

Thirty Days in Jail.

The patience of the owners of carriages in our city, and of the country people who come here to trade has been sorely tried for a long while by petty theiving from carriages when hitched to down town hitch-racks, but at last retribution has been administered to a bunch of these depredators, verifying the statement, "that the law is slow but sure."

Out at the picnic grounds on last Thursday afternoon, while many were enjoying the excellent musical program under the shady trees, a lot of five grown up darky boys, viz: three Frenchy's, one Wallace and one Enoch, were caught going through the wagons hitched at the grounds, taking anything they found of value, including toothsome lunches.

The whole bunch was given a hearing in Judge Cleaver's court on Friday morning, and each given thirty days in the county jail.

Now is the time for the county board to lay in its winter supply of cord wood, so that the Sheriff can make these husky rascals earn their board, and at the same time get grafted into them some respect for other peoples property.

Narrow Escape.

Tuesday afternoon at the picnic grounds the horse owned by Prof. Harnack became frightened and started down the pike with a race track record. Jake Norris was in the cart and Mr. Harnack had one foot on the step when the horse started, Jake held the frightened animal with one hand and at the same time holding Mr. Harnack until he succeeded in regaining his balance. Jake was given the glad hand by the crowd for his coolness and bravery.

The Difference.

By Rev. F. Pougion.—

Did you ever see a woman
Take a tumble down the stairs,
Land kerplunk right at the bottom,
For a while just sit and stare?
There is not a cross word spoken,
Rising to her feet with care;
She will ask the old, old question—
"Gracious goodness, How's my hair?"

But there is another picture,
That is not so soft and mild;
It's the picture of her husband,
Sitting there and looking wild.
He has had a tumble, also,
Like his wife he fell down stairs;
But, great goodness, what a difference
No, he's not repeating prayers.

About his hair he has no trouble,
Far his thoughts from feminine;
But he's having lots of trouble
With the last joint of his spine.
And his thoughts are far from heavenly
Tis language not sublime;
And we wouldn't dare to print it
For a hundred $$$$ per line.

SPLENDORS OF THE DURBAR.
The Gorgeous New Spectacle Presented
By The Barnum and Bailey Show.

Splendors attract the eye of all mankind quite as much today as in the ancient times. Man is vain and admires more his own handiwork than he does the choicest creation of nature. The precious stone is lustreless till man's cutting and polishing transforms it into a glittering gem. Every time man places his foot upon the ground he touches creation more ancient than the ruins of the most remote antiquity but a structure of his own erection, if no more than a single century old, halts him and his interest is aroused. These things are true now—they have been so for all time.

The earliest record of man's thoughts and deeds teem with accounts of his displays of riches and power. Traditional splendors are never those of nature, but of man. Some are invested with a glamor antiquity lends. Others of more modern being have been minutely described. With the aid of tradition and history and imagination some fairly adequate idea of ancient splendors may be formed, and then—all pale into insignificance before the glories of the gorgeous Durbar at Delhi.

This surpassing spectacle will be reproduced in simulation as a prelude to the performance given this year in the Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth. Preparations for this mimic presentation were begun immediately after the Durbar took place in January, 1903. It is scarcely necessary to say anything about the magnificent manner in which the superb splendors will be presented. The wealth and enterprise of this uniquely greatest establishment in the world is sufficient to supply all the ponderous paraphernalia, massive material and dazzling detail necessary to make of it the most sublime spectacle of panoramic
