H. S. ORCHESTRA GIVES

A Fine Entertainment Much Enjoyed by Fair Audience.

The members of the High School orchestra gave an entertainment at the high school auditorium, on last Thursday evening, which all agreed was worth more than the price of admission.

Following is the program:
Selection, Orchestra.
Selection, Orchestra.
Piano Duet, Marjorie Schobel, Miss Thorndyke.
Reading, Mr. Davis.
Violin Solo, Roswell Simmons.
Trio, Clarinet, Ray Jordan; Cornet, Roy Bayless; Piano, Leta Monks.

Cooperation.

If you are interested in having a good up-to-date hospital for McCook and vicinity, you should investigate and boost the cooperative hospital association which has been organized by the public spirited ladies of McCook.

This hospital will be non-sectarian, and operated by a board of managers in the interest of the sick and not for profit.

This organization should have the support of every citizen of McCook, as it is the opportunity of securing a permanent hospital for the city at a comparatively small expense to each individual.

The caring for the sick is a public duty and good nursing is an essential part of the proper treatment of sick; why should not this part of our life expense be met in a mutual association like we insure against almost all other kinds of misfortune? The pledges for membership tickets are many and every person who wants to provide well for himself or family should sign a card. The membership is worth the money besides being a benefit to your fellow man. A good creed to subscribe to is: "I do promise before almighty God to do all I can for suffering humanity."
Publicity Committee.

Worth While.

The program given by the International Operatic Co. in the Temple, Friday evening, was worth while, and was well received by a fair sized and appreciative audience. Their program was varied and suited to please the musically inclined and those who just love music for music's sake.

Several selections from operas well known to the average audience were given effectively, and there were numerous responses in more popular sort. The singing was in Swedish, French, German, and English, both solo and concerted, and in costumes betimes. Mr. and Mrs. McKinnie were especially popular with the audience, while Mr. Mathisen and Miss Heidenreich failed not of full appreciation.

To the Charitable People of McCook.

The charitable people of this city have two classes of people to provide for: First, those to whom we can give food and clothing. Second: Those who are loth to accept help in this way, but who, if they can come to the Rummage and pay a small consideration for what they get, are satisfied and preserve their self-respect. Why not encourage this feeling of self-respect? If you have anything left, after supplying the first class, the ladies of the Rummage will be very glad to accept the same for the supplying of the second class. Phone red 252.

"The Third Degree."

David Warfield's successes, "The Music Master," "The Lion and the Mouse," "The Gamblers" and Rose Stahl's great play, "Maggie Pepper," were all written by that eminent American playwright, Charles Klein, who also wrote "The Third Degree," which will play here soon. Mr. Klein considers the latter his strongest dramatic story.

DEPARTMENT OF SAFETY IS ORGANIZED

E. M. Switzer, superintendent of the Burlington's new department, the department of safety, was in McCook, Friday, and completed the organization of the McCook division safety committee. There were present in Superintendent Flynn's office representatives of every department of service on the division, and the following-named were placed on the safety committee, each branch of the service being represented: Sup't Flynn of our city will be chairman of the committee.

The other members of the committee are:
W. G. Dungan, trainmaster and roadmaster, Orleans.
J. E. Johnson, trainmaster, McCook.

R. A. Hagberg, roadmaster, McCook.
George Fenney, master carpenter, McCook.

William Wood, road foreman of engines, McCook.
J. W. Deere, locomotive engineer, McCook.

Worth Humphrey, conductor, McCook.
Jas. McAlpine, warehouse foreman, Denver.

C. E. Emerson, general car foreman, McCook.
J. W. Chase, machinist, McCook.

A. E. Weidenhamer, general yardmaster, Denver.
J. E. Jagger, switch foreman, Denver.

H. Burkett, track foreman, Denver.
This committee will hold regular monthly meetings, some time during the latter part of the month, when reports will be heard and suggestions offered and received along the line of securing added and increasing safety for railroad employees in all branches of the service.

The company has for years been working toward securing the utmost in safety for those riding on its trains, but the present organization has for its purpose and end securing personal safety for its employees, and to this end President Darius Miller has issued a circular calling upon the men for their utmost cooperation in securing this desired increase of safety for those working in the train, engine, shop, car departments, and in fact in every branch of service, where one employe can be helpful in making accidents to his fellow-employe less frequent.

This will naturally appeal to the men. It will increase their efficiency, make them less liable to loss of wages from accidents, relieve them of many unnecessary layoffs and expenses, and in general promote their comfort in working and the service as well.

The management wishes to give this new department all possible publicity and thus to enlist every employe in the good work. Men in the different branches of service will naturally report to the member of the committee who represents their particular branch of service.

It is expected later to organize specially the shop men.

SOMETHING NEW.

A clever new idea has been worked out in making the pattern for this dress, so that, in reality, it is pattern for five distinctively different dresses. It is an interesting study in both style and ingenuity to look over the pattern and see how the different effects are contrived. There are two main parts that serve as a basis for any of the dresses—a simple peasant waist and a trim three-gored skirt slightly gathered at the waist; and to these pieces are added small revers and large ones, a quaint and pretty trimming piece in jumper effect, a fichu collar, cuffs, a loose panel, and a deep trimming band. The combination of these pieces has been worked out in five distinctly different ways, and as one of the dresses so devised is recognizable as bearing any relationship to any other. It is quite probable that still other smart costumes could be evolved from this same pattern. The development illustrated here makes a stylish calling frock or street dress that is especially effective in stripe materials, such as the light-weight spring suitings or a fairly heavy quality of stripe messaline or taffeta. White and black stripe effects are the smartest.

CHURCH NOTES AND TOPICS.

Episcopal — Wednesday, 7:30 p. m., full choir rehearsal in the church. Thursday, Ladies' Guild meets with Mrs. W. A. Cassell, 2nd street west.

The Wrong Man Executed.

Charles Klein was prompted to write "The Third Degree" after reading of the execution of the wrong man for crime to which he confessed after having been subjected to a fourteen-hour examination by the police. Several years after the execution the really guilty party confessed. When he read the details, Mr. Klein conceived of the plot of his present play and that he has struck a popular chord is best shown by the legislation and court rulings against the preliminary investigations of the police of the larger cities. The play also contains a strong romantic story.

At a special meeting of the McCook Commercial club, Saturday night, it was decided to send two delegates to the good roads meeting to be held in Hastings, February 6th. This meeting is in the special interest of the Omaha-Denver Trans-Continental Road. It was the sentiment of the membership that the appointees be made from among the county commissioners. D. N. Cobb was received into the membership of the club.

"The Traveling Salesman."

Acclaimed by all who have seen "The Traveling Salesman" as the greatest laugh producer ever shown on the American stage, James Forbes' latest and greatest comedy success will be offered for local approval on February 3rd, at the Temple theatre.

Each one of these laughs is the logical sequence of a natural, plausible situation in the life of a jovial drummer on the road. To add zest to an already enjoyable performance, Mr. Forbes has intertwined in his story a bit of pathos here and there.

Bob Blake, a jolly drummer, who impetuously prejudices his position by coming to the rescue of a young girl who is about to lose her property, is a character that the public loves and admires. His hearty laugh and uniform good nature is bound to create for him a warm circle of friends in this city.

The company which will present this comedy in our city is a carefully selected aggregation and is composed of actors of ability and reputation. The entire production is carried by the company and nothing has been left undone to make the engagement of "The Traveling Salesman" a memorable and pleasant event.
