Norris for the Senate.

It was not surprising to read in the dispatches that Representative Norris had decided to become a candidate to succeed Senator Norris Brown in the upper house of congress.

The keynote had been sounded when the Red Willow county republicans met in convention and adopted resolutions urging Norris to make the race. It was generally conceded that such an action could only be taken to mean run, but was not quite ready to make the fact known.

It has been known right along that Senator Brown was going to be a candidate for re-nomination and now that Norris has declared his intention to pass up his seat in the lower house and go after a seat in the higher body the campaign is going to be most interesting.

Congressman Norris has an exceptionally strong following not only in the Fifth district but throughout the entire state, and his many friends are now anxiously awaiting his formal statement, which he will make shortly after the adjournment of congress. — Curtis Enterprise.

The conference report on the wool tariff revision bill carrying a flat duty of 29 per cent on raw wools and corresponding reduced rates on wool manufacturers was adopted Monday by the house, 206 to 90. The senate is expected to agree to it today, thus putting the measure up to the president's expected veto.

Twenty-nine republican representatives and one independent republican voted for the bill. No democrat voted against it.

The house action was officially reported to the senate immediately.

When the report was made Republican Leader Mann at once made a point of order that the report could not be considered because the conferees had exceeded their authority by fixing tariff rates on certain manufactures of wool higher than the same rates were made in either the house or senate bill.

Speaker Clark overruled Mr. Mann's point of order that the conferees had exceeded their authority.

The end of the primary campaign for the district judgeship developed anything but a dignified lot of political roorbacks intended to damage C. E. Eldred. Several of the circulars were cheap and unbecoming, and doubtless brought small profit to the authors.

Will some person kindly suggest something that will meet with the approbation of Mr. A. C. Rankin of Oxford? Just for instance.

Burlington Crop Report.

The general offices of the Burlington have received its Nebraska crop report for the week ending August 11. The report covers practically every portion of the state and is made up from information gathered by the division superintendents, traveling freight men and agents. A summary of the report upon the condition of corn says:

"Prospects are quite as good as when the last report was submitted, one week ago. In the Republican valley on the McCook and Wymore and on the Kansas division, much damage was done by the high water. The Omaha division shows indications of having 70 per cent of a full corn crop; the Lincoln division, 78 per cent; the Wymore division 72, and the McCook division 60 to 65 per cent. On the Alliance division prospects are good and the crop ought to be up to the average.

Curtis Again Selected.

The board of public lands and buildings has again selected the town of Curtis as the site for the proposed state school of agriculture. The board took this action yesterday to insure the validity of the choice. The board first selected Curtis May 30, before the act creating the law was in effect and to guard against legal complications it reaffirmed its former action. Those present at the meeting were Secretary of State Wait, Land Commissioner Cowles and Attorney General Martin. The vote was unanimous. Treasurer George was the only member of the board not present.

The board accepted the deeds to 462 acres of land and ordered them recorded. There were ten deeds and no serious question was raised against any of them. The board in its resolution locating the school at Curtis expressed the determination to obtain plans for the main building, lecture rooms and dormitory, one laboratory building, not less than two live stock barns and the necessary sheds and pens and enclosures at the estimated cost of not to exceed $75,000. The members of the board say they will confer with regents of the university in regard to the plans for buildings. Thus far work of building and turning the institution over to the regents of the university to manage has not materialized. — Lincoln Journal.

Thanksgiving Day.

Washington, August 11.—President Taft, it was learned today will designate Thursday, November 30, as Thanksgiving day this year. It always has been the custom to fix the last Thursday in the month. This year there has been some doubt, because November happened to include five instead of four Thursdays. The White House has been besieged by theatrical managers and by those in charge of college football games to settle this doubt so that definite arrangements could be made for the usual array of special performances and sports that mark the day. — Omaha Bee.

The Nebraska Public Library commission will have an exhibit at the state fair September 4 to 8 in the Educational building, to which the attention of every one interested in books is directed. Books are loaned by the commission to people in the rural districts and small towns of the state free of charge. In this exhibit will be shown a regular traveling library, a library for country schools, and a library for club work or special study of any kind. There will be attendants in charge to explain how the books may be obtained and to answer all questions concerning the work. The Nebraska Library commission was established by the state legislature in 1901. In the ten years of its organization, it has sent 76,000 books out over the state and the demand for these books is steadily increasing. This year an additional appropriation was given to the commission to supply books to the unfortunates who are confined within the thirteen state institutions. After you have seen the aeroplane flights, heard Liberati's band and grand opera singers, the speed contests, etc., do not forget to look up the method of securing a traveling library for your town or community.

Colors Warm and Gold. One clear, cold winter's day Benjamin Franklin spread a number of handkerchiefs carefully on a level stretch of snow. One of the handkerchiefs was black, another white and the others of various colors. Some time afterward he returned and removed the handkerchiefs carefully one by one, measuring the depth of snow under each. Under the black handkerchief he found that the snow had melted considerably; under a red handkerchief, almost as much; under a blue handkerchief, very little, and under the white one scarcely any. By this simple experiment he learned that color has a great deal to do with the warmth of clothing. White sheds the sun's heat almost as well as an oilskin sheds water; blue is nearly as heat proof; green is less so; yellow is a warm color, red a still warmer color, while black soaks up almost all the sun's heat that strikes it. Make the experiment some time and you will see why black clothes are out of place in the summer time and white ducks in winter. — Christian Herald.

