through Syracuse to Nebraska City, which might later extend into Iowa and tap the excellent good roads system of the southern part of that state.

One of the most important lines which should be developed before the 1915 San Francisco exposition, figure the men who are now interesting themselves in the project, is a road which would cut southeast from Lincoln to Falls City and then to Kansas City, Mo. At the present time Kansas has not agitated a movement for improving the roads of the Jayhawker state systematically from east to west. A plan is being worked out for a north and south road which will lead through central Kansas and thence from Belleville to Lincoln. The east and west line has been neglected however, and Nebraska men figure that it would be an excellent move to get into the game early and afford Missouri tourists a convenient means of reaching the Nebraska route. For this reason they think that a road from Kansas City, extended if possible by Missouri men through that state to Jefferson City and St. Louis, would be a first class proposition for Lincoln and the Nebraska road.

Thousands of autoists are expected to journey to the Pacific coast by automobile in 1915 and those south of a line running east and west through southern Iowa will gravitate toward Kansas City. Whether they then proceed west by a southern route or up through Nebraska depends upon the activity of the road makers in heading off a move for a Kansas road. — Lincoln Evening News.

Wider Tires for Heavy Loads.

As the question of good roads becomes more and more important, the matter of tire widths becomes more acute. One of the greatest enemies of good roads is the narrow tire under a heavy load. Some states attempt to correct this by remitting a certain per cent of road taxes with the addition of every inch in tire width over two inches on the wagon. This of course works very satisfactorily, and tires four to six inches have become more or less common on heavy wagons, drays and trucks hauling heavy tonnage. With our dirt roads this is an urgent question, and should engage our earnest attention. Vehicles hauling certain heavy tonnage should have tires of a corresponding width. Perhaps in no other way can the matter of ruts and holes be eliminated from the dirt road. At any rate, there is doubtless enough in this matter to engage the thought of the city council and their action. It would work no injustice to anyone in the long run, and would conduce greatly to improvement in the roads and make much easier the maintenance of the roads.

Thomas Doyle Dead.

Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Doyle of Perry precinct, died on Sunday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock, after an illness of some length.

Thomas Doyle was 17 years and 3 months old at his death. A requiem high mass was held in St. Patrick's church of our city this morning at ten o'clock, after which the remains were buried in Calvary cemetery.

A large concourse of friends from city and country attended the services, attesting the high regard in which the departed is held, and expressing the deep sympathy of all for the bereaved family.

Death of Mrs. Z. O. Holcomb.

A personal letter to a McCook friend from a member of the family, announces the death of Mrs. Z. O. Holcomb, in Fort Collins, Colorado, on Friday of last week, July 21st, 1911. Death was the result of a second attack of paralysis. Mrs. Holcomb was for years a resident of McCook, and many old time friends of the family here will sympathize with them in the death of the beloved mother. Mrs. Holcomb was a member of the Degree of Honor and her life was insured for $1,000 in the order.

JUNIOR NORMAL CLOSED.

Very Successful Session Came to End Last Friday.

The ninth annual session of the McCook Junior State Normal school closed on Friday afternoon of last week.

The Tribune believes from all information at hand and from expressions heard at various times from instructors and others, that this session has been one of the most solid, substantial and satisfactory yet held.

The total of enrollment has reached the 150 mark, not the largest ever, but results cannot be properly measured or weighed by numbers. Substantial work accomplished is a better yard stick, and this measure gives most satisfactory results.

It is a pleasure to the Tribune to congratulate Sup't Taylor and his able and earnest corps of teachers in the record made at this session.

About the Trees.

It is a matter of common observation that the shade and the fruit trees of the city are dying in unusual numbers, this summer. Part of this doubtless may be explained by the uncommon lack of moisture, this summer, and last winter. But, it is claimed, and we think with reason, that the lack of moisture alone does not fully explain the unfortunate fact. Borers and other tree enemies are doing their destructive work. It has been suggested that an expert in horticulture from the state university might with profit be secured to come to McCook and investigate the situation. This subject might engage the attention of the city council with profit to the trees. Our trees are almost invaluable to us, and some intelligent action may well be taken to preserve and protect them, if it be possible.

The Burlington Crop Report

Corn on the Omaha division of the Burlington is now in a critical stage, according to the Burlington crop report, issued yesterday afternoon. The corn is now silking and tasseling and rain is needed to bring a good yield. With good rains in the next few days the corn on this division may raise a fair yield. Elsewhere on the Burlington lines west of the river, the condition of corn is more favorable than last week, the improvement being marked on the Wymore and Lincoln divisions. High water and grasshoppers have caused considerable damage in scattered small areas. Agents' acreages indicate the following percentages, based on a full crop: Omaha division, 79 (last week, 96); Lincoln division, 92 (last week 90); Wymore division, 80 (last week, 81); McCook division, 79 (last week, 80). The soil is said to be in fairly satisfactory condition on the McCook, Wymore and Lincoln divisions, save for small areas where rain has fallen. Rain is needed all over the Omaha division. Since the last report the dry parts of the Wymore division have been well soaked and good rains have fallen on the Lincoln division. Maximum precipitation during the week was ten inches at Crab Orchard, DeWitt and Filley. Winter wheat continues to show favorable indications on both yield and quality, with other small grains about as last week. Oats are poor, ranging from half a crop on the Omaha division to total failure elsewhere. Plowing for winter wheat has extended from the McCook division to the Wymore and Lincoln sections, but it is generally too dry for plowing on the Omaha division. Potatoes run from total failure to half a crop. Pastureage is very much improved except in the Omaha district. On that division the third crop of alfalfa will not average more than a fourth of a full crop. Tame hay may run half crop.

We know Judge Moore personally, and while not wishing to favor one candidate above another, we can say that he is a man whom the people can trust and we believe he will receive a large vote at the primaries two weeks hence.

Genius and Goodness.

I have had sometimes in mine the gloved and white palm of the upper class and the heavy black hand of the lower class and have recognized that both are but of men. After all these have passed before me I say that humanity has a synonym equality and that under heaven there is but one thing we ought to bow to, genius, and the only thing before which we ought to kneel, goodness. — Victor Hugo.
