The telephone controversy is at a standstill, the only move made being a resolution passed by the old company cutting off the ten cent rate which has been levied on outgoing connections with the rural lines. This was one of the main points in the controversy but whether or not it will have any effect on the actions of the new concern remains to be seen.

Rev. John Calvert of the Methodist church delivered a lecture on "Travels in the Shetland Isles" before the high school literary and debating club on Friday evening of last week. Mr. Calvert is a native of England having been in this country but eight years, and has spent considerable time in the islands referred to, of which very little is learned in history. His talk was most interesting and the large crowd present showed their appreciation by careful attention. Special music added considerable to the program.

Shubert.

Nellie Harper has been quite sick the past few days.

J. M. Evans attended the convention at Falls City last week.

John Cummings and wife entertained relatives during the week.

While it is all very well for us to be wanting new industries for Falls City, we should be sure first that we are giving the proper patronage to the ones we already have. It is true our manufacturing establishments are not very extensive, but they can be made so if we will all put our shoulders to the wheel and keep pushing. Stand up for Falls City.