The Thunderer's Logographs. Some of the most serious riots recorded in the printing trades occurred in 1814, when the London Times was first printed by steam, and a number of workmen discharged through this innovation sought to wreck the office in Printing House square. Long before this the Times had been printed logographically—that is to say, the proprietor conceived the happy idea of having words cast entire to save the compositors the trouble of collecting type. The logographs most in demand were: Dreadful, robbery, atrocious outrage, fearful calamity, alarming explosion, loud cheers, interesting female. One hundredweight of each of these was always kept in stock. Interesting females no longer figure in newspaper reports, but otherwise the cliches of journalism seem to have altered but little. — London Chronicle.

China's Floating Islands. On all the great lakes of China are found floating islands, which are enormous rafts of bamboo overlaid with earth and bearing on the surface of the water pretty houses and gardens. They are, in fact, aquatic farms, bearing crops of rice and vegetables. The rich bottom mud, utilized as an artificial soil, is extremely fertile and yields bountiful harvests, though on a small scale. In a country where there is a lack of available land the floating plantations are most serviceable, large sails being attached to the dwelling house as well as to each corner of the island whenever it is desired to move about. After gathering a crop of grain or garden produce from his farm the floating farmer casts his nets into the water and from their depths brings up a supply of fish for his family.

Cheeky John Forster. In "William Harrison Ainsworth and His Friends" the author, S. M. Ellis, tells a quaint story of Ainsworth and his friend John Forster. Ainsworth had discovered a fine set of Hogarth's engravings which was held at £5, a sum which, he said, "I could not just then spare or at least did not think I ought to spare. I took John Forster down to see the Hogarths, whereupon he actually said that he would and must have them himself and as he had not £5 of loose money at that moment I should lend that sum to him. I pointed out the absurdity of the position—that I wanted the engravings for myself and could not afford to lay out the money; how, then, could I lend it to him? It was of no use. He overruled me, had the £5 of me and bought the Hogarths I was longing for."

The Moves in Chess. In the number of possible moves chess stands alone among games, and not only is it perfectly safe to say that no living man has ever made even once every possible move, but it is highly improbable that in all the centuries of the history of the game has every possible move been made. The different ways of playing the first four moves on each side are so numerous that if every man, woman and child in a city of half a million population were to set to work playing them at the rate of four moves a minute night and day it would be more than a year before any one would be able to leave the chessboard.

A Freak Tortoise. "Patrick, Patrick!" admonished a lady. "Be careful where you are walking! You nearly trod upon my darling tortoise!" "Och, be aisy, me lady!" rejoined her Irish gardener. "Shure an' I wouldn't hurt a hair of his head, the sweet creature!" — London Telegraph.

His Choice. Kindly Old Man—Well, my little man, what would you like to be when you grow up? Little Man—I'd like to be a nice old gentleman like you, with nothin' to do but walk around and ask questions.

His Protest. A bright little lad heard his parents talking about the salaries of teachers. "I don't see why they should pay the teachers," he said very seriously, "when we children do all the work."

Mixed. Policeman (to clubman returning home late)—Here, you can't open the door with that. It's your cigar. Clubman—Great Scott, then I have smoked my latchkey! — Rire.

Some of the best and happiest hours possible to a man's life are held in trust for him, so to speak, by his fellow

AN EARLY FALL SUIT THAT SHOWS THE NEW SLASHED SKIRT.

Tho it is an admitted fact that the general lines of a new style feature are inspired by Paris, there are few which are accepted absolutely without being modified to suit the needs and taste of the woman here. The freakish and exaggerated models of the French dressmakers are invariably toned down and simplified to just the right degree which gives the American her individuality and trim style.

At present on most of the models shown by the Parisian couturiers, some modification of the slashed skirt seems to be in evidence. The dressmakers here find this feature quite impractical for the American woman and have adopted a plan of inserting pleated sections at the slashes such as is shown in the illustration. Besides being a style feature, these pleated sections are really quite practical, as they give width at the bottom of the skirt, and especially on very narrow models, making walking easier without destroying the long, slim lines. On the more dressy models, the pleats are often of satin or of the same material and color as the trimming on the costume, sometimes held in place by small tabs and buttons.

The coats of the new suits are of a practical length with long collars of various shapes and sizes. Perhaps the newest idea for a coat collar was seen on a smart tailored suit of blue serge. The back was in shawl effect, and was made of rather wide val edging, gathered at the neck and very near the edge where it was also tacked to the coat. There were rather large pointed revers in front, made of white pique, which really gave a surprisingly smart effect.

The suit pictured in the illustration was shown of natural color linen with the pleated section at the front of the skirt of white linen. The collar and cuffs, also of white linen, were embroidered in tan.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at last one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. Smith bought some pigs from his neighbor Jones. The price came to $6.42. Smith paid Jones in cash, but as usual neither had the proper change, and Smith said: "Just make it even money." Smith lost 8 cents. Jones bought some pigs from his neighbor Johnson. The price came to $6.42. Jones had no money in the bank and gave Johnson a check for the exact amount. Jones did not lose a cent. This is only one of the advantages of a checking account. Come in and let us explain further.
