A SOAKING RAIN.

There was some Hail With the Moisture.

The first rain of consequence of the spring fell in this city and vicinity, Saturday afternoon and night. At times the down-pour was very heavy and accompanied by hail, which, however, caused no damage, as vegetation is not sufficiently far advanced to be injured. Same is true of fruit.

Crops needed moisture, especially to soften the hard surface crust, and let the plants and vegetation generally have a chance.

Election of Teachers.

The following teachers were chosen for next school year by the board at a meeting held on Monday of last week. It is somewhat ancient history, but it is "cribbed" for its intrinsic value:

Superintendent, W. T. Davis, Miss Sarah Ryan, principal, Fred V. Archer, Claire Thurshy, Lena M. Williams, Esther Bailey, Ada Whitney, Lela French, Mary Powers, Martha Abel, Georgetta Dolezal, Laura McMillen, Anna, Hanman, Christine Hollister, Ella Caffrey, Cleo Reeter, Amy Kautz, Jeannette Thorndyke, Lula Baer, Mabel Winters, Lillian Moore, Mae Douglass, Millicent Slaby.

Louise Donisthorpe was granted one year's leave of absence.

New teachers: Harry Ellis, Josephine Rhodes, Bessie L. Payne of Beaver City.

Those not reelected were not applicants this year.

The board also decided to add another teacher to high school faculty.

Citizens of McCook!

I need thirty or forty more citizens of McCook (you included) to buy the Saturday Evening Post next Thursday to help me win first prize in the sub-agents' national treasure chest contest. Monte S. Walker, phone black 338.

The Colonel is Coming Back Strong

A Most Distressing Death.

Mrs. Sarah A. McCarl met with an accident, Thursday afternoon, which resulted in her death, on Friday afternoon at three o'clock.

Early in the afternoon, possibly about half past one o'clock she was seen by a neighbor go to the home of her daughter Mrs. G. L. Burney, and start down the outside cellar way to the cellar, where an incubator was in operation. Indications point to her having made the necessary changes in the position of the eggs, and having started up the stairway again. Just how and what will never be known, but she evidently started up the stairs and fell backwards onto her head, fracturing the skull slightly and rendering her unconscious. No one saw her fall and as no one was in either the McCarl home or the Burney home, the accident remained unknown until about five o'clock, when Miss Louise Donisthorpe of the public school corps, who rooms at the McCarl home found her and summoned assistance. Mrs. McCarl had doubtless lain where she fell for several hours, with her feet on the lower step of the stairs and her body at a somewhat lower level.

(It is sad coincidence that not one member of the McCarl family was in the city at the time: Mrs. Burney was in Harvard, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McCarl were in Lincoln, T. E. McCarl and Mr. Burney were out on their runs.) Mrs. McCarl was removed to her home and several physicians waited upon her, everything possible being done for her relief, but without avail. An operation was performed to relieve the pressure caused by the slight fracture of the skull at the base of the brain, but the injured dear one never regained consciousness and on Friday afternoon about three o'clock, the angel of death hovered over and the end came without a return to consciousness. During Thursday night, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Thomas and Mrs. G. L. Burney arrived from Harvard, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McCarl arrived from Lincoln, Mr. G. L. Burney came on No. 3, as well, and Conductor F. E. McCarl arrived on train No. 15, so all were at the bedside at the last.

To these bereaved children goes out the tenderest and deepest sympathy of a community, which has been profoundly touched by the distressing death of one so generally beloved during the many years of her residence among us.

Sarah A. Gosslee was born near London, Ohio, March 1, 1849. She was married in Iowa to John Henry McCarl in May, 1866. To this union eight children were born, two of whom died in infancy. Charley died in 1898; Bert in 1905. Thomas E., J. Raymond, Ida M. Burney and Blanche E. Thomas survive. Mr. McCarl died in Hastings in 1893, in which year, with her children Mrs. McCarl moved to McCook. She died at her residence a few minutes past three o'clock on Friday, April 19th, 1912. From early girlhood she was a member and active worker in the Methodist Episcopal church.

Brief services were conducted at the residence, Sunday afternoon by Rev. L. E. Lewis, many friends paying a final tribute by their presence to the treasured memory of a gentle, kindly and loving mother, to a woman, useful and honored woman gone on before and up higher to her reward. Sympathy and tribute were also profusely expressed by a wealth of beautiful flowers from society and persons, which fairly embowered the casket in floral loveliness.

The pall bearers were Messrs. J. A. Wilcox, J. H. Yarger, Barney Lewis, E. D. Perkins, A. R. McHaffey and W. B. Whitaker. The quartette choir of the church sang two requested hymns.

The children, cherishing the heritage and memory of saintly mother have complete sympathy in their irreparable loss, a loss in which community and church deeply share.

Commandant Teeters.

Governor Aldrich's appointment of Joseph Teeters to be commandant of the soldiers' home at Milford will be received here with great satisfaction, where "Uncle Joe" is well known and believed to possess the qualities and qualifications for a successful and satisfactory commandant. An old soldier himself, Mr. Teeters' heart beats responsive to the true heart throbs of the soldier boys, and it is confidently expected here that he will conduct the home with honor to the state and himself and to the comfort and satisfaction of the veterans. He will enter his new duties May 1.

THE CAPTAIN OF PLYMOUTH

High School Pupils Present Musical Comedy.

In spite of the rain and mud of Saturday evening, a good sized audience gathered in the Temple theatre to enjoy offering of the Captain of Plymouth by pupils of the McCook high school, prepared under direction of Miss Thorndyke, supervisor of music. And they were not disappointed. This clever little musical comedy of pert libretto and catchy, tuneful solos and choruses made a hit with everybody, and was given in a manner creditable alike to the pupils and supervisor, indeed much dramatic and musical talent was disclosed in the performance. Those sharing in the success are: Miles Stanish, who is wonderfully like Caesar
