Sunday evening Rev. Pougéon was greeted by a large and enthusiastic audience, when he used for his subject—"Denominational Barriers." He dealt in a very plain manner with the existing evils of a religious character, and said in part. "In the years gone, it was possible to tell the people things of narrow sectarian character and get them to swallow them, but, today we are living in an advanced age where people demand that they be given mental food applicable to their every day lives. People will go where they feel that they can get the knowledge they seek after, and until we broaden our creeds to the breadths, depths and widths of God, and not try to narrow God down to our creeds, ministers will still be able to pray to God for audiences to which they may preach. Narrowness and sectarian bigotry must and shall pass away." Next Sunday evening Rev. Pougéon will deliver an illustrated sermon on—"The Nails that Fail and Hold." All are invited to attend; services begin at 7:30.

Elmer Tuttle of Salem has been up before Justice Cleaver on charge of assault with intent to kill, and has been bound over to the next term of the District Court. Not being able to furnish the $200 bond required by the Justice, Tuttle is now boarding with the Sheriff. Tuttle had been carrying on pretty high in Verdon, and when the officer in order to arrest him, ordered him to halt he drew a gun, but as he pointed it at the officer, the latter grabbed it, so that when Tuttle pulled the trigger, the hammer of the gun came down on one of the officers fingers, which prevented the gun going off, and most probably saved the officer's life.
