All of the democratic leaders were in St. Louis last week, but where are the followers?

The Kansas City Star is responsible for this: "President Roosevelt selected three M's, Moody, Morton and Metcalf, to fill the the three M-ty places in his cabinet."

It is said that the Missouri delegation did not follow Cyrus Walbridge, their candidate for vice president, to the last ditch, but that they got close enough to see what happened to John L. Webster.

The address of W. H. Morrow at the joint celebration of the A. O. U. W. and W. O. W. lodges given in Barada July 4, was one of the finest expositions on fraternalism ever given in the county. Some member of the lodges in Barada are trying to induce the local managers to secure Mr. Morrow for the lodge picnic to be held in Falls City. We trust that they will succeed in this as nothing is too good for the occasion.

There is another scandal brewing. The knowing ones are whispering "they say". Some of the old clakers are getting busy. We have heard it and of course it is a lie.

You who read this, are you ever guilty of defaming a fellow man? Why don't you stop it? This town can be made a better town and its people a happier people if each person who reads this will resolve never again to speak or listen to scandal. Cultivate your better nature. Try it once anyway.

The Lincoln News of the 6th in reply to this papers criticism of its attitude towards A. Galusha says: "There has been no unmanly stabbing of Mr. Galusha by the News, as the Falls City Tribune has put it. It is not material whether the News knows derogatory to Mr. Galusha's character, although if it did positively know anything it would have no hesitancy about printing it." Of course it would not hesitate. Everyone who knows the character of The News is able to appreciate the truth of this statement. It follows that the reason nothing specific is published against Galusha is that the News knows nothing against him, because we have the word of this paper that they would not hesitate to publish such information. After this frank confession it is up to the News to restrain all personal feeling in the matter and not permit the paper to do further injustice to an honorable gentleman.

Another year Falls City should have a "sane Fourth of July" ordinance. Hundreds of persons in the United States were maimed on Monday of last week by explosives. Many young men and boys will go through life crippled because of cannon crackers and the like. The odor of heilotropes is in many homes because of lock jaw caused by cap pistols and blank cartridges. Surely we can be patriotic without being idiotic. If we do not show a disposition to do so, sanity should be enforced by ordinance.

THE OTHER HALF.

The writer of this went into the tenement district of New York one hot July night several years ago. He had been invited to a roof garden, but had seen enough of that side of New York; he wanted to see the other half. He found the people driven from hot, squalid homes by the heat. Little boys, such as he had at home, moaned and moved restlessly in their sleep on the pavements and cobble stones, panting with heat as they slept. The thought came, God pity the poor of New York, for men will not.

Last week a baby girl was sick in New York—one of New York's poor. The noise of passing vehicles threw the little one into convulsions. Absolute rest and quiet was her only chance of recovery. The mother, the mother of the poor, brave in her desperation, told her story to Borough President Littleton, who, by the way, nominated Judge Parker in St. Louis last week, and he closed the street. All week the huge tide of traffic was held back from that spot not even when night fell was the barrier raised. The baby is better now the dispatches say; she will recover her health and play on the pavements by day and sleep on the cobble stones by night.

Is there a wisp of a girl in your home? Look at her tonight as she sleeps between cool sheets, with the pillow smothered with her curls. Then in your prayers remember the poor of New York—and President Littleton.
