

Among the Sports

If Wakefield was a horse of another color he wouldn't be playing ball in an amateur company.

Frank Crabill is at present the champion field shot. Linn Himmelreich tells of a remarkable shot he made on Mallards last Thursday that will probably remain the record for the season.

Clay Davis, Peter Frederick jr. and George Dietsch are back from their western chicken shoot. They report the chickens very plentiful. They returned with eighty nine birds.

What Newt VanWinkle, Irvin Bode, Fred Cleveland and George Hinton will do now the base ball season is closed, is a matter of doubt to their friends. What a great thing it is to stay young enough through all the years as they pass, to enjoy a good ball game.

The Tribune regrets the unfortunate ending of the Rulo ball game. The visitors had played a gentlemanly game and that the game should have had such an unfortunate termination is a source of regret to the local fans. That there is no greater bore than a drunken base ball crank will be admitted by every attendant at the Rulo game who was so unfortunate as to come within the notice of the young stranger who wanted to bet a hundred dollars on this game, and who had nothing on his person more valuable than an empty whisky bottle.

I saw, what to me, was a pathetic sight one afternoon last week. One of the local hunters has a crippled pointer dog. The old fellow has seen better days, but his spirit is as young and brave as it was when he was a kid and his body was sound. His master was going hunting and came out of the house with his gun. The old dog saw him and crept so stealthily to the side of his owner. If I ever saw an appeal in a brutes eyes, I saw it in the eyes of the old pointer. He wanted to go hunting so much. He wanted to feel the Autumn wind in his face and the scent of game in his nostrils. He was young again. He had dreamt by the kennel of the days in the field so long, now for a short afternoon he wanted to live to live. And as he looked up into the face of his master his eyes were full of entreaty and appeal. But the old body was worn out and the man with the gun put his hand gently on his head and said "no." So Jack went back to his straw a disappointed and unhappy old dog. That whole afternoon in the field was a failure—I thought too much of a dog.
