FOR SHERIFF.

To the voters of Red Willow county: Having filed for office of sheriff, will say to those who are not acquainted with me that I have lived in this county since 1883. Always voted the Republican ticket, and worked for candidates I considered worthy of my support. Have never held a county office, but agree if nominated and elected to attend the duties of the office to the best of my ability.

The cat is delicately allowed to escape from the bag by the big Omaha daily thusly:

The Nebraska delegation in Washington, democrats and republicans alike, are to vote for the bill reducing the tariff duties on cotton. That ought to be perfectly safe, inasmuch as not a pound of cotton is grown or manufactured in Nebraska. — Omaha Bee.

Botanists and entomologists at the state university know of no reason for the death of the trees in Red Willow county, mentioned in dispatches from McCook. It is presumed that boring insects of some variety have attacked the trees.—Lincoln Journal.

For District Judge.

E. B. Perry of Cambridge, is the first to announce as a candidate for district judge subject to the Republican primary. The Mirror is pleased to see him step out for office, and can discern no serious obstacle in the way of his nomination and election. He has been practicing law in this district twelve years and is now at the head of one of the most successful law firms in Southwest Nebraska, having an almost exclusive practice in this territory in the most important cases. Mr. Perry's judgment in legal matters has always been considered sound and fair, even by his opponents, and no one doubts his ability to preside upon the bench with dignity becoming the office, and with justness to all.—Arapahoe Mirror.

A Bird That Is Feared.

The elster (Pica candata) is a bird that is respected and feared throughout south Germany. It belongs to the raven tribe and is about the size of a dove, with black and white feathers and long, pointed tail. It builds its nest in orchards, and its life is sacred. If it is seen three times in succession on the same housetop in a place remote from its home it is believed to be a sure sign of death in that house. If it flies over a house where any one is ill and gives its peculiar cry the sick person is sure to die, but if it does not scream the patient may recover. It is better for the sick person if the bird does not come near. No one could be hired to bother these birds for fear they might seek revenge, and if by chance one of them should die it is a sign of bad luck to the owner of the property where it is found. The bird is a valuable insect destroyer and in this way probably more than compensates for the fear it occasions among the farmers.

Cursing in Korea.

A strange way of cursing is that of the Korean. His ordinary swear word is "Oenuma," or "You brute." The Japanese have the same partiality for this term of endearment. But according to the Oriental Economic Review the Korean considers himself especially abusive when he calls a person his child or grandchild. When he wants to call somebody down the Korean demands hotly, "Are you not my child?" And the angry retort is: "What! I your child? You are my grandchild." Then the first goes a step further and cries, "You are a grandchild of my grandchild!" to which the rejoinder is: "You conceited fellow! Have you forgotten that you are a grandchild of a grandchild of my grandchild?" When their vituperation reaches its climax the people of Chosen at last come to the occidental standard of exclaiming, "You grandchild of a dog!"

Servants in Turkey.

Turkey is not nearly so benighted as we imagine, for there is no servant question there. Though slavery is still recognized, the kadun (mistress of the house) is a mother to her servants, whom she treats as children, and no children in the world are better treated than Turkish children. The most painful thing the kadun can do to a maid is to say: "The master has found a good husband for thee. Thou wilt be married at such and such a time."

"Oh, mistress, what have I done to be thus abandoned?" is the usual sorrowful response. Even after the servant's marriage the kindly relations between mistress and maid continue. There are no fixed servant wages in Turkey. Faithful servants are rewarded from time to time in accordance with their masters' or mistresses' good pleasure or circumstances.—Chicago Journal.

A Trick of the Sun.

Upon a mountain in Andalusia quaint spectral forms are frequently seen. Whenever there is a heavy mist and persons are ascending the mountain they appear in all their ghostly splendor and sometimes so suddenly as to strike dismay into the hearts of those who see them for the first time. Of course it is all a trick played by the sun. When a mist partially shrouds the mountain the sun is naturally obscured, and then he revenges himself by projecting the shadow of any person who is ascending the mountain until it assumes the form of a gigantic specter.

An Insect Gunner.

Many insects have some means of defense from their natural enemies, none of which is more curious than that of a small beetle, which, when closely pursued, discharges a puff of poisonous vapor with a distinct detonation. Undoubtedly in many instances this aids the diminutive gunner in his escape, mainly, in all probability, by startling his pursuer and causing him to abandon the chase. From this peculiar acquirement, this little fellow is known as the bombardier beetle.

OHIO CITIES TO RUN PAWNSHOPS

New Buckeye State Law Said to Be First of Its Kind.

A BOON TO THE WORTHY POOR

They Will Be Enabled to Borrow Money Without Being Forced to Pay the Exorbitant Rates Demanded by "Loan Sharks."

The Bertsch municipal pawn department bill, said to be the first of its kind, has just become a law in Ohio. The new law takes its name from Joseph F. Bertsch, its author. Some foreign countries have such departments, but they have been established by the cities without asking the state for authority or power therefor.

The new law is intended to be of benefit to the worthy poor, and its working in Ohio will be watched with interest by the authorities of other states with a view to adopting some such measure in their localities.

There are thousands of deserving persons whose income does not allow of their acquiring real estate or saving money. And there are times when these people need money, and quickly. The problem has been where and how they will get it. Banks and loan associations will not lend money without security. The only way, then, that is open to them is the pawnbroker or the private loan agent. Frequently an exorbitant interest is charged, and the so-called loan sharks are not over-scrupulous. The municipal pawn department is established for the benefit of this class of borrowers. Poor people who are deserving of help will thus be given an opportunity to borrow money at the lowest possible rate of interest and on the most reasonable security.

Under the Bertsch act these loan departments are to be a subdepartment of the department of public service and are to be presided over by a superintendent appointed by the mayor. The city council is given power to levy a tax for the purpose of creating a fund out of which the loans are to be made. Not more than 6 per cent per annum is to be charged to any pawn.

WOMEN TO RUN A REPUBLIC.

Formed Like United States Government, With Congress and Cabinet.

An American woman's republic, as a scheme of commercial rehabilitation, is the plan of E. G. Lewis, the financial wizard of University City, Mo. Mr. Lewis has surrendered the management of his $8,500,000 properties, which include his various publications and town site, to a board of trustees to be appointed by 101 eastern magazine publishers who have been identified with the American Women's league.

Lewis proposes to demonstrate the ability of woman to conduct the affairs of state now almost wholly vested in man. University City is to be the capital of the American Women's Republic—the centralization of a national government for women, with 4,000,000 constituents. The American Women's league will be the nucleus. The republic will be organized in University City next January by the election of a congress. The congress will elect a president. The 2,000 local chapters of the American Women's league will choose a house of representatives. The president will have a secretary of the interior, war, commerce and state, and a treasurer and attorney general. A supreme court of three women lawyers will be organized. The referendum and recall will apply to the president.

The supreme court will be in session in University City eight months in the year. It will decide all questions relating to members of the republic and its rulings are to be final. Lewis expects to become the field agent for his latest project and estimates that in five years he will have increased the membership to 1,000,000.

The passage of the "farmers' free list bill" by the democratic insurgent coalition in the senate insures that the president will have the disposal of at least one tariff reduction bill at this session. While there is room for a fall-out between the two houses on the wool bill, nothing of the kind can happen over the free list bill, for the senate amendments to the house bill are but trifling. It is a momentous situation for the president.—Lincoln Journal.
